JFK Addresses Monetary Experts on Outflow of Gold

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy told an international gathering of monetary experts today that this country's effort to stop the outflow of gold is not only the U. S. interest but "the interest of all who place their faith in the dollar."

Kennedy told the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund that the United States is determined to protect the dollar as convertible currency at its present rate fixed to gold at $35 an ounce. He also used the occasion of his speech to plug again for his tax cut bill pending in the U. S. Senate.

The President, speaking only two hours after his return from a 10,000-mile swing to the Far West, said tax reduction would help improve the long-run position of the United States in world business and monetary affairs.

Mme. Nhu Guarded Against Violence By French Police

PARIS (UPI)—Police guarded South Viet Nam's Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu today against possible violent demonstrations by hundreds of South Vietnamese students living in Paris.

Mme. Nhu, the sister-in-law of President Ngo Dinh Diem, arrived in Paris from Rome Sunday night amid security precautions surpassed only by those decreed for President Charles de Gaulle at the height of terrorist attacks in 1961 and 1962, according to police.

Police held back about 100 American and Vietnamese students waiting at Orly Airport to cheer Mme. Nhu. Some of them carried eggs they said they had planned to throw at her.

Spokesmen for the anti-Nhu group said they included both Roman Catholic and Buddhist Vietnamese, angered by government policies including alleged persecution of Buddhists. They said the American students were aroused by Mme. Nhu's recent criticisms of Americans in Viet Nam.

Foe of Ben Bella Rejects Official Dismissal Order

Troops Placed On General Alert

ALGIERS (UPI)—The dissident commander of the Algerian 7th Military District in the opposition stronghold of Tiz-Ouzou today rejected a government edict dismissing him and ordered his battle-hardened troops on general alert.

Col. Mohand Ou El Hadj, known as "the old man" to the men he led in Algeria's 7½-year war of independence from France, announced through a spokesman he will not bow to the order issued by President Ben Bella. He said he would continue his command in the rugged Grand Kabylia region east of Algiers where opposition leaders, backed by regional civilian and military authorities, launched a movement against the "illegal" government of Ben Bella in a mass rally Sunday.

Dissident Berber leader Hocine Ait Ahmed led the demonstration of some 3,500 adherents in Tiz-Ouzou, 60 miles east of Algiers, and exhorted "all militants to begin a decisive fight" against the one-party Ben Bella regime.

Tension mounted today between the two-week-old strongman government headed by Ben Bella and the clandestine "Front of Socialist Forces" which is headed by Ait Ahmed and of which El Hadj is a member. A test of strength appeared inevitable.

Ben Bella, caught by surprise by the mass anti-government demonstration, branded Col. Mohand as an adventurer.

Dismissal Ordered

Following an emergency cabinet meeting, the president ordered his dismissal and placed the 7th Military Region under direct orders of the Defense Ministry.

Troops of the 7th Military District made no move to intervene Sunday when the anti-government forces staged their demonstration in Tiz-Ouzou. Col. Mohand himself appeared on the speakers' platform along with the government prefect governor of the Kabylia region.

Today, a spokesman for the rebellious commander said: "Col. Mohand remains at the head of the 7th Region."

Prospect Man Hospitalized After Sunday Assault

A complaint was filed this morning against Rancy Jones, 24, of Los Angeles, on a charge of grand larceny, auto, after he was arrested on Highway 232 north of Fort Klamath Sunday afternoon in connection with an assault case in Jackson county earlier, after which the injured man's car was stolen.

Jones was arraigned in district court on the charge shortly after noon today with bail set at $5,000. His case was continued for appointment of a lawyer.

Jones is being questioned by officers regarding the assault of Joseph Albert Josephson, 54, of Prospect, who is reported in serious condition at Sacred Heart hospital.

According to Oregon state police, they were notified early Sunday morning that Josephson had been assaulted near his home. Mrs. Josephson told officers that a man called her shortly after midnight, saying that her husband had passed out. She said she went out of the house to find Josephson lying on the ground bleeding. She reentered the house to get help, the other man followed her and picked up a .22-caliber rifle in the living room. When Mrs. Josephson went into another room to look for a revolver the man left, taking Josephson's car.

Police later found the car abandoned at Ft. Klamath and arrested Jones about 12:30 p.m. as he was hitchhiking on Highway 232 north of there near Sun Mountain.

Prospect residents told police that Jones had arrived there Saturday afternoon and he and Josephson had been seen together at a local tavern.

Josephson is an employee of the U. S. Forest service for the Union Creek district.

McNamara and Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, conferred Sunday with President Ngo Dinh Diem, but no details of the talks were made public.

These sources also said Diem insisted anything less than continued all-out American support for the war would be a mistake.

Today, Taylor went to Ben Cat, a district capital 28 miles north of Saigon, where he heard Viet Nam's chief of staff predict victory over the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas by next year.

McNamara stayed in Saigon for talks with other members of the eight-man mission sent there by President Kennedy to assess the prospects of winning the guerrilla war and whether Diem's crackdown on the Buddhists has harmed these prospects.

Contents Secret

The contents of the draft — one of 17 awaiting council action — still are secret.

It is understood that the document enhances the authority and prestige of local bishops as partners of the Pope in the government of the Roman Catholic church. It also assigns a more important role to the Catholic laity in church life and contemplates the raising of deacons to an ecclesiastical rank.

One passage which may have an important bearing on Christian unity recognizes that all baptized Christians are in some way related to the mystical body of Christ even though non-members of the Catholic church.

At a press briefing following the closed session in St. Peter's Basilica, spokesman said the "general consensus" of the council fathers who spoke today was that the document is "acceptable as a whole and can be proceeded with as a vehicle for debate."

He said a formal vote on the general acceptability will be taken Tuesday. Then the council will proceed with a chapter by chapter debate on details of the document.

The spokesman said that most of the speakers today took the position that the new draft or "schema" is "a good foundation on which to build" and that it will be "helpful to the ecumenical movement."

The Pope made clear there is no question of repealing the dogma of papal infallibility formulated by the last Ecumenical Council in 1870. But he said the "time has now come" to spell out the relationship of the bishops to the Pope, and the way in which they share his authority as successors to the apostles.

Ecumenical Council Fathers Debate Definition Document

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Fathers of the Ecumenical Council opened the second session of their historic Vatican gathering today with debate on a document defining the nature of the church and their own authority.

They found it generally acceptable, although a number of changes were proposed.

The first working session of the reconvened council was devoted to general discussion of a draft document entitled "de ecclesia" — "about the church."

Webb attempted to call on Mayor Terry Schruck, but the mayor was meeting with a delegation of Japanese mayors.

President Kennedy had been tentatively scheduled to dedicate the Northwest Tower project last Friday, but called off his visit to Portland after the housing authority suggested it be canceled.

He said a formal vote on the general acceptability will be taken Tuesday. Then the council will proceed with a chapter by chapter debate on details of the document.

Affidavit Sought Regarding Salary

The Jackson county court is awaiting an affidavit from the Jackson County Juvenile Advisory council before it meets with the budget committee on an emergency salary allocation for the juvenile detention home, it was reported today.

The county court needs the affidavit to prove an emergency exists before it can refer the matter to the county budget committee. County Juvenile Supervisor Lawrence Tweedy has asked for $3,600 to hire a night relief man for the detention home. This would allow a $400 monthly salary for nine months or for the remainder of the present fiscal year.

Police Refuse Identification Of Suspects

'More Than Two' Being Questioned

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—Two white men were jailed early today in connection with a church bombing that killed four Negro girls.

Col. Al Lingo, head of the Alabama state police, refused to identify the suspects who were held on an open charge but a high police official said two men identified as R. E. Chambliss and Charles Cagle were being held for state authorities.

Both were previously connected with Ku Klux Klan activities in Alabama.

Chambliss, in his 50s, was once arrested for smashing a photographer's camera at a Klan rally in the Birmingham area and was one of the signers of papers to incorporate a Klan group in the 1950s.

Cagle, 22, lives in a rural area near Birmingham. He was one of six men arrested near Tuscaloosa prior to the first racial days prior to the first racial integration at the University of Alabama. Police said all six were en route to a Ku Klux Klan rally. Cagle was charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

The two suspects, their faces covered with small laundry packages that appeared to contain clean shirts, were hustled into the city jail during the pre-dawn hours.

Lingo, who was in on the interrogation of the suspects at state trooper district headquarters just outside Birmingham, said a number of suspects had been arrested at various times Sunday night. He had said "more than two" men were being questioned.

But when Lingo emerged from the city jail later turning the suspects over to the city, he indicated that those were the only two being held. Asked about his previous statement, he said "at that time there was more than two" suspects being questioned.

Lingo steadfastly refused to say who the suspects were and countered all questions from newsmen with "no statement."

Birmingham has had 22 bombings since 1956 — all un-solved. More than $76,000 in reward money has been offered for information leading to conviction of the bombers.
