Episcopal Rector, Wife Plan Annual Open House

To mark the 14th anniversary of their arrival in Medford, the Rev. and Mrs. George R. V. Bolster will be hosts to members and friends of St. Mark's Episcopal church on Sunday, October 13. They will receive guests between two-thirty and five o'clock at the Rectory, 203 North Oakdale avenue.

The Bolsters came to Medford from Bend, Ore., September 16, 1949, where Mr. Bolster had been rector of Trinity church for 10 years. Each year since, the couple has held open house in the autumn. At each of these receptions Miss A. P. Livingston, sister of the late Major A. Livingston, Churchwarden emeritus, has been invited to be present as an honored guest.

Pouring and assisting Mrs. Bolster during the afternoon will be leaders of departments and organizations of the church, and wives of church officials.

Invited to pour will be Mrs. R. W. Dill, president of the Episcopal Church Women; Mrs. Earl Malbourn, president of St. Elizabeth's guild; Mrs. Ann Wirkkuk, president of St. Catherine's guild; Mrs. L. E. Edmonds, president of St. Teresa's guild; Mrs. Elwood Hedberg, president of the Altar guild; Mrs. R. D. Dames, president of The Daughters of The King; Mrs. N. H. Gladfelter, wife of the general superintendent of the Sunday schools; Mrs. E. C. Conrad, representing the church choir; Mrs. Paul J. Selby, wife of the senior warden; and Mrs. W. D. Jensen, wife of the junior warden.

Helping to welcome the guests during the first half of the afternoon will be Mrs. J. D. McPherson, church secretary; Mrs. Victor Milnes, wife of the key layman of the diocese; Mrs. Douglas Roach, wife of the key layman of the parish; Mrs. William Duhaime, wife of the clerk of the vestry; Mrs. Douglas Harsh, wife of the Young People's Fellowship advisor; Mrs. Hollis Kieff, wife of the church treasurer; and Mrs. Chris Barker, acolyte mother.

During the last half of the afternoon, the wives of the lay Readers will receive guests. They are Mrs. J. A. McDougall, Mrs. George Bruse, Mrs. C. H. Barrell, Mrs. George Brennan, and Mrs. Fred Strang.

Zuleima Club Presidents To Be Feted

Presidents of the thirteen Zuleima Nile clubs will be honored at a potluck luncheon and at the stated session of Zuleima temple, Daughters of the Nile, on Saturday, October 12 at Ashland Masonic temple. Luncheon will be at 12 noon and the meeting is scheduled for 1 o'clock.

Mrs. Arthur Peters, a past queen of the order, is luncheon chairman. She will be assisted by Mrs. Robert G. Morris, Mrs. Edwin H. Hahn, Mrs. Gayle Morris and Mrs. Willard J. Smith. Mrs. Claude Cox, Mrs. Ned Mars and Mrs. Walter Hamby will be in charge of decorations.

On Friday night, October 11, a group of local members will accompany Mrs. Murray Gardiner, temple queen, on her official visit to the South Douglas Nile club. Dinner will be at 7 p.m. in the parish hall of the Episcopal church at Riddle.

Monday night, October 14, Mrs. Gardiner will make the last of her 16 visits when she goes to Crescent Nile club, Crescent City, Calif. Dinner will be at 7 o'clock at the Harbor Grotto cafe. Those planning to accompany the queen are asked to telephone her before 5 o'clock Thursday evening at 772-6171 so that reservations may be made.

Doctor Durno To Be Speaker

Edwin R. Durno, M.D., a former congressman from this district, will speak at the next meeting of Jackson County Medical Assistants. It will be held Thursday, October 10, at 8 p.m. at Girls Community club.

Dr. Durno will speak of his experiences in Washington. Hostesses will be Mesdames Grace Jones, Marie Pierce and Margaret Elkins.

Medford Business and Professional Women's club will honor the 1963 Beep of the Week at a friendship dinner Thursday, October 10, at North's restaurant. The honored woman is Miss Gladys Durrand, elementary school supervisor for the 14 schools of District 549C, who was chosen for her outstanding contribution to "her community, club and job." Miss Durrand is shown here with a New Haven regulator clock which she purchased during the remodeling of a Coos Bay school where she was principal before coming to Medford. The clock, with spring wind, was removed when an electrical clock and buzzer system was installed at the school. At the time of the school's remodeling, the superintendent was Dr. Leonard B. Mayfield, who is now superintendent of District 549C. Miss Durrand collects antiques. (Knackstedt photo)

Volunteers for UNICEF Fund Drive Are Needed

As the date of Halloween approaches, further plans for the UNICEF fund drive by county school children are being made. Mrs. C. Rease Braley, local chairman for the United Nations agency has announced. The Jackson county drive will be conducted October 31.

More women are needed to assist in the various phases of the work and those who are interested are asked to call Mrs. Wallace Robinson, 29 Ross court, 773-1717 or Mrs. W. B. Hinkle, 2437 Capital avenue, 772-4336. Mrs. Braley emphasized that women who have been associated with UNICEF drives in other vicinities especially are invited to assist in the Jackson county drive.

The United Nations Children's fund is dedicated to helping children with food, medical and education help in depressed areas of the world. Any country which wants help from UNICEF must request it through the UN and that nation is required to match the funds given through UNICEF in a program of self-help. Agency doctors and nurses go to the nations being assisted for the purpose of teaching the native people the techniques of administering drugs or other curative methods, and once the local people are able to continue the program, the UNICEF personnel leaves the field of operation to go elsewhere to repeat the process.

MANOR-ISMS

By ETHELYN EVANS

This past spring one of our members, Gerald Wollam, was appointed a commissioner on the Jackson County Parks and Recreation commission. This appointment would seem to be in the nature of a "home town boy makes good" gesture. Mr. Wollam was born on his parents' farm in this vicinity, and he is a graduate of Medford High school.

Through the years he has often returned to the valley for hunting, fishing, hiking and exploring mountain trails, streams and lakes. Also, he photographs all these recreational areas and the wildlife therein.

At the University of California his catholicity of interest covered studies in anthropology and engineering — a wide range. After graduation he entered the radio division of the Westinghouse company and remained there for 37 years as plant manager in charge of expansion. Naturally, after retirement, he returned to Medford and the Manor to make his home and devote time to his diversified avocations and hobbies.

His interest in hunting led him to collaborate with a German gunsmith in designing and building an unusually fine rifle; and this same interest led him to become a member and now secretary of the Medford Rifle and Pistol club. The photographic angle of all this led him to perfect that hobby into the professional class, and he is at present vice president of the Southern Oregon Photographic association.

It is evident, however, that all the foregoing is merely secondary to his primary interest and hobby which is extensive travel, with a purpose, and people, particularly primitive peoples of diverse nationalities in tribes on their native and far-away home grounds; in their civilization, and in their economie adjustment to the modern world of today that is moving in on them rapidly.

The latest of Mr. Wollam's several trips into the Arctic in pursuit of this purpose was made this spring. In Alaska and the Aleutian Islands he made a first-hand study of the Eskimo and Indian tribes. All reports concerning Alaska from a number of different sources indicate that many native fishermen, hunters, makers of transportation items for water, snow and ice, and carvers of exquisite and readily salable ivory articles have been quick to learn about unemployment compensation, which seems quite like "manna from heaven" to them. He also observed the often disastrous rapidity with which these natives succumb to modern diseases and the efforts being made to combat these attacks.

I can give only a few "highlights." Fortunately, Mr. Wollam is preparing a documentary manuscript on this trip, as he has on other trips in the past. Eventually, it is hoped, the information may be available in the form of articles or a book. Now that he has retired, he can schedule his time to such a program.

We have at least four ardent stamp collectors in the Manor, so we had a very personal interest in the recent SOPEX exhibition. Dr. William B. Giles was chairman, so did not exhibit. But soon I shall have to write of his interesting career and absolutely fabulous stamp collection. Mrs. Graham Foote was in the process of having a big collection appraised and subsequently sold so she did not enter. Mrs. Edith Griffford's entry of Masonic stamps won a ribbon, as did Malcolm Melville's forms of Graf Zeppelin covers, and Mrs. Cora Maxwell also won with her unusual entry of foreign medicinal herb stamps. For each of these exhibits, Hiram Salisbury did his usual artistic job of free-hand lettering for identification and explanation, including the Latin and common names of the medicinal herbs and the drugs for which they were used.

Our Manorites numbered some 30 or 40 at the recent "tax talk" and luncheon put on by the Jackson County Federation of Republican Women and the Chamber of Commerce Roundtable. Some members popped up with very pertinent questions, also.

CORRECTION: Last week

I wrote about one of Dr. and Mrs. Hagman's Chinese foster daughters being in college at Corvallis, Ore. Taint so! This daughter is the wife of Dr. Chih Wong, director of the Radiation center at Oregon State university. One finds when making like a reporter that news via the third party is unreliable, and that even a hasty check at the source doesn't always suffice. Mrs. Hagman thought this reporter already knew details.

Announcing the debut of a superb dry skin deterrent: Special Formula Concentrate!

Special Formula Concentrate is a golden, flowing interplay of rare lubricating oils that performs absolute marvels for skin that's terribly dry. Each minute drop acts synergistically... that means the oils merge to produce much greater lubrication than the same oils would when applied one by one. Special Formula Concentrate glides on easily, disappears and goes to work helping to soften, smooth and pamper dry skin as you sleep or any time during the day. $10.00 and $17.50 plus tax.
