Snake Skin Particularly Attractive To Flycatcher
You can purchase a flycatcher at any hardware store. Some folks call sticky paper a flycatcher; some folks resort to a more positive method and hit the offending insect with a swatter. The small boy called it a "fly hitter."

Some that defy description, or even common sense. This character goes all-out in bizarre "home furnishings" by installing, as part of the standard equipment, a snake skin in or very near the nest.

Seldom does the snake skin form an actual part of the nest itself, but is hung close to it. It may be hung on a splinter or nail within inches of the nest, or draped over the nest opening.

No one seems able to advance a reasonable explanation for this practice, except to suppose it may be a protective measure. But there may be a less obvious reason: The heathen witch doctor used snake skins as charms. Maybe the crested flycatcher is superstitious and uses a charm to frighten away any evil spirits that may be lurking in the neighborhood.

Synthetic Diet Test Conducted On Prisoners

VACAVILLE, Calif. (UPI) — Nutrition experts working toward the day when man can thrive on chemicals alone have revealed the results of experiments conducted with the assistance of 18 convicted criminals.

For 48 days, 18 convicts at the California prison system medical facility here have been subsisting on synthetic diets consisting solely of foods from a test tube, mainly amino acids which act as the body's protein builders.

Not only have the men subsisted on the synthetic diet, but they have shown physical improvement. Fat men have slimmed down and the thin gained weight. Also, researchers say, there have been few gripes and none of the prisoners said he regretted taking part in the experiment.

For Space Program
One aim of the synthetic diet project is to develop suitable food for man-in-space programs. The project is financed by a National Aeronautics and Space Administration grant of $400,000.

Dr. Milton Winitz, director of the project being conducted by the Medical Science Research Foundation, said the synthetic food would be wholly adequate for feeding men on round trips to the moon.

"But," he said, "the diet's chief virtues are not in space flight but in medicine."

He said the synthetic food substances could wipe out all diseases brought on by malnutrition or by protein deficiencies. Also, he said, users of the food could not develop allergies. It could be used for feeding the sick and aged intravenously and would make a perfect reducing diet, he said.

Explosion Shatters Democrat Offices

MIAMI (UPI) — A midnight explosion ripped apart the two-story headquarters of the county Democratic Executive Committee Monday night and bomb squad inspectors said they were working on the theory it was an intentional act.

No one was hurt in the blast, which crumbled two concrete walls and the roof of the structure. There was no fire.

One fire inspector called it "the worst explosion I've ever seen around here."

The building is located in the heart of downtown Miami. The streets around the structure were littered with concrete and glass.

books were presented to the Grange by Mrs. Florence Lanco, musician.

Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Wingham who decorated the dining tables with bright red apples, purple grapes and fall leaves.
