Recreation Association Is Started at Cascade Village

Eight acres of dry, arid land at White City will soon be turned into a green, tree shaded park. Cascade Village developers donated the eight acres to the homeowners in the Cascade Village area who have formed a recreation association.

The association, Cascade Village Recreation Association Inc., is composed of 36 members, each pays $24 annual dues. It is run by a ten member board of which Jack Masson is president.

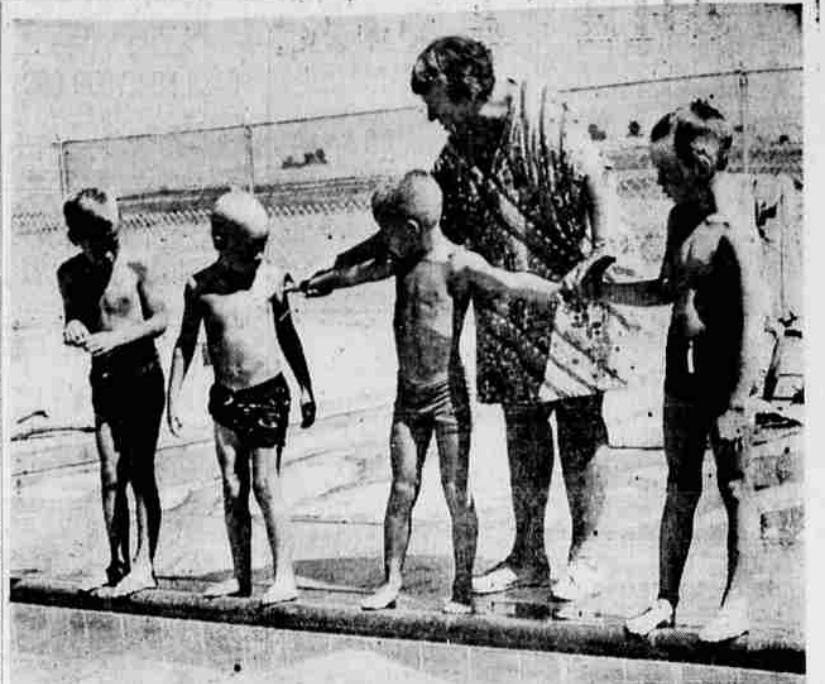

Plans of the association call for the area to be leveled, installation of an underground sprinkling system, planting trees and lawns, and laying out a baseball diamond.

The first project in the proposed park to be completed was the swimming pool. The heated fan-shaped pool, opened June 29, is now being used by an estimated 91 people each day.

The association keeps the pool open from 1 to 9 p.m. Mrs. Jackie Adams McKee, manager and lifeguard and one time all-around national swimming champion of California, teaches swimming in the morning to anyone in the area.

Mrs. McKee teaches both synchronized and competitive swimming. Since this was the first summer for the pool's swimming team they did not enter any competition.

Twice a week parties for teenagers are held at the swimming pool from 9 p.m. to midnight.

PREPARE TO DIVE—Mrs. Jackie McKee, pool Recreation association, Inc. Jack Masson, 6, manager, lines up some young swimmers to Kevin Teller, 4, Kerry Reich, 7, and Robert Nelson, 6, are the students. Area residents received free swimming lessons. The pool is run by the Cascade Village

Jaycee Chapter at OCI To Receive Charter on Sunday

By ZAN STARK Salem — (UPI) — The only Jaycee chapter in the nation made up of prison inmates will receive its charter at ceremonies near here Sunday.

The newest member of the Oregon Junior Chamber of Commerce is the Oregon Correctional Institution chapter.

Its membership includes armed robbers, car thieves, burglars and check artists.

It's a unique experiment at a unique institution. OCI is a maximum security prison without walls for first felony offenders sentenced to 10 years or less.

Situated at the foot of green, rolling hills east of here, the green-painted main cellblock is surrounded by gardens.

Double Fence Guarded In place of the traditional prison walls is a double fence watched day and night by armed tower guards.

OCI was designed to isolate first offenders from the hardened criminals housed in the state prison. The emphasis is on rehabilitation.

Shops offer courses in trades that can provide a livelihood for inmates on the "outside."

For those who want to enroll, there are courses on personality improvement subjects such as public speaking.

The new Jaycee club is a part of the unique rehabilitation project.

The chartering ceremonies will follow the 6:30 p.m. Sunday night dinner in the OCI dining hall, when the chapter's 26 members will be sworn in.

Attending the ceremonies will be National Jaycee Vice President Ernest Lewis of Pleasant Hill, Calif., Washington State President Robert Curtis, and Oregon State President Frank Brawner.

George Flowers, Salem Jaycee and National Director for the state organization, said the new inmate members "adapted themselves amazingly fast to the operation of a Jaycee club, despite the fact that we have to operate under the strict rules of a penal institution."

Club Has Blessing Paul J. Squier, OCI Superintendent, has given the club his blessing — with the understanding that members get no special privileges and their projects must be for the benefit of the entire institution and others.

Among "external" projects are the providing of a portable altar for religious services at the new Marion County Juvenile home, a statewide cooperative project with other Jaycees to repair bicycles and tricycles to be donated to underprivileged children, and the "adoption" of a Korean orphan.

"Internal" projects include gathering books for the OCI library, promotion of the institution's blood drive, an art contest, and the traditional self-improvement Jaycee courses.

Formation of the club began more than a year ago, after the state board of control okayed the project.

Flowers said "because of the great possibility for rehabilitation of young men," he plans to make a national project out of promoting Jaycee chapters in other penal institutions.

WHEELING — About half of all the coal produced in the U.S. since 1800 has come from two principal producing states—West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Wrecked Cars at Yard To Be Moved

A wrecking yard operator in the South Talent interim zoned area this morning notified District Attorney Alan B. Holmes he plans to keep all wrecked cars behind his fence.

A man with a portable crusher may come from Roseburg in a few days so more room can be cleared behind the fence so the wrecks now in front of the fence may be moved.

The district attorney advised the operator that state law allows him to keep a maximum of eight wrecked cars outside the fenced area, but due to objections by area residents he would be wise to keep all wrecked cars behind the fence.

Since he has access to a car dealer's license, any number of operable cars may be kept in front of the fence, the district attorney said.

Yesterday the county judge said he is writing a letter to the state department of motor vehicles asking for an investigation to determine if the operator in question is in violation of state regulations.

It was noted that the wrecking yard license is up for renewal in December. The state department of motor vehicles could choose not to renew both it or the dealer's licenses.

Linfield College Gets Grant From NSF

McMINNVILLE—The Linfield college physics department and Linfield Research Institute have received a joint grant of $9,728 from the National Science Foundation. The institutional grant is unrestricted except that it is to be used for science education and research.
