

TAKE ANOTHER LOOK — San Franciscans revealed that it was just a couple of other seeking their lunch-hour sunshine in Union citizens seeking the same sunshine. That's Pete Square were treated to what appeared to be an Nelson mopping his brow. His friend preferred eye-catching mirage. However, a close look to remain anonymous. (UPI)

Family Council

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor, and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors. (Copyright 1963—General Features Corp.)

Jeanne G.—I first come alive in the afternoon and evening. Alex G. — She hasn't had breakfast with me since the honeymoon.

Jeanne G. — Al and I have been married eight months. Our problem is that we're never sleepy at the same time. He had me fooled while he was courting me. Maybe he took naps or drugs, but he managed to stay awake evenings at the theatre or watching TV. Now I've learned his preferred bedtime is 9 p.m. And I've never been sleepy before midnight. Naturally he's bright-eyed at 6 a.m., which is still deep night to me.

Alex G. — The only good part of our problem is Jeanne can tell me how all the TV plays I fall asleep at turn out. Otherwise it's maddening. I've excused her from breakfasts because she dragged herself around like a sleep-walking zombie. We manage a late brunch together on Sundays. It's true she prepares wonderful dinners for me, but they drag on. I grow drowsy by dessert-time, while she gets peppier.

The Council: No pamphlet on How to Choose a Mate reminds folks to ask: "Are you an a.m. or a p.m. personality?" Of course it's not as vital a matter as compatible blood-type combos, but it can prove netting indeed to be married to someone who's always full o'pep when your pooped, and vice versa.

We learn that Sumner Long, the playwright, made it clear to his wife before marriage that he preferred to work from midnight to dawn, sleep from dawn to noon. With her OK, he was able to write, "Never Too Late" that way, and stay happily married. Evidently she "adjusted."

Jeanne and Alex can, too. It's not easy, because these different tempos are tied up with basal metabolism and the endocrine system. Some of us have quicker furnaces inside. Others, like Jeanne, take half a day to warm up. The rapprochement will never be perfect, but it can improve through effort and tricks for staying awake longer (Alex), waking up sooner (Jeanne), and being good pals for more hours in-between.

Research Clinic Slated by Navy in Oakland, Calif.

Businessmen interested in the industrial development of Southwestern Oregon will soon have an opportunity to participate in a conference aimed at providing information on Navy Research and Development requirements, Congressman Robert B. Duncan (D-Ore.) has reported.

Scheduled in Oakland, Calif., from Oct. 16-18, the Pacific Southwest Navy Research and Development Clinic will be geared to enlist private industry in the solution of Navy technical problems, to improve current weapons systems and to expedite the progress of new ones.

"Many of these Navy contracts—especially the sub-contracts—are in the electronics or small components fields and may be suitable for production in southern Oregon," Duncan pointed out. "As a member of Congress, I want to do whatever I can to help in expanding and diversifying industry in the 4th Congressional District of Oregon."

Sponsored by Navy The Clinic is being sponsored by the Department of the Navy. Approximately 1,200 representatives of industry, small business firms and academic institutions from 14 western states are expected to attend.

"We have designed a program to be of specific interest to small businessmen," according to Vice Admiral (Ret.) Murrey L. Royer, Oakland Chamber of Commerce representative.

Duncan's office said that all persons planning to attend the conference should send their name, title, organization and address to Clinic Coordinator Ken Moeller, 1320 Webster st., Oakland 12, Calif. A fee of $40 should accompany the registration. Housing reservations will also be made by Moeller upon request.

Congressman Duncan said he would attend the Clinic if other congressional duties permit.

Island City Store Loses NLRB Case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A National Labor Relations board trial examiner has recommended that Hyde's Super Market of Island City, Ore., be ordered to halt unfair labor practices against Local 1612 of the Retail Clerks union.

Examiner Henry S. Sahn found the store guilty of refusing to honor a contract agreed on April 1 and with promising wage increases if employees failed to recognize the union.

Sahn held a hearing on the case in La Grande July 23-24. The loss was partly covered by insurance.
