

Floor Covering This Year Is Colorful

When it comes to decorating the floor for fall, wall to wall carpeting and area rugs each have their champions — but on one point both sides are agreed. Wall to wall or area rug, the floor covering must be colorful.

Color on the floor has been steadily gaining in popularity as new fibers and finishes introduce soft and stain resistance and easy cleaning to make colorful carpets practical. This fall color takes the floor in deep, rich tones.

Vibrant reds and blues reflect the Mediterranean influence. Bold greens and blue-green combinations, shades of yellow and orange, and even vivid pink make color news for carpeting.

More akin to the neutral hues but still with richness and depth are smoky charcoal, earthy browns, olive, rust, gold and bronze. Interesting textures add to the opulent air.

Area rugs introduce new shapes and sizes, including ovals, octagons, scalloped circles. Scatter rugs get a design boost, with interesting textures and patterns.

LEATHER BOOT — Adapted from the riding boot is this knee-high waxy leather boot, lined in suede. For comfort are zippered closing, low heel and flexible leather sole.

Window Covers Now Have Decorative Use

Homemakers today are re-discovering the window shade. And no wonder, for the once-humble and utilitarian window coverings now have decorative stature.

Available in a wide range of colors, textures and designs, window shades can be coordinated to room decor or can become important focal points on their own.

Among the variety of textures are: embroidered lawn, with silken designs on fine white lawn; boucle and plisse weaves; homespun, a nubby linen-and-cotton weave; shantung, an attractively tailored texture; and baroque, all-over design printed on fine percale.

BULBS SUFFER
NEW YORK (UPI) — Last winter's severe winter in Europe is expected to reduce Holland's 1963 flower bulb exports by 25 per cent to 30 per cent from 1962.

PLAID PATTERN — An inverted plaid pattern lends distinction to this sport jacket classically designed in American wool, with slim notched lapels.

RESEARCH
NEW YORK (UPI) — The use of prison inmates as medical guinea pigs is growing. Upjohn Co. is building a $261,000 research lab inside the walls of Southern Michigan prison. Parke, Davis and Co., another drug firm, plans a similar facility there.

S. Africa Nearing Segregation Goal

By DAN PIENAAR
JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — The South Africa Government is in the middle of a five-year plan calling for the expenditure of 57 million pounds sterling ($159,600,000) to speed up its apartheid policy of segregation.

By the time the plan is completed in 1966, the government will have erected 35 new African towns, housing almost half a million Negroes. All these towns will be inside the borders of the Bantustan native areas.

At the same time, the government is inducing local and foreign investors to set up industries near these towns — but on the white side of the border.

These border industries are a key part in the scheme to partition South Africa into a checkerboard of black states which, the government says, will finally achieve full autonomy from the white central government.

Basically the idea is to drain off all but the essential black population from the white urban and agricultural areas.

Right now the population of about 11 million blacks is more or less evenly split into those in the cities, those on white farms and those living in the tribal reserves which are destined to become Bantustans.

May Make Limit
The government is considering legislation which would limit the number of black domestic servants to one allowed to live on the premises of his white employer.

There are a number of reasons for the speeding up of this partition plan which was first advanced by Premier Verwoerd as long ago as 1951.

First is the growing international pressure from both friends and enemies abroad which makes it imperative for the Pretoria government to push the scheme into a speedy reality.

Diplomatic observers here say such friendly Western nations as Britain and the United States are finding it increasingly hard to defend South Africa at the United Nations.

"If this plan became a reality and these states did achieve self-government, it may be possible for the West to stave off the attacks of the Afro-Asian and Communist blocs," one diplomat said.

On the other hand, Verwoerd has intimated that if the "winds of change" attacks from an independent Africa can be staved off long enough for him to implement his policy, "we may see a change in the attitude of some African states."

Pressing Need
The other pressing need for implementation of the Bantustan plan is the black population explosion.

It has been estimated that the current black population will have doubled itself by the turn of the century. "This calls for a tremendous effort on our part to get these new black states into economic shape," a government official said privately.

Already British and Australian firms have opened border industries in white areas touching on the Bantustans.

Through this scheme and others like it, we will build up a solid Bantu middle class, people with the dignity of home ownership," an official government spokesman said.

"The Bantu will commute to work as do thousands of whites, and will be encouraged to play exactly the same part in the civic affairs of their towns as the whites do in their areas."

Several of the schemes already are a reality. Standing 21 miles northwest of Pretoria is the township of Ga-Rankuwa, meaning "The Place Where The White Man Used To Live."

It now has 1,500 houses built by black artisans and contractors.

Even the bricks and other building materials were bought from black-owned and operated factories.

Eventually the town will have a black population of 60,000.

There are several newly-established factories operating at Rosslyn, four miles across the border in a white area. Only Bantu living in Ga-Rankuwa will be allowed to work in these factories.

Meanwhile, other parts of the five-year plan calls for construction of roads and bridges in the Bantu areas.

This and a scheme for improved farming methods by construction of irrigation dams and canals form an important link in the drive to eventually get these embryo black states onto a viable economic footing.

Millions of New Homes To Be Built

NEW YORK (UPI) — About 17 million new homes will be needed during the 1960's to maintain present U.S. housing standards, according to housing authorities at Allied Chemical's Barrett division.

About 75 per cent of the houses will be roofed with asphalt shingle and 80 per cent will have interior drywall construction.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Molecules of hydrogen gas actually can crack hardened steel, says Alloy Rods company. Hydrogen present in gas around a welding arc is turned loose in the steel as individual atoms which diffuse through pores in the metal, then unite to form molecular hydrogen.

Since the hardened steel cannot stretch to relieve the pressure of the expanding hydrogen, enough accumulated gas will crack it.
