Week End Accidents Claim Lives of 17 Oregonians

Eisenhower Calls For Assurance of Cut in Spending

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower wants Congress to reject President Kennedy's proposal for a tax cut unless Kennedy promises to halt the rise in federal spending. Administration sources said Kennedy would not make the commitment demanded by Eisenhower because such a promise could not be kept. The House Ways and Means Committee is expected to approve an administration-backed measure Tuesday that would reduce corporate and individual income taxes $11 billion in two annual stages starting Jan. 1. Views Said Requested. Eisenhower issued his statement from his Gettysburg, Pa., office Sunday in reply to what he said was requests for his views from "various members of Congress." The statement was distributed by the Republican National Committee.

Most, if not all, the Republican members of the ways and means committee are expected to oppose the tax bill. However, it seems likely to get to the House floor within three weeks, and House passage appears assured. It is uncertain whether the Senate will act this year. Eisenhower said that Congress, before approving any tax cut, should get explicit assurance from Kennedy that federal spending in future fiscal years would not be allowed to go above the current $98 billion level until the budget is balanced and shows a surplus. Said Highly Desirable. "A tax cut is highly desirable but only if the persistent and frightening increase in federal expenditures is halted in its tracks," the former president said.

"It is my conviction that any tax cut without this firm halting of expenditure increase is unwise, undesirable and certain to damage our currency and the nation." Senate President Sen. Ben M. M. (D-The Dalles) who normally takes over as governor when Hatfield is out of state, will also be out of state during Hatfield's absence. He will be visiting his son, Dr. Byron M. M., in Minneapolis, Minn. It will be Barton's first experience as Oregon's governor.

Gov. Mark Hatfield is planning to leave Oregon at 9 p.m. Thursday to attend a traffic safety meeting Friday in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Senate President Sen. Ben M. M. (D-The Dalles) who normally takes over as governor when Hatfield is out of state, will also be out of state during Hatfield's absence. He will be visiting his son, Dr. Byron M. M., in Minneapolis, Minn. It will be Barton's first experience as Oregon's governor.

Violent deaths claimed 17 Oregonians over the week end. Another resident of the state died when he was struck by a car in Southern California after falling off the back of a truck. Accidents Sunday claimed one traffic victim, five by drowning and one by electrocution.

A two-car crash on a county road 20 miles east of Eugene Sunday resulted in the death of one-year-old David Laurence Sandlin Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Sandlin Sr., of Eugene.

According to state police, the child was riding in a car with his parents when it collided head-on with a vehicle driven by Harold Delmar Ludington, 22, of Eugene.

Tony Krossman, 58, of Sixes, drowned when he was washed off the rocks into the Pacific Ocean just north of the Port Orford Coast Guard Station by two large waves. Drownings Claim Five.

William Philip Gauthier, 51, Salem, was dead on arrival at Pacific Communities Hospital in Newport and his two companions were injured after their sports boat capsized in heavy fog off the south jetty of Yaquina Bay Sunday.

William Francis Mullik, 16, Portland, drowned in the Clackamas river at Oregon City Sunday afternoon.

Another drowning in the Portland area took the life of Donald Ross Barbur, 15, Portland. Barbur drowned in the Columbia river north of the city.

Near Reedsport, the fifth Sunday drowning claimed the life of an 11-year-old Drayn boy.

James R. Videgar was the driver of a 20-foot cabin cruiser after it was driven on the South Umpqua jetty just outside the Winchester Bay harbor entrance. According to the Coast Guard, the boat's motor failed, and an auxiliary motor was not powerful enough to keep the boat out of trouble. The Coast Guard rescued four other persons.

At Sublimity Jerry W. Bruce, 23, was killed when a model aircraft which he was guiding by a metal cable control line brushed against a power line.

A Sunday fatality near San Diego, Calif., took the life of Jackie Gene Garrison, 23, of Foster. Garrison was sleeping in the back of a truck when he tumbled onto Highway 101 and was struck by a car.

Earlier week end fatalities included: August John Covic, 36, and Dale Allison Kile, 31, both of Portland, killed in a two-car collision on the Sunset highway near Portland Saturday.

Mrs. Louella Snyder, and her sons, Richard, 10, and David, 4, died in a fire which destroyed their two-story frame house in Sweet Home Saturday.

Senators Warned About Exceptions In Nuclear Treaty

Supporters Sure Of Ratification

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, warned today that any Senate reservations to the nuclear test ban treaty "would be unwise and irresponsible."

Fulbright made the statement in a speech prepared for the opening of formal Senate debate on the treaty. Supporters were confident they could get the two-third Senate vote required for ratification.

Said Safe and Wise Assuring his colleagues that the pact was "indeed both safe and wise," Fulbright said "there are risks in this treaty but they are lesser rather than greater risks, and the political opportunities outweigh the military risks."

Fulbright's speech came as the Senate preparedness subcommittee sharply criticized the treaty and as President Kennedy arranged to meet with Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., and GOP Leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., to discuss the pact.

The preparedness subcommittee, in a report signed by six of its seven members, said the United States might suffer serious, even formidable, military disadvantages if the treaty is ratified.

The subcommittee, which heard 21 military and scientific witnesses in closed sessions on the treaty, made no direct recommendation on whether the Senate should ratify it.

Could Hold Gains But the group, headed by Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss.) concluded that the Russians would be able to hold or make weapons gains under the treaty while the United States would be inhibited in its development of nuclear weapons systems.

The pact bore a 16-1 endorsement from the foreign relations committee, the all-out backing of the administration, and the support of many top-legal scientists and other experts.

Medford Man Hurt In Auto Crash

John William Dahlstrom, 21, of 34 Elm st., was in serious condition at Rogue Valley hospital this morning from injuries received in a pre-dawn head-on collision on Highway 99 about 14 miles north of Grants Pass.

Dahlstrom suffered severe cuts about the head and face, deep cuts in one leg, fractures to both arms, internal injuries and other undetermined injuries. The station wagon he was driving struck a truck-tractor with semi-trailer, operated by Clarence E. Pratt, 37, of Grants Pass, according to Oregon state police.

Pratt received minor cuts and a single deep cut on one leg. Both men were taken by ambulance to Josephine General hospital in Grants Pass, whereupon Dahlstrom was transferred immediately to Medford. He underwent surgery this morning at Rogue Valley hospital.

The accident occurred at 5:10 a.m. on a two-lane portion of Highway 99 near Sunny Valley. According to state police, Dahlstrom's car, which was southbound, crossed over into the northbound lane and hit the truck-tractor head-on.

Both vehicles were a total loss.

Federal Grant To Aid Storm Sewer Drainage Study

The City of Medford has received a federal grant to conduct a study of storm sewer drainage conditions in three areas of the city, City Manager Robert Duff has been notified. Congressman Robert B. Duncan wired Duff Saturday that the Housing and Home Finance Administration has approved $6,370 for the survey.

The Corvallis firm of Cornell, Howell, Hayes and Merryfield, consulting engineers, will be engaged to conduct the survey. Duff said their work will begin within 30 days.

The study will survey drainage conditions in southeast Medford, the Kenwood - Grandview area, and a section of the Berrydale district, Duff said.

The city manager said today that the three areas have been experiencing storm drainage problems for several years.

A completed storm water collection system in the areas has been estimated by the city to cost about $942,500. The estimate was computed on a cost per acre basis.

The city council had authorized the administration to request advance planning aid for the project at its June 6 meeting. The formal request was submitted to the federal agency on June 12, Duff said.

Hatfield Hits Delay In Oil Bid Opening

SALEM (UPI)—Gov. Mark Hatfield today lashed out at an Interior Department announcement that opening of bids for oil exploration on federal lands on the ocean floor had been postponed until Oct. 1, 1964.

"Oregon and the nation should not be penalized because one company saw more fully an opportunity open to all," the governor said.

The governor noted that Shell Oil Co. had conducted extensive tests off the Oregon coast, and apparently was ready to start drilling next year.

Hatfield suggested the interior department was yielding to pressure from oil companies that have not made such tests.

"Oregon may have a resource of great economic value to the state and of great strategic value to the nation," Hatfield said. He charged the interior department was "confusing public interest with corporation interest."

Negro Children Begin Classes In Huntsville

Birmingham, Mobile, Tuskegee Affected

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—Gov. George C. Wallace defied the federal government in three cities today by surrounding white schools with armed state troopers who turned away 20 Negroes trying to enter.

The fiery segregationist thus set the stage for another "school house door" showdown with the federal government which had said troops would be used if necessary to enforce the integration ordered by federal courts.

Huntsville Quiet The 20 Negroes were turned back by the helmeted state troopers ringing three schools in Birmingham, one in Mobile and one in Tuskegee.

While the crisis mounted in these cities, three Negro children quietly began classes in formerly white schools in Huntsville, leaving only Mississippi where integration has not started below the college level.

There were no incidents at the schools in Birmingham, Tuskegee and Mobile.

Court Orders Sought Legal maneuvers began in Birmingham to force Wallace to stop interfering with the desegregation of the schools. A federal judge in Mobile was asked to issue a similar order but took the request under advisement.

In Washington, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy conferred for almost three hours with his top aides on the government's next move. There was no comment from the White House.

President Kennedy was kept abreast of the situation during the morning.

100 Troopers Nearby Wallace sent nearly 400 troopers into Birmingham, Tuskegee and Mobile to turn away the Negroes who have been ordered admitted by the federal courts.

Systematically, the troopers barred the way for 13 Negroes at Tuskegee's only white school; turned back two teen-agers at Murphy High in Mobile; two girls at West End High in Birmingham and a Negro boy at Ramsay High in Birmingham.

Even as the troopers accomplished their mission—apparently Wallace's first step to force the government's hand—the color barrier fell for the first time at an Alabama public school below the college level.

A small Negro boy began attending classes with whites in the second grade of East Clinton Elementary School in Huntsville.

Seeks Restraining Order In Mobile, a Negro attorney promptly went into federal court to ask that Wallace be restrained from interfering with the admission of the two Negro to Murphy High, the state's largest.

Similar legal maneuvers were taking shape in Birmingham. Mrs. Viola Ayer, principal of the East Clinton School at Huntsville, said the lone Negro boy scheduled up this morning and began attending his second grade class.

"Everything is just perfectly normal," said Mrs. Ayer. "There's not a trooper in sight."
