WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., charged today that the Kennedy administration inserted the controversial public accommodations section in its civil rights package merely to pressure southern legislators into accepting other sections of the bill.

While Kennedy did not veto the subcommittee's proposal, he was represented as leaning toward the administration's original federal elections only approach.

Cotton said the administration does not really expect Congress to pass the measure, which would outlaw discrimination in restaurants, hotels, lunch counters, motels and other public facilities. He said the law "would be a monstrosity and impossible to enforce."

Kennedy Wins Support Kennedy won major support in his drive to soften the bill Wednesday, despite cries of "sellout" from Negro civil rights leaders. As drafted by a judiciary subcommittee the bill is considerably stronger than the administration proposed.

The voting rights section of the subcommittee's bill would cover all municipal, state and federal elections, while the administration's proposal would cover only federal elections.

Two amendments are pending before the committee. One, submitted by Rep. William M. Tuck, D-Va., would throw out the whole section; the other, by Rep. Roland Libonati, D - Ill., would restore coverage to federal elections only.

Valachi Returned To Washington Cell

NEW YORK (UPI) — Underworld informer Joseph Valachi returned to his Washington, D.C. cell Wednesday night after testifying before a grand jury probing the foundation of local crime.

The greying former cell mate of Vito Genovese, reputed overlord of organized crime in 1959 of United States, talked so much Wednesday that he was tired and asked for a rest.

Valachi, his visit surrounded by some of the stiffest security measures ever witnessed here, told a Queens County Grand jury all he knew of the gangland assassination in 1959 of Anthony (Little Augie Pisano) Carfano.

Carfano was a top figure in the underworld when he was gunned down along with a blonde companion, Janice Drake. Valachi told Senate investigators that Genovese ordered Carfano's death.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

A STARTLING bit of repartee took place on a Boston subway train, bound for Harvard Square, recently. An obviously pitted gentleman noticed that a lady seated across the aisle was staring at him with obvious disdain. "Don't you look at me that way," he grumbled. "You're the ugliest woman I ever laid eyes on." "And you," she replied, "are the most disgracefully intoxicated man I ever saw." "True, true," he nodded before staggering off to the other end of the car, "but tomorrow morning I'll be sober."

A conservative old judge attended commencement exercises at the law school that had given him his degree years earlier. Next to him sat a young professor whose liberal views had been widely aired that year. The old judge rasped, "Well, Professor, I suppose you've been teaching these defenseless students of yours that the graduates of our time are just a bunch of pathetic, out-of-step, old fuddy-duddies?" "Not at all," smiled the professor. "We prefer to let them find that out for themselves."

Burns Escapee Meted 10 Years

BURNS (UPI) — Leonard Bogue, 17, whose two escapees from the city-county jail brought about the resignation of a jailer, was sentenced to 10 years in the Oregon Correctional Institution Wednesday.

Bogue, of Salem, was sentenced by Circuit Judge Jeff Dorroh Jr. on a grand larceny charge. He also received a concurrent three-year sentence for unlawful flight from custody.

Bogue broke out of the jail Sept. 28 and again last Saturday while awaiting a court appearance on auto theft charges. Both times he locked jailer Harold Weatherhead in a cell and took his keys. Each time the lock had to be drilled off to free the jailer.

After a 36-hour stay behind bars the last time, Weatherhead resigned.

Judge Dorroh ordered a presentence investigation for Patrick Penrod, 18, of Salem, who joined Bogue in the first escape. John King, 27, of the U.S. Air Force, who was Bogue's partner in the second escape, is still at large. Bogue was arrested Monday in Salem.

Mervin Hixson stated that imported dairy products from other countries are cutting into the United States dairymen's income. Charles Hockersmith said that there may be a shortage in the world sugar market because of the Cuban storm.

Lattie stated that the threats on the tax bill are not facts. He also explained how in some states a sales tax was started on a small scale and over a period of time has been increased until it too is large. He remarked that the state budget has gone up 70 per cent in just a few years.

Roger Ian Taylor, 27, of 2971 Diane st., Ashland, is in Ashland General hospital for treatment of a broken left ankle, bruises and lacerations following an accident late Wednesday.

According to Oregon state police, Taylor was riding a motor scooter north on Toleman Creek rd. and started to make a left turn when the scooter was struck from behind by a car operated by Talmadge Edward Kaylor, 16, of 2316 High way 66, Ashland.

In an earlier accident Wednesday two cars and a logging truck were involved on Highway 62 six miles north of Medford.

State police cited Lyle Edward Luncford, 21, of 611 Chestnut ave., for following too close after the logging truck he was operating struck the rear of a car driven by Paul Bishop Lowery, 43, of 255 Stewart ave. The Lowery car in turn hit a car operated by David Brant Jewkes, 27, of Oakland, which had slowed to make a right turn.

Douglas explained his measure in an interview as the Senate Finance Committee recalled Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon for a third cut bill, already passed by the House.

The House bill does not alter the present depletion allowance, nor did President Kennedy ask for any changes.

Oil Industry Tax Cut Target

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., said today he plans to introduce an amendment to the administration's tax cut bill which would hit at the oil industry's cherished "depletion allowance."

Douglas said his proposal would reduce the present "favorable" 27 1/2 per cent depletion allowance to 15 per cent for oil and gas companies with income in excess of $5 million a year. The amendment would bring in an estimated $400 million in additional taxes, he said.

Douglas explained his measure in an interview as the Senate Finance Committee recalled Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon for a third cut bill, already passed by the House.

The House bill does not alter the present depletion allowance, nor did President Kennedy ask for any changes.

Douglas said there was as much of an urgent need for structural revisions to close existing "loopholes" in the tax code as there was for a revision in high tax rates.
