Red Cross Orientation Planned

Jackson County chapter of the American Red Cross will conduct an orientation program in the chapter house, 60 Hawthorne avenue, Tuesday, October 8, from 9 a.m. until 12 noon.

This is an annual program to familiarize volunteers, board members and persons interested in the Red Cross with the scope of activities performed. Mrs. Frank Fairweather, local volunteer field consultant, will be in charge of the orientation and will be assisted by chairmen of the various services.

The program will include a brief history of the Red Cross as well as an explanation of the moral and legal obligation to serve during times of disaster and as a medium of communication between the people and their Armed Forces. The permissive and supporting services will be explained by the local chairmen.

Volunteers are always needed, according to Mrs. C. Reese Braley, recruitment chairman. This program offers anyone wishing to volunteer some time to community service an opportunity to get acquainted with local workers and decide in what field they would be most effective.

Board members and current volunteers who have not had this course of instruction, are required to attend. Anyone interested in Red Cross service will be welcomed at the orientation program Mrs. Braley indicated.
