Problems of United Nations Reviewed in Anniversary Week

(Editor's note: The following article was written by Carl M. Brophy, Medford, chairman of United Nations Week for the local chapter of the Oregon United Nations Association. United Nations Day will be observed Thursday, Oct. 24.)

By CARL M. BROPHY
On Oct. 24, the United Nations Charter will realize its 18th anniversary.

The General Assembly of the United Nations has resolved that Oct. 24 of each year should be dedicated to making known the purposes, principles and accomplishments of the United Nations; and by proclamation, the President of the United States has set that date as United Nations Day in America.

What we read, see on television and hear of the United Nations relates primarily to the proceedings before the General Assembly when it takes up such matters as the crises in the Congo and Cuba. When we see the United Nations dealing with problems of such magnitude we often experience a sense of discouragement at the progress made toward satisfactory and lasting solutions.

While it is true that many of the solutions or attempted solutions to the problems faced at the United Nations fall short of the goal, in most cases they avert more disastrous consequences and are steps in the right direction, often giving a basis for further progress.

Not Realistic Goals
There are those who say that the United Nations should be dissolved and that we should all go our separate ways, each finding a solution to his own problem. Such critics claim that the purposes and goals of the United Nations are not realistic.

Nothing could be farther from reality than those criticisms. In this era of almost instantaneous communication with the ever present and haunting

West Berlin Woman Arrested as Spy

BERLIN (UPI)—A West Berlin woman formerly employed as a typist for American interrogators has been arrested by police here on suspicion of being a Communist spy, U.S. officials said Saturday.

West Berlin police said the 30-year-old woman, identified only as Renate J., was placed under "investigative arrest" Thursday but has not been charged.

U.S. officials said the suspect had worked as a clerk-typist for American personnel who interrogated refugees from Communist East Germany at the West Berlin refugee center. The American officials, however, denied West Berlin police reports that the woman had served as chief translator for U.S. intelligence men during her employment at the refugee center between Dec. 1955 and June, 1960.

THIN COAT

NEW YORK (UPI)—FHA housing inspectors are using a gadget these days to scratch test the paint on a house to determine whether the paint is the right thickness, reports House and Home magazine. The pencil-sized plastic gauge has three teeth which cut the paint surface to depths of three, four and five thousandths of an inch. Four thousandths is the proper thickness for paint.

SENT TO HOSPITAL

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—George Rivera, 28, accused of deliberately running down and killing a Jehovah's Witness from Roseburg, Ore., was committed Wednesday to Atascadero State Hospital for the criminally insane.

threat of nuclear holocaust, world interdependence has become the reality and as a result, world order has become an absolute necessity.

Going our separate ways in the world has generally resulted in the use of armed force as the means of resolving disputes. Certainly the maintenance of our national strength is essential pending satisfactory world disarmament, but the use and threat of force as the basis on which to build a permanent world order is unrealistic in this nuclear age.

Must View Efforts
We must view the efforts and accomplishments of the United Nations not only in light of the tremendous problems with which it copes, but also in the light of the overwhelming need for a world forum in which to discuss and resolve world problems.

In addition, we should also attempt to better understand the many other areas of a less glamorous nature in which the United Nations is working. In some of these other areas, great things are being accomplished to raise the standards of less fortunate peoples and newly developed nations and to smooth frictions that have developed between neighbors.

This work, of which most of us know little or nothing, contributes greatly toward the development of an orderly society.

For example, in the Near East the United Nations Relief and Works Agency continues to feed and clothe over a million refugees and the United Nations Emergency Force patrols daily the armistice demarcation lines. The United Nations has an Economic Commission in Europe, Latin America, in the Far East and Africa where there are resident representatives, primarily in newly developed areas, providing essential technical and administrative guidance. In the Far East, the United Nations is assisting in arrangements for self-government and self-determination and is actively engaged in easing relations in those neighboring countries in dispute.

Embark Upon Study
The United Nations is also embarking upon a study of the problems involved in the exploration of outer space and celestial bodies.

Although there was a time when only Buck Rogers would dare consider travel to the moon now the only question appears to be whether a landing on the moon will be in eight years or less than eight years.

As a result, there are great legal questions to be answered in the not too distant future concerning ownership of celestial bodies, rights to the use of the natural resources there, the law that will govern activities in space and so on. A special committee of the United Nations on the peaceful uses of outer space has initiated studies of these problems and the United Nations has successfully adopted certain resolutions which provide some basic principles, including a resolution adopted in 1961 to the effect that international law and the Charter of the United Nations apply to space and celestial bodies.

Some of The Areas

These are but a few of the many areas in which the United Nations is working daily. If more of us were familiar with the vast scope of the work of the United Nations and its accomplishments, we would probably tend to be less critical and more appreciative of its place in our world society.

This week, United Nations Week, will give all of us an opportunity to better acquaint ourselves with the United Nations. To the extent that we can do so, all of us should participate; since a thorough understanding of the United Nations by all Americans, all of whom are directly involved in supporting it, is an essential element to its continued and necessary existence.

If it receives the interest and support of the peoples of the world, it can, as stated by President Kennedy in his last State of the Union Message, "... form the framework for a world of law—a world in which no nation dictates the destiny of another, and in which the vast resources now devoted to destructive means will serve constructive ends."

Grants Pass Ranch Wins Top Awards At Portland Show

GRANTS PASS — Hoots Angus Ranch of Grants Pass, top winner in its class at the recent Oregon State Fair, brought home still more champion honors this week from the highly competitive Aberdeen Angus Show at the Pacific International Livestock Exposition in Portland.

Represented in the show were some of the West's top registered breeding herds from California, Colorado, Oregon and Washington, including the largest registered herd in the United States.

The Hoots Ranch won the grand champion bull ribbon as well as bull calf champion and senior champion bull. Its closest rival was Haystack Angus Ranch, of Longmont, Colo. Judge of the show was Professor Herman Purdy, Department of Animal Husbandry, Pennsylvania State University.

Major honors for champion bulls were awarded as follows:

Bull Calf Champion and Grand Champion Bull: Hoots Bardoliermere 70 (a September 1962, son of Hoots Bardoliermere, senior herd sire at Hoots Angus Ranch); Junior Champion and Reserve Grand Champion Bull: Haystack Sir Galahad (sired by Ankonian Excelsior, Haystack Angus Ranch, Longmont, Colo.); Senior Champion Bull: Hoots Bardoliermere 30 (a Sept., 1960, son of Hoots Bardoliermere).

Winners in group classes were:

Three Bulls, owned by exhibitor: Haystack Angus Ranch, first; Hoots Angus Ranch, second. Eight groups of three bulls completed.

Two Bulls, bred and owned by exhibitor: Hoots Angus Ranch, first; Haystack Angus Ranch, second. Thirteen groups of two bulls completed.

Get-of-Sire (four animals, both sexes represented): Hoots Angus Ranch, first, on get of Hoots Bardoliermere. Eleven gets completed.

Junior Get-of-Sire (three animals, both sexes represented): Haystack Angus Ranch, first, on get of Panarama of Eastfield. Ten junior gets completed.

Grand Champion Female was exhibited by Rancheria Angus Ranch of Hat Creek, Calif.; and the Reserve Grand Champion Female was exhibited by Island Acres, of Klamath Falls.

Noteworthy to experienced cattle breeders is the fact that all Hoots Angus champion bulls at both the Pacific International and the Oregon State Fair were sired by their 1959 Grand Champion Bull of all major western shows. This champion herd sire is fast proving himself to be an exceptionally prepotent producer of champions.

Blind Commission Cuts Operating Fund

PORTLAND (UPI)—The Oregon Commission for the Blind trimmed its budget Friday.

The commission's budget committee slashed $30,150 off its operating fund—more than the six per cent or $29,000 cut requested by Gov. Mark Hatfield. However, the committee avoided trimming services, including the monthly allowance to blind students.

The action followed crushing defeat of the 1963 Legislature's $60 million tax program by Oregon voters in a special election Tuesday.

The commission cut the monthly allowance to blind students before the election after being told by the Department of Finance and Administration to expect a 14 to 25 per cent cutback.

However, the governor restored the allowance.

Robert Hiatt Passes Architecture Exam

SALEM (UPI)—The Oregon State Board of Architect examiners Friday announced the names of 12 registered architects who had successfully completed a 36-hour written examination.

Among those listed were Donald L. Smith, Eugene; W. Ray Glass, Corvallis; Junior D. Miller, Klamath Falls; Robert D. Hiatt, Medford, and R. Chandler Sogge, Salem.

About 70 per cent of all the rubber used in the U.S. today is synthetic, made from crude oil or natural gas.

Burglars Steal Cash from Firm

MEDFORD (UPI)—A series of break-ins and attempted break-ins in the city Friday, including the theft of about $537 in cash from Armin Richter and Associates, 1 King st.

Officers said the thieves gained entry by prying off a rear window screen and forcing the window at the Lewis Tyce Advertising agency on the ground floor at 1 King st.

Then they forced the second floor office door of Armin Richter and Associates. The thieves ransacked the Tyce office but apparently took nothing.

The cash was taken from a file cabinet in the Richter office. Most of the money was in $20 bills. A little under $17 was in petty cash.

The ransacking of William Dawkins and Associates' office in the same building netted only about $5 in cash.

Thieves also broke into the adjoining offices of Dr. Bernard T. Thompson, dentist, and Dr. Duke G. Anderson, optometrist, and took about $18.

Earlier Friday evening thieves almost pried out the glass window between the door and show window at Weisfield's Jewelry Store, 509 East Jackson st., and had pried out a large piece of glass at the Sears Roebuck farm and garden store at the rear of the main store. Thieves apparently failed to gain entry, police said.

Fire Season Still In General Effect

Burning restrictions have been eased somewhat in a few valley cities and fire districts, but the fire season is generally still in effect.

Despite damp mornings, the weather is still dry enough to be hazardous, fire department chiefs feel.

Burning permits are still required on lands protected by the State Forestry department and within the Central Point and Talent Rural Fire Protection districts.

Open burning is now permitted inside the city of Medford during all daylight hours after a verbal permit has been obtained from the city fire department by telephone. Medford residents may burn materials in screened barrels up to 10 a. m. without a permit.

Permits are required in the city of Ashland all year around.

High School Student Killed During Parade

CORVALLIS (UPI)—A 15-year-old high school girl was killed here Friday night during a rally by Oregon State University students as part of their Homecoming festivities.

Patricia Wustrack died instantly when she fell beneath the wheels of a flatbed truck filled with college students during a noise rally.

She had attempted to get on the vehicle when it was moving and had slipped.

Generals Disagree

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Three retired generals disagreed Thursday with Defense Secretary Robt. S. McNamara over a bill that would require mandatory four-year terms for members of the Joint Chiefs of staff.
