

Newspaper Strike Declared Illegal

PORTLAND (UPI) — A National Labor Relations Board trial examiner has ruled again that a strike against the Oregonian and the Oregon Journal newspapers here is illegal.

Martin S. Bennett of S. A. Francisco reaffirmed a decision he made Oct. 20, 1960. He said that the Portland Local of the Electrotypers and Stereotypers Union struck to enforce international union work rules and not for economic reasons as the union claimed.

The ruling followed admission to evidence of a magazine article written by James A. Thompson, a member of the executive committee of the local who participated in contract negotiations prior to the strike.

Thompson said in the article, which appeared in the December, 1962, issue of the International Electrotypers and Stereotypers Union Journal, that the strike was not called for economic reasons but to "uphold the unions' international laws on working conditions."

The unions contended that Thompson was expressing a personal viewpoint. The strike against the two newspapers began Nov. 10, 1959. They have continued to publish.
