Legislators Discuss Tax Measure

An explanation of the tax measure which will be referred to Oregon voters October 15 was given by Jackson county's four legislators Saturday at a meeting of the Medford League of Women Voters. Talking to almost 90 members and guests of the non-partisan group at Rogue Valley Country club were Representatives John Dellenback, James Redden and Edward Branchfield, and Senator Lyndel Newbury.

The tax discussion was preliminary to an extensive study of the Oregon taxation system and fiscal policies which has been undertaken by the League of Women Voters of Oregon.

At Saturday's meeting Senator Newbury traced the system of state budgeting. He reviewed the two main sections of the budget, i.e. the "dedicated fund" from specific taxes for specific programs, such as the highway or fish and game budgets, and the general fund, which provides for remaining state operations.

Budget said "Tight" The senator pointed out that the present budget has been studied "line by line" through the legislative process and he concluded that after long examination he had found it "a pretty tight budget."

Representative Branchfield, who said he, personally, will vote "yes" for the bill, explained the progression of the bill through the legislature. He stressed the repeated examinations and revisions of the legislation in its appearances before the House and Senate committees.

The content of the referral measure was discussed by Representative Redden. He said that after 141 days the legislature "did face up to some problems" and now it is hoped that a people of Oregon also will face up to the state's financial situation. He explained a number of specific changes in the referred measure compared to the old tax law.

Representative Dellenback, whose topic concerned implications of the tax bill, declared that the present "subjective analysis of the measure is a fine experiment, an example of democracy in action." He reminded the audience that the process of initiative and referendum available to Oregonians "is not available in many, many other states."

He urged voters to consider carefully the measure and to understand that voting "yes" or "no" will mean voting for or against the measure, itself, not the referral issue.

The representative explained that if the bill is defeated, the governor may attempt to cut $50 million from the budget, or may call a special session of the legislature. Because of the major size of the cut required, Dellenback predicted that a special session would be called, in such a session, he said, the budget could be cut $50 million; a new tax program could be passed to raise such a deficit; or a combination of the two actions could be adopted.

The legislators answered a number of questions from the audience following their talks. The meeting was the first general membership session of the Medford League of Women Voters this fall.
