Program Field Director To Explain Scholarships

Young women from Jackson county schools are invited to hear Miss Victoria Shellenberg of Wayne, Pa., new field director of the Seven College Conference scholarship program, who will speak Tuesday, October 29 at 2 p.m., in Medford High school, Room 30 B, Eighth grade through high school students are included.

A number of students from Medford High school and Hedrick and McLoughlin Junior High schools have registered. Registrations are not needed, however, those in charge point out. Students from outlying county schools are invited, it is stressed. Anyone wanting further information may call Mrs. Grace Berg, dean of girls at Medford High school.

Because representatives of the program do come only every three years, a special invitation is offered to younger girls to attend and learn of the opportunities offered through the scholarship program.

Miss Shellenberg will speak to Ashland area students about 3:30 or 4 p.m. the same day and continue from there to Klamath Falls.

She will be a houseguest Monday night of Mrs. Malcolm Byers, a graduate of Vassar college, who was contacted to make local arrangements for the speaker.

FHA Girls Conduct Conference

PHOENIX — Phoenix High School Future Homemakers of America hosted the 19th annual Southern Oregon District FHA meeting on Saturday, October 19. Approximately 220 high school and junior high school girls throughout the valley attended the meeting at the Phoenix High school.

Michele Dube, a senior at Phoenix High school and District FHA chairman, led the day's events. District secretary was Carolyn Barnes from Crater High school.

Dr. Betty Lou Dunlop, professor of education at Southern Oregon college, was the main speaker for the meeting, the theme of which was "Education: The Endless Challenge."

FHA members rotated to three group sessions in the afternoon. State vice president Terry Andrews and treasurer Ann Hanson explained the state program of work, composing one session; Mrs. Estelle Van Cleave, state adviser, told about FHA publications; and Bill Purdy of the Ashland Daily Tidings spoke on news-writing and photography.

Next year's district officers will be Darlene Thompson of Crater, district chairman, and Myrna Wallace of Grants Pass, district secretary. They were installed in an afternoon ceremony.

Members also participated in group singing. The Rogue River chapter presented a skit on home economics careers.

Nearly 35 FHA members from Phoenix assisted in carrying out plans for the meeting. Chapter adviser is Mrs. Mildred Parr.

Parishioners At Conference

ASHLAND—Trinity Episcopal church was represented by 16 of its parishioners at the week end diocesan conference in Portland and the meeting of Episcopal Church Women held at the same time.

Attending from Ashland were the rector and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. Duane Alvord, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Robert VanVleet, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Reynes, Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Craft, Mrs. Harry Kinney, Mrs. John Daugherty, Mrs. Leon Sharyon, and Miss Kathleen Silver.

Kennedys Moving Into New Home in Country

By HELEN THOMAS
The Kennedy home sits on a 39-acre tract, once part of the huge landholdings of Hubert Phipps, a multi-millionaire cattle-raiser and newspaper publisher. The White House originally estimated the cost of construction of the home at about $45,000 but area builders believe the final total was much higher. A special road was cut through the woods to the house from U.S. Route 50, and an artificial pond was also built.

There is also a three-stall stable for Mrs. Kennedy's horse "Sardir," Caroline's pony "Macaroni," and John Jr.'s newly acquired "Leprechaun," a shaggy little pony, the gift of Irish Prime Minister Sean F. Lemass.

The complex white house communications system, which travels with the President wherever he goes, has been set up in the house, not far from the cozy living room with its huge fireplace and the library. The over-all design of the home is that of an oblong. The rooms facing the west include the bedrooms of the First Lady and the President, a library, a living room and the dining room.

For the past two and one-half months the Kennedys have rented the home to two different families. Washington investment broker A. Dana Hodgdon and his wife leased it during July and August. In September it was rented to Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Armour, a wealthy California couple who came East to get their daughter settled at exclusive Foxcroft school at Middleburg.

Reception Announced

SALEM—Gov. and Mrs. Mark O. Hatfield are again sponsoring an annual reception in recognition of United Nations day and honoring the consular corps in Oregon. It will be held Wednesday, October 30, from 4:30 to 6 o'clock at the Portland Art museum, Portland.

Thomas L. McCall, Portland, is chairman of the Governor's UN day committee, and Mrs. Arlyn Cole, Portland, is reception chairwoman. Refreshments will be offered by the consular corps and the Oregon United Nations association.

Missionary Council Makes Toys, Quilts

GOLD HILL — Members of the Women's Missionary Council of Gold Hill Assembly of God church are making dolls, stuffed toys, quilts, and some clothing items for mission stations in Alaska, Samoa, Hawaii, and Japan.

The group meets each Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in the church. New officers are Mrs. Tom Mendenhall, president; Mrs. Joe Buchanan, vice-president; and Mrs. Frank Grimm, secretary-treasurer.

The fresh frozen process has already made spring lamb, broilers and turkeys year-round convenience items.

Impressions of Russia Told by Dinner Speaker

Impressions of life behind the Iron Curtain countries were described by Mrs. J. P. Tobin when she talked for a dinner meeting of Jackson County Association of Insurance Women Tuesday night. The event was held at Oak Knoll Country club, Ashland, with Mrs. David Walsh, president of the group, presiding.

Mrs. Tobin, on the faculty of Southern Oregon college, toured the Iron Curtain countries last summer with a group sponsored by the University of Bridgeport, Connecticut. The traveler said that most of all she was impressed with the vastness of Russia—a country made up of 60 different nationalities speaking about 225 dialects—and the fact that Russian workers seldom smile or laugh.

Mrs. Tobin also said "You don't see any men working in Russia," adding that women sweep the streets, construct bridges and buildings, tend the subway system, service airplanes, etc. The men are mostly in uniform, either as soldiers or as officials, she said.

Prices High
The teacher also mentioned that prices are extremely high, that food is often poor by American standards, that it is scarce and that both Russians and visitors stand in line for everything they buy. Because clothing prices are so high, Russians surreptitiously try to buy garments from visitors, even though it is frowned on. However, those in Mrs. Tobin's group had been warned by the tour leader not to sell their possessions.

Mrs. Tobin said she most of all enjoyed the Russian theaters, palaces and museums, which she described as "exquisite and lavish beyond words." The tour members were in Moscow, Leningrad, Kiev and Odessa and Mrs. Tobin thought the last city was the most beautiful she saw.

The buildings present great contrasts, the speaker said, because many of the recently erected ones are plain, poorly constructed and out of repair. Another contrast mentioned was the extremely wide streets, in Russian cities, which would take 10 to 12 lanes of traffic, but on which there is little traffic since few cars are privately owned.

Visit Farm
The group visited a large farm near Odessa, and Mrs. Tobin remarked that the food in the Ukraine is marvelous. She said evidences of the severe drought were to be seen in the stunted grain crops. The tourists were interested to learn that oil for making machine lubricants and margarine are made from the vast acreages of sunflowers grown in the Ukraine.

Tourists in Russia from the United States immediately notice the lack of satisfactory plumbing Mrs. Tobin said, and asked "How can the Russians put men on the moon when they can't make the bathroom plumbing work?"

Mrs. Tobin mentioned that while visiting a Pioneer camp for youth they saw a sign which read "Lenin is always yours; Lenin is alive," and also spoke of the long lines of Russians who wait long periods of time in order to visit Lenin's tomb. She added that when her group joined the line, the Russians ahead of them moved aside and allowed them to enter, understanding that the tourists were in a hurry.

The speaker said that there is more evidence of religion in Warsaw than in Russian cities, and that Poland seems to be the most prosperous of the Iron Curtain countries.

Mrs. Elbert F. Cooper introduced Mrs. Tobin. Husbands of members and other guests attended the event. About 40 were present.

Shrine to Hold Mexican Fiesta

Victoria Shellenberg

Parents of the students also are invited to hear Miss Shellenberg explain scholarships available to the seven schools, Barnard, Bryn Mawr, Mount Holyoke, Radcliffe, Smith, Vassar and Wellesley. A representative of this program comes only at three-year intervals.

Under the scholarship program the conference has since 1944 made regional scholarships available on a competitive basis to secondary school students.

The program is operative in 14 states of the Central, South and Far West. Its purpose is to bring together on Eastern campuses a more complete representation of students from west of the Mississippi river by providing educational opportunities at the member colleges to young women of outstanding intellectual ability and achievement, regardless of financial means.

Ninety-two students who applied under the program will enter the Seven Colleges this fall. Of this number, 20 have been named Seven College scholars. Scholarship assistance totaling $100,200 has been awarded by the Seven Colleges to those students with financial need.

Miss Shellenberg, who earned her bachelor's degree at Wellesley, with a major in history of art, took the certificate at Harvard-Radcliffe program in business administration. Formerly employed in an administrative post by Baird - Atomic, Cambridge, Mass., she also has been associated with the Fogg Art Museum of Harvard university.

Eastern Star History Given

ASHLAND — When members of Alpha chapter, Order of Eastern Star, met last week in the Masonic lodge hall they heard a former worthy matron, Mrs. George Ward, give a history of the fraternal order.

Eastern Star was founded in the 18th century and has grown to a membership of more than three million in 13,000 chapters, she said. Its original purpose is still the aim of every member, "one common bond of fellowship and love for humanity."

Several distinguished guests attended the lodge meeting which was conducted by Mrs. John Mills, worthy matron, and George Thomas, worthy patron. Included in the introductions were Mrs. Lorena McNair, past grand matron of Oregon; George Findley, a past worthy patron of Alpha chapter and member of the state home endowment committee, and Mrs. William Weber, grand representative of the grand chapter of Oregon.

Mrs. McNair told of having attended a reception in Silverton recently where Mrs. Merle Mahar, associate grand matron of the grand chapter of Oregon, was the honored guest, and George Findley reported having visited the Masonic and Eastern Star Home at Forest Grove.

Hostesses for the refreshment hour at the close of the meeting were the Mesdames Glenn Revel, Leo Zupan, and Dorothy Royston.

A school of instruction will be held November 3 preceded by a covered dish dinner.

'Our Heritage' Is Topic For Ashland Women

ASHLAND—Against a patriotic background of flags and a tea table centered with brilliant autumn flowers and foliage, the Women's Fellowship of the First Church of Christ held its October meeting.

The evening's theme, "Our Heritage," was used in the program directed by Mrs. E. A. Bay. Mrs. Charles Gettling spoke on the subject, using excerpts from a book by Paul Harvey, while Mrs. Bay continued the thought with Bible quotations and Mrs. James Sinclair led in several hymns typical of "Our Heritage."

Family heirlooms, antique china and dolls, old Bibles and books were on display and furnished interesting comment and description by Mrs. Grace Flint, Ashland antique dealer, who is also president of the Women's Fellowship.

Reports were made on work projects that include making of binders and lap robes for the Jackson county farm home, quilts for the Indian mission at Toppenish, Wash., and clothing sent to Colegio Biblico at Eagle Pass, Texas. Other contributions have been made to a family in need of clothing at the Indian mission.

A Christmas box of gifts of food, clothing, and bedding will be sent to the McKinley Indian Mission at Toppenish. Mrs. Elmer Newton reported that the Belview Church of Christ recently spent a day canning and packing a barrel of fruit for the Alaska Christian home.

Mrs. Flint conducted the business meeting and hostesses serving refreshments were Mrs. Lyle Springer, Mrs. Harold Jacobs and Mrs. Louise Allen.

Thursday's mail brought a postcard from Katherine Chapman. The Tribune's Hornbrook correspondent who wrote that she was on her way home after a vacation in Missouri. The card was a colored picture of the Ozark mountains, showing the fall foliage, and we agree with the Missourians that their "Flaming Fall Revue" is very lovely.

But Pappy and Potpourri returned home from Central Oregon Sunday night by way of the Diamond Lake cutoff, Union Creek and Prospect, and what we saw we believe is more colorful than the picture of the Ozarks. The drive up the Crater Lake highway in the autumn is a favorite one with many southern Oregonians; some years the foliage is brighter than others, and this October seems to be one of the "vintage" years.

We don't know what kind of trees grow on the Ozark hills, but along the highway in the Union Creek and Prospect area there's maple, dogwood, sumac and other trees and vines which we cannot identify. Last Sunday the colors defied description. The dogwood is mostly in shades of pink, some quite pale and others in brighter and bolder tones shading into red.

The maples are gold, some groves and trees in pastel yellow-gold with only an occasional shaft of reddish tints showing. We didn't see many sumac, but where these do grow, sometimes in gardens and yards, they are now a flaunting red that brings exclamations. We saw one grouping close to the highway — if we remember correctly it was south of Prospect, that was extraordinarily lovely.

In some areas the underbrush growing thickly along the evergreens (we aren't sure what this is) has smallish leaves of a rich yellow that seem to glow in the half-light of late afternoon. Usually we feel that the bright light of mid-day shows the autumn colors up to their best advantage, but Sunday's experience convinced us that in the late afternoon of a dark day the foliage can provide rare beauty.

If wind and rain have not been too severe in recent days, the foliage may still be out in all its glory this week end. At any rate, we think it will be worth the drive. Load the family into the car, and perhaps invite along the life risk, a friend who doesn't own an automobile. O.S.
