Red Cross Week Activities To Include Annual Meeting

Sept. 9 through 15 is International Red Cross Centenary Week in Medford, according to a proclamation signed by Mayor James Dunleavy. During this time the Jackson County chapter of the American Red Cross joins the 90 national Red Cross societies of the world in observing the 100th anniversary of the international Red Cross, founded in Geneva, Switzerland, in 1863. During the past century the Red Cross has grown from an idea in the mind of one man into a movement of service to humanity by some 90 national societies in countries where nearly 99 per cent of the world's population live. At home the Red Cross touches the lives of more Americans than does any other non-governmental agency. The emblem of the Red Cross means help following disaster, blood for the ill and injured, and training in first aid, lifesaving and home nursing. To the members of the armed forces, veterans, and their dependents, it also means help in meeting personal and family problems arising from military service. The Jackson County chapter has served the people of the City of Medford and Jackson County for 46 years and has contributed to the well-being of the community. More than 500 trained volunteers participate actively in the local program. Annual Meeting The annual meeting of the Jackson County chapter of the American Red Cross will be held Thursday, Sept. 12, with a portion of the meeting being devoted to the observance of the Centenary. Arthur S. Flemming, president of the University of Oregon will be guest speaker for the event. The week will be concluded with the observance of International Red Cross Sunday, when local churches will join people everywhere in recognition of this worldwide movement. The annual meeting will be held at noon at the chapter house, 60 Hawthorne ave. Persons wishing to attend may make reservations for the luncheon by calling the Red Cross office, 772-4465.

Sunlight Claimed Factor in Cancer

CHICAGO (UPI)—Suntanners take warning. The American Medical association reports that "several converging lines of evidence" indicate that ultraviolet rays in sunlight are an important factor in producing certain types of skin cancer. The AMA said studies show that: About 90 per cent of skin cancer is found on exposed areas, principally the face; skin cancer is rare in Negroes, who are protected by pigmentation; in the United States, there is more cancer in southern states where there is more sunshine; and skin cancer can be produced in mice 100 per cent of the time by using ultraviolet light. However, a single overexposure to sun cannot cause cancer, said AMA, although it may cause scarring or pigmentary changes. It takes long years of being outdoors to produce any danger from sunlight.
