

Mentally Retarded Training Program Subject of Meeting

The Jackson county program for mentally retarded will have an industrial shop training program this year and possibly not for some time, as a result of a meeting with a group of educators and representatives of the county rural school board yesterday in Central Point.

Main problem was how to avoid severe liabilities to Crater High school area in which the program would be operated, and possible liabilities involving the rural board, liabilities which possibly could not be covered by insurance.

A special three-man committee of the rural school board will write the attorney general for his opinion as to the possible liabilities arising out of such a program. It also will inquire as to local insurance coverage available.

The rural board must apply directly to the attorney general for an opinion and not to the district attorney's office, according to a recent legal opinion. This could take a month or more.

However, the foundation for a new building to house the shop training program at Mt. Pitt Lumber company must be poured this month or early next month to avoid fall rains. From past experience it could take more than a month to receive the required opinion, information as to insurance and have the rural board act on the proposed program.

David Harms, high school instructor in the program for mentally retarded, had worked out a plan with Mt. Pitt Lumber company in which the company would erect the building, provide machinery, materials and produce orders for an industry type training program.

Provide Instructor

It also would provide a manual training instructor as a part time foreman.

The rural board would be required to provide $1,500 annual rent for the building and liability insurance. (Mt. Pitt would make its books available to the rural board at any time for inspection.)

The students would be trained in proper work habits and skills while turning out such items as grade stakes for the state highway commission. The lumber company, after selling the finished product would pay the school system at 40 cents an hour per pupil time in the shop. Ed Collins, of the Mt. Pitt Lumber company, estimated the expenses to the school system would be offset by the project earnings.

Not Company Employees

Collins said the pupils could not be company employees nor could they be considered subcontractors to the company due to the company's position in interstate commerce.

Harms said the class would consist of 10 to 13 boys from 15 to 18 years old. Other possible employers such as service station owners and grocers hesitate to employ this group because they are unskilled and

Representative Notes That Oregon Is Now at Crossroads

Representative Eymann noted Oregon is at the crossroads. It is the only state which uses the initiative and referendum so extensively. No tax bill can be passed into law automatically. There must be a 90-day period following the legislative session to allow residents to petition that the measure be submitted to a vote.

The state legislature felt it waited until the normal November election period the possible resulting cut in the budget would be severe, Eymann explained. Oregon is one of the few states which has no deficit budget spending.

In listing the potential areas for cuts, Kennedy pointed out that the game commission expenditures cannot be reduced since its income is from hunting, fishing licenses and game tags and not from the state general fund. The state highway commission also uses no general funds. Its money comes from gas taxes.

"Even if all general agencies were abolished, the state would still need $6 million to meet its deficit," Kennedy said.

Listing possible cuts, he mentioned a possible $15 to $30 million cut from basic school funds, elimination or cuts in programs for blind children, physically handicapped, retarded children and able and gifted.

County School Superintendent McKevold remarked that Jackson and Josephine county educators have foreseen the tax problem and have spent considerable

School Board Hears Reports on Various Subjects at Meeting

Six temporary classrooms at Medford High school have been well received by teachers and students, school district administrators reported to the school board last night.

Administrators said teachers find the classrooms are away from noisy corridors, and students find them somewhat more informal than regular classrooms in the main building.

The report was one of several presented at the school board last night.

An enrollment report as of Sept. 17 indicated what had been predicted in enrollment trends for the district. The increase in the elementary level is .3 of one per cent, from 4,699 last year to 4,714 as of Tuesday. Increase Is Expected

Dr. Leonard B. Mayfield, superintendent, noted that this slight increase was expected, as was the 13 per cent increase in the number of high school students enrolled. High school enrollment increased from 1,810 to 2,041. Enrollment in the two junior high schools increased from 2,177 to 2,261, or 4 per cent.

The total number of students in the district this year is 9,016, compared to 8,686 last year, an overall increase of 3.8 per cent.

A report also was given on the regional meeting of the Oregon School Boards association in Medford Monday evening at which the tax program was discussed by area legislators.

Permission Granted

Also reported was permission being granted for the use of Hoover school Oct. 14 for a talk by former Representative John Rouselot of California. Rouselot is the southern California coordinator for the John Birch Society.

Rouselot's visit here is being sponsored by a group of local residents interested in the organization. His talk will be on "Disarmament."

Dr. Mayfield noted in reporting the meeting that it was the district's policy to grant permission for use of school buildings if the meeting was for public information and no admission charge was collected.

Dr. Mayfield also reported on a meeting with union and contractor representatives concerning school district construction. The meeting, he said, apparently stemmed from construction of temporary classrooms.

Constructed by District

He pointed out that district personnel constructed the buildings, noting that no additional workers were hired for the job and it was the only way they could have been constructed because of the amount of money budgeted for them.

Dr. Mayfield told the representatives that in the future if temporary buildings are anticipated, estimates will be obtained, funds included in the budget, and bids called for construction of them.

The board authorized a payment to Edson and Pappas, architects who have been working on the Lone Pine school addition, and authorized purchase of a 73-passenger school bus.

The bus was used as a demonstrator, but has a new bus
