

Rockefeller Brings Battle With Goldwater to California

By United Press International
New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller came to California last week and brought his undeclared political battle with U.S. Sen. Barry Goldwater for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination.

During visits to San Francisco and Los Angeles, Rockefeller said, among other things:

—That he was "seriously considering" entering the presidential race and actually had "already made up my mind."

—That he believed Goldwater, if elected President, would pull the United States out of the United Nations.

—That a President Kennedy should give his civil rights program top priority in Congress.

—That he opposed right-to-work laws which would outlaw union closed shops.

Meanwhile, California Republican leaders were reported to be telling the New Yorker that he was in serious trouble in this state. One leading Republican said "I told the governor that if he wants to spend a million dollars and six weeks in California before the primary, he may have a chance."

Elsewhere, there were these developments:

Folsom: Folsom State Prison inmates, considered to be among the most hardened in the state, went on "strike" and refused to report to their daily jobs. The dispute was blamed on increasingly longer sentences for violent crimes and no increase in job pay. Two days after the job strike, prison officials adopted a "tough" policy and began transferring the strikers' implications to other institutions. By the end of the week, the work stoppage appeared to be nearing an end.

Telephone: Picketing continued throughout the week in a strike against General Telephone Company in Santa Monica. About 9,000 employees were idled. The dispute centered primarily around differences over health and welfare and pension plans and a union demand for a pay scale equal to that paid by Pacific Telephone Co.

Parks: Carl Wayne Parks, 25-year-old convicted robber from Tulsa, Okla., was sentenced to extra time in prison for terrorizing six persons during a daring escape from Tehachapi State Prison. He was captured in El Monte.

Suicide: Two high school sweethearts committed double suicide in the back seat of a parked car found in Oakland. The two, Michael Vavreka, 17, and Jessica Arthur, 16, had been going steady since February. She was three months pregnant. Their bodies were found by a passing motorist. The motor was running and a hose ran from the exhaust pipe through a window.

Meningitis: Two infant children of marine sergeants were treated for meningitis in San Diego. The two cases brought to 16 the number of civilians stricken with the disease this year in San Diego County. Eight of the victims died. There have been more than 33 military cases, including five fatalities.

Swimmer: James Small, former University of California swimming star who lost both legs in a San Francisco Bay accident, died three days later at Letterman Army Hospital. The 27-year-old swimmer's death was attributed to multiple hemorrhaging. Small was among 12 members of the Dolphin Club competing in a long distance swim across the bay when the 32-foot fishing boat Pacific Dawn cut through the swimmers at an estimated speed of 12 knots. Later, the coroner's office said an inquest would be held to determine what caused the marine traffic situation. The Coast Guard denied responsibility in the case.

Davis: Four members of the late comedienne Joan Davis' family—her mother, daughter and two grandsons—were killed when fire swept their Palm Springs home. The victims were Nina Davis, 72, Mrs. Beverly Colbert, 29, and Mrs. Colbert's two sons by a former marriage, Guy Grossman, 7, and Larry, 4. Investigators said the blaze may have started from a smoldering cigarette.

Rafferty-Braden: Dr. Max Rafferty and Thomas Braden appeared on the same platform for the first time and denied they had ever made public attacks on each other. The twin appearance occurred at a public meeting of the Sacramento Press Club. Braden, president of the State Board of Education, said that when he called Rafferty "the darling of the hate groups" he referred to "that odd bunch of cohorts that he (Rafferty) has tooting up and down the state." Rafferty, the superintendent of public instruction, said he had been "too busy to engage in feuds or vendettas of any type."

Dr. Conway Attends Program Meeting

ASHLAND—Dr. John S. Conway, associate professor of education at Southern Oregon College, served as chairman of the daily small-group sessions at a conference in connection with the Oregon Program at Yachats.

Accompanying Dr. Conway were local educators, Dr. Elliott Becken, assistant superintendent of Medford public schools, and Burl Cox, principal of McLoughlin Junior High School in Medford.

Principal consultant for the conference Dr. Robert Bush, Stanford University professor of education, assisted the group in the explanation of the advantages and methods in the possible adaptation of more flexible scheduling in Oregon's secondary schools.

Simmons Operator Sentenced To Jail
PORTLAND (UPI)—The operator of the Simmons Institute of Portland has been sentenced to six months in jail and fined $1,500 in Multnomah County Circuit Court.

William F. Gressinger pleaded guilty to conducting the institute without a license from the State Department of Education. The department refused to grant the school a license on the grounds that its classes were being used to lure students into investment in land developments operated by the Simmons organization at Woodburn and Lapine.

School News

Eagle Point High
Edited by Peggy Johnson
During the summer, the Eagle Point chapter of the Future Farmers of America, represented by Rusty Vaughan, placed third high individual in the entire state at State Fair.

Student Council passed an administrative policy of selling parking stickers to students who use the school parking lot. The stickers, consisting of a school design, are to be placed in the lower right hand corner of the windshield.

Girls' Athletic Association adopted a new policy in regard to initiates. The regular GAA membership pin will replace the traditional first award. In order to receive the pin, an equivalent of 50 points must be earned, thus eliminating uninterested girls from receiving the pin.

Fifty-four seniors attended a visitation at Crater High school to hear eleven Northwest independent college representatives. The colleges represented were George Fox College, Lewis and Clark, Linfield College, Seattle Pacific College, University of Portland, Pacific University, Good Samaritan Nursing School, Sacred Heart Nursing School and Marylhurst.

Mike Charley and Jeff Keefe left to attend the national convention of the Future Farmers of America in Kansas City, Mo. Both boys are delegates to the national convention from the Eagle Point chapter.

Merle Ford, junior, is building a copy of a Stradivarius violin. The wood for his project is a special wood, dried and cured for 10 years, ordered from New York.

Phoenix HS Library Open Two Evenings

PHOENIX—The Phoenix High School library will be open Mondays and Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m., starting this week, according to Miss Sally Maulding, teacher-librarian.

All Phoenix students and their parents who wish to use the library facilities may do so at this time, Miss Maulding said. No books will be checked out for use other than in the library, however.

Superintendent Ernest James noted that a large number of Phoenix High School students used the library last week when it was opened evenings for the first time. This will be the first week it has been opened to adults during evenings, he said.

Morse spoke to a regional convention of the Minnesota Education Association.

"We need to enact a general federal aid bill which will bring federal money, without federal control on a per pupil basis to each school district throughout the country," Morse said.

He said the federal government has a responsibility for developing the skills needed for the space program and national defense.

Negotiations Fail To End Coos Strike
PORTLAND (UPI)—Negotiations between union leaders and Weyerhaeuser Co. officials here Friday failed to settle a strike which has shut down the firm's Coos Bay area operations, federal mediator Leroy Smith reported.

Another session was scheduled for next Wednesday.

The strike, which has idled 360 men for more than a week, was called by International Woodworkers of America local 3261.

CAP Plans Drive For More Members

December will mark the 22nd anniversary of the national Civil Air Patrol organization in the United States.

To highlight the anniversary the Jackson County CAP unit is conducting a recruiting drive to obtain more cadets. Five local cadets are working with the United States Air Force to obtain more members.

Cadets working on the program are Craig Stinger, Nannette Taylor, Albert Hall, Dan Osborn and Rickey Rozzell.

Purpose of the CAP program is to help the senior CAP members, the adults, on air search and rescue and in times of flood and disaster. They work with communications, photography and wherever they are needed.

Classes are held at the Medford airport and cover different phases of aerospace and aerodynamics.

The program is open to all boys and girls from 13 years through 21 years. Cadets who are 18 can join the senior membership.

Every year two cadets from each state are chosen to go on a foreign exchange. They can work toward foreign exchange scholarship as members of the auxiliary to the Air Force.

Two Collies Sought Near Union Creek

PROSPECT—Four little girls from the LaGrande area are looking for their dogs, two border collies, which disappeared from the camping grounds at Union Creek Thursday.

The family said it believes someone took them while they were at the store. The male and female had been chained, but the chain was removed from one, and the collar from the other.

The family was visiting grandparents in this area and were on their way home when the incident occurred, it was reported. The family has driven several miles trying to find the dogs and is staying two days longer at Union Creek hoping to find them.

Anyone finding the pair of dogs is asked to contact the Prospect Shopping Center Grocery.

Gold Hill Man Hurt In Valley Accident

DAVID EARL GREGORY, 21, of Route 2, Box 365, Gold Hill, was injured in a one-car accident Friday night at the intersection of Ross Lane and North Ross Lane, state police reported.

Gregory was reported in fair condition at Rogue Valley Hospital Saturday after being treated for facial cuts.

Gregory told officers his car was headed north on North Ross Lane when he was blinded by a light.

State police said the car skidded across the intersection and hit a guard rail.
