The King Ordered Tobacco

West's 'Dishes of Western World' Traces History of Chili Con Carne

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — So now we come, ready or not, to the end of another summer. Personally, I'm ready. One of the factors influencing my attitude is the crime rate. The crime rate, as you know, ordinarily rises during hot weather, and one of the leading crimes is congealed salad.

West

If my calendar is accurate, it will be almost nine months before I have to eat another congealed salad. Which alone is cause for rejoicing.

Off hand, I can't think of a more appropriate way to greet the autumn, and the return of uncongealed table fare, than by renewing my lectures on "Great Dishes of the Western World."

For openers, I have selected a dish that is commonly identified with cool weather dining. It's name is chili con carne.

The origin of this delectable repast dates back to the Spanish exploration of what is now the Republic of Mexico. One day the King of Spain called his explorers into his office and ordered them to discover some tobacco.

"What is tobacco, your majesty?" the explorers inquired.

"It's that weed that the English explorers found in North Carolina," the King explained. "The Indians grow it. You hold it in your mouth and it burns."

The explores wandered all over Mexico looking for tobacco, but unfortunately the Indians in that part of the new world did not smoke.

Eventually, they stumbled upon a plant which was loaded with cigar-shaped pods. "Maybe this is tobacco," said one of the explorers, sticking a pod in his mouth.

It burned like crazy, ing the explorers to be...e that they had hit the jackpot. They took a whole boatload of the stuff back to Spain. Needless to say, the King was disappointed.

What the explorers actually had discovered was a new type of pepper plant known to the Indians as "chilly." They called it that because they couldn't eat it without something "chilly" to drink.

The first person to serve it for dinner was an Indian named Barney. His friends would say "Let's go over and have some chilly with Barney."

The Spanish explorers, who couldn't hear very well, translated this as "chili con carne."

Today, chili con carne is served wherever particular people congregate. I don't know what happened to tobacco.

GOOD WISHES—Prince Souvanna Phouma of Laos has the traditional string of good wishes tied on his wrist at Moung May, Attopeu, Laos by an elder of the community as part of the Baci ceremony thanking Buddha for a safe journey. Phouma was on a visit to the southernmost province for the first time since the signing of the Geneva Agreement. Behind the Prince is his Secretary of State for Youth and Sports, Bouthong Voravong. Russia May Stop Peking Train Runs

MOSCOW (UPI)—Speculation developed here today that the Kremlin may stop direct train service from Peking to Moscow as a result of a new Communist Chinese attempt to smuggle anti-Soviet literature into the country.

The affected through service would involve mixed Soviet and Chinese trains with mixed crews.

The Kremlin issued a protest note two days ago accusing the Chinese of attempting to bring banned literature into the Soviet Union on a train bound from Peking to Moscow.

Several Chinese were expelled following brawls Saturday and Sunday with border officials at Naushki, a Mongolian crossing point.

The official government newspaper Izvestia said Tuesday the offending Chinese acted like "cattle."

Bus Overturns To Miss Stalled Auto

SHAMROCK, Tex. (UPI) — Greyhound bus driver Madrid Reid peered through a blinding rainstorm Tuesday night and saw an automobile ahead of him in trouble. He veered his bus to miss the car. The 43-passenger scenic-cruiser overturned and 27 persons were injured.

None of the injured was in serious condition today.

Richard Fisher of Jefferson, Ohio, driver of the car, said a bolt of lightning startled him and a gust of wind blew him to the left side of the road.

Reid, of Oklahoma City, turned his wheel to avoid the car, and skidded on the rain-slick road. The bus overturned and came to a halt astride the center line of U.S. Highway 66.

Juveniles Admit Setting Mill Fire

CENTRAL POINT — Central Point police and members of the volunteer fire department have completed the investigation of a fire September 2 at the Cheney Stud mill in Central Point.

Two juvenile boys, 14 and 15, one from Central Point and one from Redding, Calif., have been referred to juvenile authorities after admitting setting the fire, police said.

A passing motorist, who witnessed the incident, reported the fire which was controlled by the Central Point Volunteer Fire department. No damage was reported.
