TO HONOR YOUTH—Dr. Arthur Kreisman, educator from Southern Oregon college, will speak at 6:30 o'clock tonight at the Rogue Valley Country club honoring some 50 young people who have participated in American Legion activities. They will represent winners and participants in the oratorical contest, Boys and Girls State, and baseball.

Goldwater Calls On Republicans For Party Unity

CHICAGO (UPI)—Sen. Barry M. Goldwater (R-Ariz.) urged fellow Republicans Wednesday night to direct their anger toward the New Frontier—"rather than chew on members of your own party."

Goldwater, speaking to a friendly audience that included Illinois' top Republicans, pleaded for unity against President Kennedy and what the senator called "a 'daddy knows best' attitude toward the American people."

The speech, delivered before the National Federation of Republican Women, marked a key appearance by Goldwater during his current cross-country swing.

Gubernatorial candidates Charles H. Percy, who was chairman of the 1960 Republican platform committee, and Hayes Robertson, Cook county GOP chairman, were in attendance.

Had Ignored Rockefeller

They were not present last week end when New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and his wife, Happy, went to a fair at Oregon, Ill.

In his speech, Goldwater did not mention Rockefeller by name or refer explicitly to the Rockefeller attack recently on the "radical right" of the Republican party.

"I would remind you that there are many New Frontiersmen to direct your anger toward — rather than chewing on members of your own party," Goldwater said.

Goldwater, who along with Rockefeller is expected to be a top contender for the presidential nomination next year, refused to be labeled.

"I am a Republican, pure and I hope not too simple," Goldwater said. "I accept that designation with pride and I wear the mantle with honor.

'Confusion' in Washington

"I do not accept any gradation with my Republican label. I am not a Fifth Amendment Republican, nor do I know any," he said.

"And if you are a Republican, that is good enough for me."

Goldwater said he could summarize the situation in Washington by saying that "all is confusion."

"It may be there is a master design buried somewhere amidst the confusion that will emerge in time," he said. "When and if it does, it will be a plan conceived by the Kennedys, dedicated to the Kennedys, and operated by and for the Kennedys."

He said if the New Frontier has a purpose, "it is to expand the federal government to the point where it can regulate, not govern, the individual lives of all Americans."

Columbia Season May Be Liberalized

PORTLAND (UPI)—The Oregon Fish Commission today was considering the possibility of liberalizing the commercial salmon fishing season on the Columbia river for the Sept. 16-Oct. 10 period.

The matter was taken under advisement following an optimistic report Wednesday by Robert Thompson, head of the commission's Columbia river management study.

Thompson said the Oregon and Washington research staffs were considering a recommendation to liberalize weekly closures for the period on the basis of the anticipated run of silvers.

Thompson said ocean troll and sport catches off the mouth of the Columbia compare favorably with 1962. The troll catch this year was about 180,000 fish June through August, compared to 160,000 in 1962.

Deke Slayton May Yet Receive Chance For Space Flight

By ALVIN B. WEBB JR.

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)— One day within a few weeks a doctor will press a silvery stethoscope to the chest of Deke Slayton—and listen, intently, to the thumping of a controversial heart.

Thus will begin perhaps the most critical "routine" physical examination in the 39-year-old life of this anxious young man.

What the doctor hears through the twin tubes of the stethoscope, and what he interprets from the electrocardiograph tests that will follow, should have a major bearing on the future of the U.S. man-in-space program.

"Deke" is Air Force Maj. Donald Kent Slayton, U.S. astronaut—one of the seven men selected five years ago to make this nation's first brief flights into space.

The other six have gone on before, into space, fame and history books. But for Deke Slayton, there has been no thunderous rocket blast-off, no awesome views in space. A tiny quirk of nature has marked him as a man apart.

Slayton is an astronaut with heart trouble.

To be sure, it doesn't amount to much as coronary ailments go. Doctors call it "atrial fibrillation," a minor affair of the heart beat that causes the upper chambers of the heart to tremble—a "murmur" of the sort that millions of Americans live with normally every day.

Demands Perfection

But Deke Slayton, by definition of the word "astronaut," is hardly an ordinary man. He is a profession that demands the physically perfect because it leaves so little margin of error for the possibility of mistakes by human frailties.

Slayton's heart tends to flutter. It was worry that such a flutter might occur before or during blast-off, or at a critical point in space, that led the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to remove him as the pilot for the second U.S. manned orbital flight. Fellow astronaut M. Scott Carpenter went on to make the three orbits last year.

Then, after more examinations, NASA made Slayton's grounding permanent, as far as the one-man Mercury flights were concerned, on July 11, 1962.

Slayton was stunned. The space agency and its doctors had known about the heart defect a full two years even at the time, late in 1961, that Mercury project director Robert R. Gilruth announced that John Glenn would get the first crack at orbital space and that he would follow.

Decision Not Popular

The decision was neither unanimous among the doctors that ran the tests on Slayton (one top physician left NASA as a partial result), nor popular among scores of Mercury officials who regarded this intense, intelligent man as one of the most capable and certainly one of the most likeable of the original seven astronauts.

The question of whether Slayton's heart murmur would affect his ability in space is a controversy that has never been settled.

He may yet get his choice. Project Mercury is dead, but ahead is Project Gemini, which will send two-man teams of U.S. astronauts into orbit starting in another year or so.

Slayton himself contends he is fully competent for a ticket into orbit, heart murmur or no. His first major step in that direction should come this fall, when all 16 Gemini astronauts undergo a checkup in Houston.

Undergoes New Tests

Dr. Charles Berry, head of NASA's center of medical operations in Houston, said this will be a regular medical examination for the spacemen-elect.

Two points of logic were brought to bear against permitting Slayton to make a one-man Mercury flight: 1. So little was known at that time of the physical stresses that might confront a man in orbit; and 2. Slayton would have had no one with him in case anything really did go wrong.

But months have passed and manned space flights have come and gone. Medical data generally indicates that stresses in space amount to little more than those undergone by pilots in jet airplanes. And Slayton still flies Air Force jet fighters regularly—and without a bit of trouble.

He doesn't think his heart would cause any trouble in orbit. But should it do so, Slayton still has another point in his favor. There will be a second pilot aboard the Gemini capsule, which is being built so that one man can fly it in a pinch.

And if you want odds on whether Deke Slayton will ride a rocket into space, 50-50 would be a safe bet today.

Dr. De Maria Tells Rotarians of Italy At Ladies Day Event

Dr. Enrico De Maria of Alba, Italy, told Medford Rotarians at their regular meeting, Tuesday, at the Rogue Valley Country club, that he is happy to be in the Western United States principally because of the informality and warmheartedness of the people.

Dr. De Maria told the Rotarians and their wives that while in the Eastern United States he had noted a measure of formality, but when he met Oregon's Sen. Maurine Neuberger and Representative Robert B. Duncan in Washington, D.C., he immediately felt the impact of Western hospitality.

"Our eating habits are different. We eat a large breakfast in Medford, where the citizens of Alba eat a small breakfast. However, when we ordinarily eat a small lunch here, in Alba the business houses close at noon and everyone goes home for a large meal and a siesta and then the businesses reopen at 2 p.m," he told the group.

Self Sufficient Nation

Explaining Italy under the Fascist rule Dr. De Maria pointed out that it was the purpose at this time to make Italy a self sufficient nation and that the economy of his area (Alba) was principally agricultural. Around Alba, he explained, much fruit is grown, peaches, apples, pears, grapes. The grapes are made into wine, and making wine is one of Alba's chief industries.

Since the end of Fascism and the entry of Italy into trade with the European market, manufacturing has increased around Alba. A large candy factory ships its products all over Italy and to many other countries, he said.

Most homes in Alba are made of brick, stone, steel and cement as compared to our wooden homes and nearly all the people walk to work and drive little.

When asked about the language used when he and 124 other Experiment in International Living ambassadors assembled in Vermont, Dr. De Maria stated that it was English as all were required to have an understanding of the language before coming to this country.

Presented Proclamation

At the conclusion of his talk, Rotary president, Omar Bacon introduced Medford's mayor, James Dunlevy, who presented Dr. De Maria the original of the proclamation declaring the week of September 8 as "Alba Week."

Ladies Day was celebrated by the Rotary club at the meeting as the wives of Rotarians joined in the event. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bishop, one of the homestay families of Dr. De Maria; Rotary District Governor William Jones and his wife of Eugene; Past District Governor V. Ward Hammond and Mrs. Hammond; and Past District Governor William Caldwell and Mrs. Caldwell.

Mrs. Phillip Gates, president of the Medford Women of Rotary, presented the invocation. Other guests presented were Thomas Mills from Ghana and David Kangethe from Kenya.

Economy With High Styling

If in need of an economy lamb cut that could be served for company or a Sunday dinner, purchase a cushion-style lamb shoulder. This meat cut can be roasted in a 300 degree Fahrenheit oven — the same as a leg of lamb. For a color and flavor accompaniment, have the meat retailer cut a pocket in the shoulder. Stuff the pocket with either a spinach or carrot-raisin stuffing.

Agriculture Output Expected To Set Record

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The output of American agriculture this year is likely to be record high.

The Agriculture Department's September crop report Tuesday showed field crop production this year already has equaled the record output of 1960 and 1962. Given favorable weather for the remainder of this growing season and normal harvest conditions, the field crop output easily could reach a new peak.

New Record Seen

But without a late season increase in field crop output, the total, all-crop production likely will set a new record. Livestock production this year already is above that of any other year. The 1963 livestock output combined with field crop production is expected to be the largest outpouring of food, feed, and fiber in history.

The crop production index now stands at 183 per cent of the 1957-59 average. The same percentage was reached in 1960 and 1962. Aiding the large volume now in sight was an increase during August in the composite yield per acre index covering 28 major crops. The composite yield now is 112 per cent of the 1957-59 average, and equal to the record set a year ago.

The big record setter in this year's crop was corn. The department estimated production of this key livestock feed at a record 3.94 billion bushels, which surpassed the previous high of 3.91 billion bushels in 1960. The corn estimate was 2 per cent higher than a month ago, 8 per cent above a year ago, and 11 per cent more than the 1957-61 average. The corn crop this year was grown on 66.8 million acres, whereas the five-year average acreage was 65.7 million acres. A record yield of 64.7 bushels an acre helped roll up the record output. The average yield in 1957-61 was only 54.1 bushels an acre.

Another record breaker was soybeans, which weighed in with more than 728 million bushels, up 8 per cent from 1962 and 29 per cent above average.

Crowd of 8,000 Watches First Pendleton Events

PENDLETON (UPI) — A crowd of 8,000 watched the first and some second go-rounds in the cowboy events at the Pendleton Roundup Wednesday.

A group of 231 cowboys is competing for the $26,425 in prize money.

Leading in the bareback bronc riding at the end of the first go-round were Dave Reidhead, Phoenix, Ariz., and Shorty Horn of San Jose, Calif., with 175 points each. John Hawkins, Twainhart, Calif., and Malcolm Jones, Lethbridge, B.C., followed with 173 points.

At the end of the second go-round in calf roping, Ari Pulkerson, Walla Walla, Wash., led with a time of 13.2 seconds. Bud Corwin, Lockford, Calif., was second with a time of 16.7 seconds and Harry Charters, Melba, Idaho, third with 18.53 seconds.

In the second go-round in steer wrestling, Walter Wyatt, Bakersfield, Calif., was first with 7.1 seconds. He was followed by John W. Jones, San Luis Obispo, Calif., 7.6 seconds, and Frank Griffith, Pendleton, 8.8 seconds.

Tied for Lead

Two men were tied for the lead in the Brahma bull riding event. Kenny Stanton, Redmond, Ore., and Lawrence Hutchison, Calgary, Alberta, each scored 172 points. Larry Davis, Caldwell, Idaho, was third with 170 points.

Jim Bothum, Redmond, Ore., led the saddle bronc riding event after the first go-round with 190 points. Kenny McLean, Okey Falls, British Columbia, was second with 181 points. Tied for third with 180 points were Mac Griffith, Pendleton, Ore., and Gene Tyler, Yakima, Wash.

After the second go-round in steer roping, Clark McEntire, Kiowa, Okla., led with a time of 19.5 seconds. Les Kamm, Pendleton, was second with 19.6 seconds and Charters third with a time of 20 seconds flat.

Homer Sims, Lebanon, Ore., won the wild-horse race Wednesday and the Wallla Walla, Wash., Wagon Wheelers were first in the baton relay race.

School News

Hedrick Junior High

Hedrick's first day enrollment this year was 1,029 which is 47 more than were registered here the first day of the last school year. Total enrollment is expected to increase this week.

There are six new teachers here this year. Don Jaquette, mathematics, graduated last year from Southern Oregon college. Vance Noble, English, comes from Port Orford, Ore. Miss Coleen O'Meara, vocal music teacher, taught last year at Clinton, Ohio.

Miss Charlotte Redfield and Mrs. Nelda Swisher are both recent graduates from SOC and both teach girls' physical education and health. E. Richard Reum, remedial reading instructor, taught last year at Talent Junior High.

Two new staff members are Library Assistant Juanita Capello and Teacher Aide Evelyn Price.

Barney Riggs, football coach, reports that 50 boys turned out this year and they all are training hard and eagerly for their first game. There are nine schools in our Junior High conference this year. The first game will be Friday, Sept. 20, against North Grants Pass.

Art Teacher Gary Hendrix submitted Hedrick student art work at the State Fair in Salem this year. He reports that Hedrick took every major prize.

First prize winner was Maria Monroe, second prize winners were Judy Netz and Mark Charter. Third prize winners were Jeannie Wilson, Richard Latour and Dorothy Sellers. Honorable mention was won by Pat Clute, Ed Callaway and Donna Thompson. The winning art works will be on display in Hedrick's lobby by the main office for the coming week.
