Navajos Appeal Drug Conviction

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (UPI)—Three Navajo Indians found guilty of using the cactus-derived narcotic peyote in religious ceremonies appealed their conviction Tuesday in U.S. District Court.

Judges Gerald Brown and Lloyd E. Griffin have 90 days in which to decide on the appeal motion.

In arguing for reversal of the conviction in Superior Court last Nov. 29, American Civil Liberties Union lawyer A. L. Wiron contended the defendants' constitutional rights of religion were violated when they were found guilty.

The defendants—Jack Woody, 29, Dinneville Trading Post, Ariz.; Dan Dee Nez, 52, Ludlow, Calif.; and Leon Anderson, Parker Dam, Calif.—had been placed on two-year's probation and each agreed to refrain from further use of the drug.

They were arrested in April 1962 in an Indian hogan.
