Chicago Council Votes for Open Occupancy Law

By United Press International

Negroes and whites stoned each other in High Point, N. C. Wednesday night and one shot was fired from ambush early today. Police used tear gas to disperse an angry crowd of 3,000 whites during the height of the violence.

A rifle bullet ripped into a truck carrying three white men in a Negro neighborhood. They were not injured.

The shot was fired about four hours after High Point police used tear gas to break up a crowd of whites who tossed stones, eggs and rotten tomatoes at Negroes during an anti-segregation march.

Later, Negro youths stoned whites on a street in the Negro section. Several persons were injured by rocks and flying glass.

Ordinance Adopted

At Chicago, thousands of white demonstrators failed in an attempt to prevent the city council from adopting an open occupancy law. The measure, passed by a 30-16 vote, bans racial discrimination in the sale or rental of property by real estate brokers.

A Negro registered for classes at Florence State College in Alabama, where Gov. George Wallace apparently has decided not to attempt to physically block any further court-ordered desegregation. Attendance was down in schools desegregated Tuesday in Birmingham, Tuskegee and Mobile.

White students staged protest demonstrations at two integrated Birmingham schools and one in Mobile.

Other developments:

New Orleans: Angry Negro leaders Wednesday night accused Mayor Victor Shiro of lying to them to get them to stop massive racial demonstrations and threatened to resume protest marches.

Boston: Negro leaders disclosed Wednesday that they will concentrate on court action and suspend demonstrations in their fight against alleged segregation in Boston schools.

Edisto Beach, S.C.: An overwhelming number of local residents proposed Wednesday that the long-closed Edisto State Park remain closed rather than be desegregated.

Beaufort, S.C.: Local businessmen proposed Wednesday that Hunting Island State park, now closed to avoid integration, be given to Beaufort county. They said the deed provides that the property must revert to the county if the state fails to "satisfactorily maintain the island as a public beach."

New York: Former President Harry S. Truman said Wednesday he sympathizes with Southerners who "don't want to be pushed around by damyankees." He also said he hopes that integration progress in the United States does not lead to intermarriage between the races.

Jersey City, N. J.: Pupil boycotts, sit-in demonstrations and picketing continued in New Jersey Wednesday at scattered protests against de facto school segregation and job discrimination.

Jackson, Miss.: John Frazier, a 22-year-old Negro, said Wednesday he will continue efforts to enroll at the all-white University of Southern Mississippi. Frazier entered predominantly Negro Tougaloo college here this month, but he was ending his fight to become a Mississippi Southern student.

Rainy Pacific Northwest Again Draws Attention of Parched Southwest Area

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Interior Department officials are eyeing the rainy Pacific Northwest as a possible source of water for the parched Pacific Southwest.

The revived interest in ambitious proposals to transport water over hundreds of miles of desert and mountains was revealed Wednesday in testimony released by the House public works appropriations subcommittee.

The possibility was brought up during closed hearings of the committee by Reclamation Commissioner Floyd Dominy and Assistant Commissioner William I. Palmer.

Dominy raised the possibility while testifying in support of a request for funds to pump ground water in the vicinity of Yuma, Ariz., which lies almost on the Mexican border.

Lowest Cost Water

"All we need to do to recover this water is to pump it from a modest depth," Dominy said. "It is the lowest cost water that possibly can be salvaged on the lower Colorado, and actually is one of the very few sources of water remaining to use in that area."

Alternate sources, he said, would involve extensive reservoir and canal systems to import supplies from the Pacific Northwest or other distant areas.

But Dominy made it clear such an ambitious plan was still in the future, noting that underground water in the Yuma Valley "is here and now."

He said the present plan calls for the addition of 18 new wells to nine existing wells installed by the Yuma County Water Users Association. The initial cost, he said, would be about $9 million, with an additional $12 to $15 million required in the future.

Study Funds Requested.

Palmer suggested the Pacific Northwest as a source of water for the Southwest during testimony on a request for $50,000 to start a $4 million water resource study in the central Pacific river basins of California and Oregon.

Palmer said an over-all study of an area extending from the Golden Gate in California to Puget Sound in Washington was needed. In that area, he said, up to 300 million acre-feet is the amount of water required to cover one acre to a depth of one foot.

"The entire controversy about the Colorado has to do with 15 million acre-feet of water," he said. "This gives you an idea of the water resources development potential in the Pacific Northwest."

Palmer said the study should include the determination of how much water is needed in the river basins and how much might be exported to the south.

Proposals to transport water from the Pacific Northwest to the south have been made occasionally over the years, but each such proposal has aroused opposition in the water-rich Northwest.

Try and Stop Me

RUSSELL LYNE'S characterization of a literary snob: a know-it-all who has not only read in advance galleys, the very book you are reading, but takes pleasure in telling you the names of all the earlier and more obscure books by the same author, and why each was superior to the better-known one that has come to your attention.

A would-be novelist submitted a manuscript to his favorite publisher, attached a note thereto reading, "Please tell me as soon as possible if you think my brainchild is Knopfable." Three days after he received a note from the head of the firm himself, brief but to the point: "Kno."

In addition, authorities reported 21 persons missing in Formosa and 3 more unaccounted for in Japan.

Floods whipped up by Gloria left thousands of persons stranded at evacuation points on this island.

Johnson Visits Norwegian Workers

OSLO, Norway (UPI) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson drank coffee with 200 Norwegian factory workers today and told them Norway and the United States have the same respect for the laborer.

Johnson started the last full day of his Norwegian visit with a trip to the Standard Telephone and Cable Factory Co., a subsidiary of the American International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., in northern Oslo.

The vice president spent half an hour more than scheduled, chatting with the employees and looking at the huge factory.

Johnson later planned to call on Norway's Storting (parliament), attend a parliamentary lunch in his honor at the Shipping Club and make a speech at Oslo university.
