

Christine Keeler Swore Revenge, Witness Asserts

LONDON (UPI) — A witness testified today that call girl Christine Keeler, in a mood she never displayed to ex-War Minister John Profumo or any of her other famous friends, swore she would "get" a discarded Jamaican lover who had tried to see her again.

A capacity crowd in dingy Marylebone Magistrate's Court heard further revelations of the other side of the double life of the girl who started the Profumo scandal with tea on the stately lawns of Lord Astor's estate.

The witness, bearded West Indian Clarence Camacchio, said he was present the night of April 17-18 when Aloysius (Lucky) Gordon, a jazz singer, grappled with her at the door of her home.

"I'm going to get him," he quoted the 22-year-old redhead as saying later. "I'm not going to let him get away with this."

Perjury Charged
Miss Keeler and three co-defendants are being given a hearing in magistrate's court on charges of conspiracy and perjury in framing Gordon into a three-year jail term. His sentence was quashed by the court of criminal appeal.

The prosecution charges that Miss Keeler told police that injuries she had actually received earlier that night in a punch-and-kick battle with an ex-convict were caused by Gordon.

Her co-defendants are her apartment mate, Paula Hamilton-Marshall, 23, her housekeeper, Mrs. Olive Brooker, 56, and a West Indian chauffeur, Rudolph Truello Fenton.

Dropped in for Food
Camacchio, who is serving a term for living on the immoral earnings of his wife, said that he used to visit Miss Hamilton-Marshall and had dropped in for some food on the night in question.

Camacchio did not mention John Hamilton-Marshall, brother of Paula, who testified Wednesday that he kicked a and punched Miss Keeler in a fight over her charge he had examined her private papers. One of his punches opened a cut over her eye — evidently some time before Gordon appeared on the scene.

Two Employment Services Merge

The merger of two employment services in Medford was announced today.

Dorothy Adams of Medford Employment Service and Phyllis Cullop of Cullop's Employment Service are combining their businesses "to be better able to handle a larger volume of business," they explained.

The two will operate under the name of Medford Employment Service at 216 East Main st. in offices above Rath's.

Mrs. Cullop was formerly located at 104 East Sixth st., Medford.

Both women emphasized that it was the growth of business that had influenced them in effecting the merger. Their goal will continue to be "more service to the employer and more job selection for the employee."

Mrs. Adams entered the employment service here June 4, 1962, and Mrs. Cullop in March, 1963.

Public Domain Timber Claimed

PORTLAND—(UPI)—A Longview, Wash., timberman has filed a Federal Court action here claiming 30 acres of public domain timber in Oregon.

Carl E. Forsberg named Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall as defendant. The land is in the Alsea-Rickreall area of the Bureau of Land Management's Salem district.

The action asks for review of an administrative decision and honoring of Forsberg's right to select land in connection with certificates he had purchased in 1960, entitling him to select 30 acres of non-mineral, public domain lands.

Forsberg said he was told he could have title to the 30 acres in the Alsea-Rickreall management area but later the BLM said he could not have the land because it contained timber stands valued at more than $150,000. He said existence of timber did not defeat his right to the lands.

Osteopaths Elect Officers for Year

The Southern Oregon Society of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons recently met at Kim's restaurant for the annual session of the association.

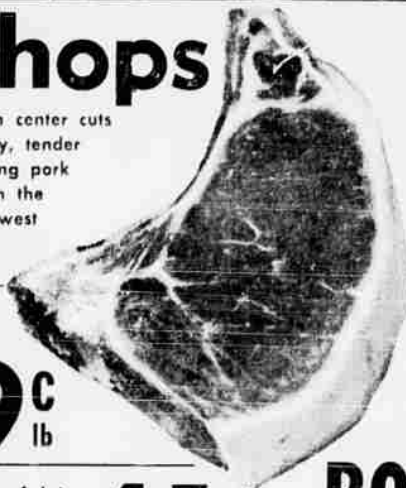

Officers were elected at the meeting. They are Dr. Anthony E. Bock, president; Dr. Cleve Lemley, vice president; and Dr. Raymond Henshaw, secretary-treasurer. Dr. Max Phoenix was continued in his second year as southern Oregon delegate to the state association.
