Hatfield To Address Civil Rights Forum Delegates at Salem

SALEM — Gov. Mark Hatfield will give the keynote address at a civil rights forum for here next Tuesday. Delegates from all branches of city, county and state government in Oregon will attend the meeting in the House of Representatives Chamber.

Termed a sense of urgency conference, participants will explore problems of racial and religious discrimination and consider ways of obtaining equal opportunities for Negro and other minority citizens in local communities. Employment problems, education, job training, public accommodations and housing conditions of the state's minorities will be discussed.

Fleming To Speak
Dr. Arthur S. Fleming, president of the University of Oregon, will speak to the assembly on government responsibilities in civil rights matters.

The forum is sponsored by the Oregon Civil Rights Advisory Committee and State Bureau of Labor which administers the civil rights laws. Hosting the event is the Salem Human Relations and Mrs. William Crocker and Mrs. Carolyn Cocking.

The program features many prominent officials including Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton; Dr. Leon P. Minear, superintendent of public instruction; Labor Commissioner Norman O. Nilsen; Real Estate Commissioner Robert J. Jensen; and Civil Rights Administrator Mark A. Smith.

Wayne Gordon of the Salem City Council will give the welcoming address for Salem's Mayor Willard C. Marshall who is in Japan. Employment aspects of discrimination will be presented by Eldon G. Sloan, supervisor in the State Department of Employment.

Morning Panel
Oregon leaders in the civil rights movement also will take part in the program. Dr. Richard T. Frost of Reed College will preside at a morning panel on the most pressing issues confronting Oregon in intergroup relations.

Afternoon workshops inviting free and open discussion by all participants will be led by Milton D. Goldsmith, chairman of the Oregon Civil Rights Advisory Committee; E. Shelton Hill of the Portland Urban League; and Seymour H. Kaplan, Anti-Defamation League director.

The conference is the Twelfth Annual Oregon Forum on Intergroup Relations. Previous forums have brought together business, labor, education, church and government leaders.

The purpose of the 1963 conference of persons with public responsibilities is recruitment of all levels of government in a cooperative effort to resolve the grievances of minority citizens, according to Smith. He said recommendations on positive programs for improving human relations throughout the state will be invited from the participants who are in positions to know the situations and resources of their communities.

Helium Will Play Role in Space Plan

LIBERAL, Kan. (UPI)—Helium is scheduled to play a major role in this country's space program, with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) alone expecting to use 127 million cubic feet of the rare element this year and more than 200 million cubic feet annually within two years.

The prediction was made here by Charles Zimmerman, director of aeronautical research for NASA, at the dedication of the world's largest helium producing plant, with a production capacity of one billion, 300 million cubic feet per year. The plant was built by the National Helium Corporation — Privately as a joint venture by Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Company and National Distillers and Chemical Corporation.

Official Optimistic About Resuming Class

WILBRAHAM, Mass. (UPI)—Wilbraham (Mass.) School Superintendent Irving Agard was optimistic about resuming the adult education course on the stock market.

Until he learned that the broker who conducted the evening classes two years ago... before the big market break... had quit the business to return to teaching.

Special Session Fireworks Possible

SALEM (UPI) — The special legislative session Nov. 11 could start where the record 141-day regular session ended—in a bitter Senate-House battle with the governor watching helplessly from the sidelines.

In view of the voters' mandate last week, it is doubtful any new tax bills will be enacted.

This could be the seed for trouble. Gov. Mark Hatfield's austerity program calls for reduced spending, cuts in basic school support and re-enactment of the one-shot speedup of withholding tax collections.

The one-shot plan, which would add $12 million to this biennium's income, was part of the tax bill that was defeated last week.

The House might agree to the governor's plan.

But Senate President Ben Musa has unveiled an alternate program. He wants more severe agency cuts than Hatfield, twice the basic school cuts the governor has proposed—but opposes the one-shot idea.

No matter what the governor or House might want, they can't get it without Senate approval.

Long before the referendum election, senators said they would not enact any new tax measures.

Musa said enactment of new taxes in the face of defeat of the tax bill would be "a kick in the teeth to the voters."

A few hours after Hatfield called the special session, Musa told United Press International, "During the regular session the governor said the legislature was faceless. Well, that may be. But he's going to find we're not gutless."

The tax bill that was overthrown last week was a compromise. It wasn't what the governor wanted, what the House wanted, or what the Senate wanted.

The House passed it knowing the Senate would not approve.

it. The original House package included the governor's cigarette tax, the one-shot measure, and some income tax increases.

The Senate dropped the one-shot plan, substituted a sales tax for the cigarette tax, and upped the House's income tax rates.

After two weeks and three conference committees the Senate gave up the sales tax, agreed to the one-shot plan, threw in capital gains relief and increased corporate taxes, and forced the House to accept higher income tax rates.

Lawmakers were discouraged, tired, and bitter when the session ended. They were so convinced the voters would not approve the tax increase that they set aside $300,000 and the Oct. 15 date for the referral election.

The voters, 460,000 strong, voted 3 1/2 to 1 against the bill.

The air of agreement expressed by the governor and legislative leaders when the special session was called was undoubtedly sincere.

All are trying to do their best to reflect the wishes of the voters. They will undoubtedly try to keep the session short, and attempt to avoid rekindling feuds.

But the governor, House members and senators are equally sincere in support of their own approaches to the state's fiscal dilemma.

They may feel their present public image is so bad that they can only gain by standing firm for what they believe.

Their philosophies appear to differ so widely that standing firm could rekindle the recent acrimony, and precipitate a stalemate.

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — A total of 29 Washington State communities, with a total population of 161,191, add flourides to their water supplies in an effort to help prevent tooth decay. Total state population is almost 3 million.

Barge Loaded With Pulp Liquor Sinks

HOQUIAM, Wash. (UPI) — Another barge loaded with spent pulping liquor en route to the Rayonier pulp mill in Hoquiam for reprocessing has sunk off the Washington coast.

The barge "Island Maple" broke her keel during Monday night's storm and went down near Neah Bay Tuesday afternoon about five miles out to sea. Rayonier official set the value of the pulping liquor at $25,000. The barge held 600,000 gallons of black liquor to be reprocessed. It was to be taken back to Woodfibre, B.C. north of Vancouver, for use at the Rayonier kraft mill.
