Antique Cash Box 'Unearthed'

One of the fascinations of collecting American antiques comes when the searcher unearths an odd piece invented by some ingenious, pioneering ancestor to meet a special need. A precious find of this sort invariably brings with it the twin mysteries of the antique's precise function and the period of history in which it was born.

A classic example of such a rare discovery rests in the superb Durrell Farm museum maintained by the Union Fork and Hoe company of Columbus, Ohio. This unusual antique is a walnut box 9 1/4 inches high, 12 5/16 inches long and 7 5/16 inches deep.

It is, apparently, a device for making change quickly, and may well be the first rudimentary cash register, one not intended for other than personal use and convenience, by the maker. A hinged lid opens to give access to 8 cylindrical receptacles, each of these lined with a brass tube to hold coins. What makes this piece especially fascinating is that in front of the box, where there is a hand-knob to be pulled for each coin receptacle, the denominations of the coins in the receptacle are painted on the box. And, included in the usual range of coins from one cent to one dollar, are the two cent and three cent coin variety.

When the proper knob is pulled a coin from the proper tube will fall into the operator's hand via a narrow opening at the bottom of the box.

U. S. Mint Assists
The problem of determining when the change box had been made was difficult, but was solved with the assistance of the Honorable Eva Adams, director of the mint. After studying the inside diameters of the brass tubes the director came up with two dates which set the probable range in which the cash box was made. She reported:

"Production of the two cent coin ceased in 1872, and, though these coins continued to circulate for some years after the discontinuance of minting, it is unlikely that a manufacturer would have provided for the denomination in such a device. Furthermore, the five cent piece first was manufactured in 1866. Prior to that year, a silver half-dime was in use.

"It appears, therefore, that the date of construction of the device may have been in the period 1866 through 1872."

First Lt. Beverly Cameron, who is assigned to duty with the United States Air Force at a weather station near London, England, was recently home briefly while on temporary duty in this country. Lt. Cameron, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Good, 1970 Sunset drive, enlisted in 1959, spent six months at officer candidate school and was stationed in Denver for two years before going abroad. She has been in England since January, 1962. Lt. Cameron spent some time in North Bend with Mr. and Mrs. George Barton, friends, before returning to England. The officer was graduated from Medford High school and attended Southern Oregon college.

Hose Will Come In Five-Pack

United Press International
One way to save on stocking bills comes from buying several in the same shade to stretch the pairing possibilities. Now, Insider's Newsletter reports that one manufacturer is producing a five-pack. The manufacturer claimed that consumer tests showed customers received longer wear from five of the same than from four pairs of four different brands.

Coming back into fashion is the chemise, which last had its big popularity in the flapper era. This frilly undergarment prevents display of bare skin when overblouse and skirt part company as you reach or stretch. It's above-knee length also prevents the fashion sin of slip showing with the short, short skirts.

For teens and college girls, new knee-high hosiery for wear with short skirts or kilts carry a heart and flowers message. The socks, laced at the top with grosgrain ribbon, have hearts stitched on the side, or wool-embroidered flowers. On one version, the word "amour" runs down the calf.

Sportswear now influences the sleepwear designs for the younger girl. One sleep suit is inspired by a swimsuit from the early 1900's, with knee-length pants and crew-necked, long-sleeved top. The material is a horizontal striped cotton knit.

The trend to simplicity of line in adult footwear carries over for fall into children's shoes. Leather boots for little girls either are free of ornamentation or sport a simple buckle or turned-down cuff.

Women's Council Formed For Fair

NEW YORK (UPI)—A Women's Advisory Council has been formed for the New York 1964-65 World's fair. The committee will receive, advise, entertain and aid prominent women and women's groups at the fair.

Mrs. Harlan Bosworth Jr., a most active and earnest worker for the United Nations cause, is in New York this week for the opening session of the UN. In a wire to The Mail Tribune, Mrs. Bosworth said that she had attended the opening session of the General Assembly and that ceremonies had been held to commemorate the second anniversary of the death of Dag Hammarskjold, former secretary-general.

"This session is most important due to the signing of the nuclear test ban treaty and implications awakening interest in human rights," Mrs. Bosworth's wire said. "One hundred and 12 nations will contribute to the United Nations efforts toward ending war forever."

Prior to the opening of the General Assembly of the UN, the plenary assembly of the World Federation of United Nations associations was held at UN headquarters. Two hundred delegates from all over the world attended, and divided into four commissions to work on education and information, political matters, general program, budget, economic and social problems.

We read only this morning an editorial in which the writer said persistence is bringing about progress in the desegregation of public schools in this country. Perhaps the same can be said of the UN efforts to bring about world peace — persistence is making progress.

Not long ago the Manchester Guardian of England reported on the return to that country of Professor Sir Bernard Lovell who had been asked by Russian scientists to act as an intermediary in arranging East-West discussions on the wisdom of trying any further to put a man on the moon.

Sir Bernard held a press conference after returning to England — he had spent three weeks in Russia — and said that he would make reports to Lord Hallsham, Minister for Science, and to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in America on the content of talks he had had with the President of the Soviet Academy, the man in scientific charge of Russia's space program.

One of Sir Bernard's statements at the press conference struck us as particularly telling. "Three weeks ago I would have said that America and Russia were in a life and death struggle. Now I believe the Americans are only racing themselves."

Gardeners Take Annual Tour In Montague

MONTAGUE—Though Thursday, September 12 was a most windy day for Montague and vicinity, the Shasta Valley Garden club conducted the annual fall garden tour.

Assembling at the home of Mrs. Frank Kouts, a group of 10 women viewed the spacious lawn, shade trees and many flower beds setting off her large Victorian style home on a corner lot in Montague. While there they also admired the yard, garden and orchard of Mrs. Kouts' brother-in-law, Allen Williams, who lives nearby in a trailer house. All agreed it was a remarkable sight for a maintained yard.

The next stop of the tour was the ranch home and setting of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Prather. Their home is surrounded by many old shade trees, green lawns and flower beds, and a pool of water lilies.

Though their member, Mrs. M. T. Robinson, was not at home the group motored to her home north of Montague. As well as many flowers, the Robinsons have an orchard which they have grown in a surprisingly short time.

Back in Montague the caravan stopped to see the yard of Mrs. Mable French, then went to Little Shasta where the women admired the many flowers in the yard of Mrs. Henrietta Terwilliger and Mrs. Larry Walters.

After marveling at the yard of one of their eldest members, Mrs. Aldee Davis, whose specialty is dahlias, the women went indoors to escape the wind while eating their sack lunches.

After viewing the yards at the Davis ranch following lunch, a plant exchange ended the day.
