31,170 Highway Deaths Recorded

CHICAGO (UPI) — The nation's motorists set a new record for deaths on the highway during the first nine months of the year, the National Safety Council said Saturday.

During the first three quarters of the year, 31,170 highway deaths were recorded — 8 per cent more than the previous nine-month high of 29,540 in 1962.

September saw more highway travelers killed than any other September — 3,970. This toll was 9 per cent higher than the 3,640 who died in September, 1962, and 6 per cent more than the month's record-setting total of 3,746 in 1961.

While the number of deaths increased 6 per cent, the amount of travel rose 4 per cent in the three quarters. The resulting death rate was 5.2 fatalities per 100 million miles traveled, up 2 per cent from last year's 5.1 per cent.

Judo Class Scheduled To Start at YMCA on Tuesday

Five young men came out of the roadside bushes on a lonely Tokyo road. Carefully they circled an elderly man, then the leader lunged at the victim.

The elderly man dropped to his knees and sent the leader flying into one of his conspirators. Two other young men were thrown into a bush, but the third managed to get his arm around the old man's neck. The attacker was thrown to the ground.

The leader rudely the elderly victim again, but his hand was seized and he was pinned to the ground.

This happened to be a prank some Japanese Naval cadets were trying on Master Morihai Uyeshiba, instructor in the martial arts which includes Judo. It demonstrates how a person will-trained in this art of self-defense is equipped to meet any situation.

Reason for Interest
This is the reason that many people become interested in Judo in this country, and in Jackson County. Until approximately 1930, Judo and its closely associated art of Jiu Jitsu were secrets passed on only to people of Japanese ancestry.

Henry Seishiro Okazaki founded the American Jiu Jitsu Institute of Hawaii and offered Judo open to everyone to show his appreciation to a Hawaiian businessman who kept him from failing in business. He founded the American system of Kodokan, the most widely taught system of self-defense in Jiu Jitsu and Judo today.

Jiu Jitsu is the "gentle technique" and Judo is the "gentle way." Jiu Jitsu concentrates on the "hand arts," means of immobilizing an opponent by certain grips and pressures.

Includes Throws
Judo includes the hand arts, but it also includes throws. Karate, empty-handed fighting by using certain blows and punches, also is part of the Judo instruction. The more advanced instruction covers defense against the knife, sword, club, gun and bayonet. Its basic elements are included in Army field manuals and in instruction in hand to hand fighting given police officers.

The average person approaches Judo with curiosity. He or she may take this instruction for exercise or for self-defense. After a few weeks or a few months, depending on the student's ability, the fierce need for self-defense gives way to a feeling of mental and physical fitness. This is the real goal of Judo.

The instructors start the indoctrination with the first lesson. Judo as practiced in the gymnasium is done with politeness and consideration, consideration for the partner's safety and for the instructor. The instructor receives complete attention. Every effort is made to avoid hurting the opponent and partner.

Judo is like a loaded gun. It's never turned against anybody except in self-defense. Then the struggle is short, sharp and deadly.

Requires Alert Mind
Judo is an art. It requires an alert, disciplined body and mind. Each student summons and falls to the mat until muscles are hard and supple. Then he advances to the various throws.

The fall is basic. Without learning how to fall a student could be seriously hurt when thrown.

As each student advances from white belt, the beginner's rank, to green, brown and finally black belt he uses his skill to acquire more skill and teaches to help others acquire those skills. It's a constant process of learning and re-learning. Nobody ever masters all the skills completely. There are too many.

"After I learned Judo I wondered why I wasn't killed before when I got into a fight. But few Judo men ever get into a fight," one student remarked. This is probably because a Judo man has learned complete control over mind and body. He practices this control constantly in learning the Judo arts.

Academies In Area
The Judo academies in Phoenix and at the Medford YMCA are the only places where the American system of Judo is taught in Southern Oregon. Klamath Falls also has such an academy.

The first such academy conducted by a white man in the United States started in Oakland and from there spread to other parts in the United States.

Basis of the Judo creed is to learn and to teach others. For this reason the Medford YMCA Judo academy is establishing a course of 10 lessons starting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. It will teach the basic Judo arts.

Methodist Minister To Speak at Two Meetings in Ashland

A Methodist minister who played a prominent part in organizing non-violent direct action against racial discrimination in the south will speak at two public meetings in Ashland Thursday, Oct. 31.

The Rev. Glenn Smiley, field director of the Fellowship Reconciliation, will speak at a free luncheon at Wesley House on the Southern Oregon College campus Thursday, sponsored by major Protestant youth groups at the college. The time and place of a public meeting sponsored by the Ashland Human Rights Council Thursday will be announced later, according to Vincent Oredson, Human Rights Council program chairman.

Typical of the minister's campaign was the bus boycott in Montgomery, Ala., which brought the Rev. Martin Luther King to national prominence. Mr. Smiley shared a seat with Mr. King on the first integrated bus in Montgomery after the boycott.

Major Denominations
Fellowship of Reconciliation, of which Mr. Smiley is a director or race relations, is a church-affiliated movement predominantly within Protestant Christian groupings of all major denominations. It includes nearly 2,000 clergymen, many educators and professional workers.

The group attempts to substitute non-violence and reconciliation for violence in international relations, racial and intergroup tension and other top spots. The organization has about 12,000 members in the United States and approximately 30,000 members throughout the world.

"F. O. R. membership qualifications are a belief in reverence for personality and unity of the world-wide human family, pledges of refusal to participate in war or military preparation, pledges to work for corrective instead of punitive punishments, non-violent action and self-giving love," a spokesman explained. "The Southern Oregon area has a number of members," he added.

Mel Hall To Attend Portland Meeting

SALEM (UPI) — The State Welfare Commission decided Friday to continue the food stamp plan in Multnomah County until June 30, 1964.
