Special Election Will Cost About $1 for Each Vote

By ZAN STARK

Salem (UPI)—It will cost Oregon taxpayers from 75 cents to $1 a vote to determine the future of the $60 million state income tax increase measure at the Oct. 15 special election. Estimates are that between 300,000 and 350,000 persons will vote. Secretary of State Howell Appling Jr. estimates the election will cost between $230,000 and $275,000. The legislature set a $300,000 limit on the cost. Normally, counties pay about 70 per cent of the cost of elections and the state about 30 per cent. But because the legislature set aside a special date for the tax referendum vote, it has to pay the full cost.

Cost Broken Down

Present estimates are $2,275 for election supplies, $7,200 for official and sample ballots, $135,480 for salaries for election board workers, $18,000 for rental of polling places, $13,000 for printing of the voters' pamphlet, $7,200 for postage, and $2,500 for addressing and mailing of voters' pamphlets.

In addition to this $209,555, there will be the cost of transporting election workers and supplies, and other miscellaneous charges that could add $50,000 or $60,000 to the base estimate.

Appling already has notified county clerks of procedures to be followed, and outlined what the state will and will not pay.

IT'S YOUR LAW

Respect for Law Makes Democracy Live

Editor's note: The following article was prepared as a public service by the Oregon State Bar and is not intended to be legal advice. Persons having a legal problem should consult an attorney.

LANDLORD AND TENANT

A lease is a contract between a landlord and a tenant to permit the tenant to occupy real property in return for payment of rent. If the lease is for longer than one year, it must be in writing to be legally enforceable.

Generally, leases, like other important contracts, should be in writing, even if for a short time. Terms of any oral contract are sometimes difficult to prove in the event of a dispute.

For a residence, as well as for other property, the landlord may well ask the tenant to sign a lease. As a rule, such a lease provides in detail for the rights and duties of the parties including the payment of rent, the tenant's or landlord's duty to keep the premises clean and to repair, the landlord's right to inspect during the tenancy, and his remedies if the terms are not observed. Such a lease should not be signed until carefully read and understood.

When a landlord and tenant say nothing about the term of an enforceable lease, such term will be for the same period as that for which rent is paid. Thus if rent is paid for one week, the term is from week to week. If paid for one month, the term is from month to month. This becomes important if the landlord or tenant wants to end the lease. To do so, written notice must be actually given by one to the other for one term in advance, but not longer than thirty days.

Some common questions and answers are:

Q: If I pay my rent by the month can the landlord hold me for another month's rent if I move without notice?

A: At least 30 days written notice must be served; hence you may be liable for a month's rent if the landlord is unable to re-rent.

Q: I have signed a lease which has two years to run. Can I be held responsible for the rent if I move out before the end of the term?

A: Yes, but landlord must make a reasonable attempt to minimize his loss by renting to another similar tenant. Even if he does, you remain liable for the difference between the lease rental and the rent the landlord can collect from another tenant.

Q: Must I sign the lease the landlord presents to me?

A: No. It is quite proper to bargain over the particular provisions of a lease. The landlord may cut out or change parts of the lease to which the tenant reasonably objects.
