

Decorating Hints Given For the Small Bedroom

A small bedroom can be a decorating delight. It can be made to express a feeling of spaciousness and comfort if you will keep in mind some of the principles that decorators and designers follow when faced with a similar decorating problem.

Furniture manufacturers have come to your aid by producing lightly scaled furniture pieces designed for today's smaller rooms. Use proportioned pieces, pushing them against the wall whenever possible, and you'll find the arrangement contributes much to the illusion of space and openness.

A king size bed calls for about 11 feet of unbroken wall space. This allows for night stands on either side. Twin beds with a night stand in between take nine feet, the same amount of wall space required by the obsolete double bed with night stands on each side.

If you have 155 square feet of floor space in your bedroom, you can fit in twin beds, two chests, a dressing table, and a lounge chair. You can substitute a king size bed, eliminate a chest, and still enjoy the spacious retreat you want.

Whenever you buy an extra-length or extra-wide bed, you must also remember to get the best quality. The extra size requires adequate strength and support, and sound workmanship and materials.

Always keep in mind that your primary purpose is to provide a refuge for restful sleep. To do this your bed must be large enough for comfortable relaxation. Depending upon your personal preferences and on the effectiveness of your planning, there is a variety of mattresses from which to choose—the new king or queen sizes, separate twin beds, or the popular swing-away twins that attach to a king sized headboard.

A supesize mattress will add only about six inches to the length of your bed and less than two feet to the width—an insignificant difference in floor space when measured against the increase in comfort and rest you will enjoy. The improved quality of new cotton-innerspring mattresses adds to the life and comfort of supesize bedding.

Toastmistress Women Hold Annual Guest Night

"The Magic Touch" was the theme for the Medford Toastmistress Club's annual public relations dinner held Wednesday night in the Rague Room of the Medford Hotel. About 30 members and guests attended. The meeting was conducted in the routine used by the club for regular meetings in order to inform prospective members.

Speakers were Mrs. R. D. Ford, Mrs. W. G. Beard and Mrs. A. I. Prugh. Mrs. Ford talked on advertising, pointing out its important role in the economy of this country and noting that in many areas there is a growing tendency to pass laws curtailing advertising. She said many forms of advertising are also taxed. Mrs. Ford declared that citizens should give this problem serious thought and added that in many instances, control of advertising constitutes a threat to freedom of speech.

Theme Used Elaborating on the theme of the evening, Mrs. Beard asked "What is the magic touch" and Message Message CHICAGO (UPI) — The American Medical Association debunks the benefits of facial massage.

"There is little or no scientific data to show that facial massage helps prevent the changes that go with aging," said the AMA. "It is true that vigorous massage may induce a temporary increase in blood flow to the skin, and even produce some swelling by increasing the amount of free fluid in the tissues. However, such a change is certainly not of lasting benefit."

Ticker Talks NEW YORK (UPI) — Is marriage advisable for those with heart conditions? Can first attacks of rheumatic fever be prevented? Are there warnings before a heart attack occurs?

These are some of the questions posed — and answered — in a new booklet issued by the American Heart Association and its affiliates. The title: "Questions and Answers about Heart and Blood Vessel Diseases."

Rated tops for fall and winter is this jerkin of fine wale cotton corduroy. Side-slit pockets are lined in the same cotton print as the long-sleeved turtleneck blouse. A slim skirt completes the ensemble, designed by Patty Woodard of California.

Lawrence Buono co. Mrs. George L. Watson, Mrs. Harry B. Marshall, Mrs. Esther West, Mrs. C. E. Goodwin and Mrs. Marjorie Harris.

Mrs. R. D. Moore, club president, welcomed the guests, Mrs. C. A. Thatcher said grace and led the flag salute and Mrs. Thomas Lorenz was toastmistress. Mrs. James VanderSteen was timekeeper. Mrs. Watson gave an educational talk. Mrs. Kenneth V. Phillips was grammarian. Mrs. West evaluated the talks, and Miss Voda Brower, the meeting in general.

Mrs. Goodwin was general chairman, and Mrs. Phillips assisted her.

Mrs. Prugh developed the idea that "magic can be yours" and mentioned such persons as Cleopatra, Joan of Arc, Florence Nightingale, and Marian Anderson as those who had special qualities of intelligence, talent and spirit. She closed by saying that the "magic touch" meant to "create, conquer and serve."

Mrs. Ella May Douglas, topicmistress, asked three members and three guests to give impromptu talks. These were Mrs.

SOC Players Announce Season's Opening Play

ASHLAND — "Noah" written by Andre Obey, will open this year's season of plays for the Southern Oregon College Players, it was announced by Dr. Dorothy Stolp, director.

In this fantasy, the story of Noah's famous ordeal is retold in the manner of a fairy tale. Noah becomes a kindly, simple old man who grows lonely in his faith, who pilots his craft safely to shore in the midst of doubts, and who is rudely deserted by the young folks the moment they touch foot to land. At length he is reluctantly forced to conclude that God has not always been sportsmanlike in His treatment of His appointed agent. In the bleakness of his old age, on the damp earth of cold land, Noah shouts at the heavens "Are you satisfied?" You may be surprised at His answer.

Production dates have been set for December 5, 6, and 7. Cast list for this production includes Noah, Gary Watts, Ashland; Mamma, Linda Rinehart, Canyonville; Ham, Peter Flint, Ashland; Shem, Craig Wright, Medford; Japheth, Milton Schweppe, Ashland; Norma, Carole Sandberg, Coos Bay; Sella, Lindsay Darneille, Medford; Ada, Jane Olson, Central Point; and Wildman, William Burritt, Klamath Falls.

Animal roles are being cast this week and work has already begun on costumes and scenery.

Toe shapes for milady's fall shoes ranges from rounded squares on laced daytime oxfords to tapered crests for evening. Textures for the well-shod range from alligator lizard and ostrich to all the old faithful types.

Make cookies the quick way. Combine 1 cup soft butter or margarine with 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar; beat until creamy. Stir in 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup chopped candied cherries, ¾ cup flaked or shredded coconut and 2 cups quick-cooking rolled oats, uncooked. Shape into balls and roll in chopped nuts. Store leftovers in refrigerator.

Most striking of the new fall hats are those for evening wear. Sample: a high fez of ostrich feathers teased to appear velvety. The hat's accent: a floating tassel down the back. Others along the new evening hats look like radar sets plunked on craniums.
