Nathan T. — At 74 he wants to leave New York and settle out West alone.

Mr. G. T. — I might as well be alone in a better climate and nicer home.

• • •

Nathan T. — My father took a charter flight tour to California last summer and fell in love with the place. He's in good health living in a furnished room in Brooklyn near me and other family members, but he says he wants to knock over his traces, leave us and his cronies, and set up residence in Monterey. He's going cold, knows no one out there. If anything happened, who'd help?

Mr. G. T. — Judging from Nathan's talk you'd think I saw him often. On the contrary, it's only a few times a year — say every other month and only for a short visit. I'm sound of body, limb, wind and mind and I yearn to get back to that California sun and gorgeous scenery. I can make friends and get settled. Whatever might happen to me here can happen there. I'll only be seven hours away from my son by jet.

• • •

The Council: Some fathers are incorrigible, Nathan! We've just heard of a 90-year-old who's looking for a town with a "future," and of a 95-year-old who signed a five-year lease. (See "A Full Life After 65," a booklet by Edith M. Stern.) . . . The only valid drawback here is Mr. T.'s lack of preparation for the change. We advise him to postpone his departure slightly, not indefinitely. In the interim, he should communicate with the local Family Service Association, or his religious organization, so that with his family he can select a few likely sounding residences to follow up by mail or phone. There are retirement hotels, special apartments for the elderly, sheltered community arrangements. Assured that he's comfortable, his son should have no strong demurrer. Nowadays it's family feeling, not proximity alone, which offers security. Nathan can beam it coast-to-coast, we hope. offers security.

Grange News

Phoenix Grange

"Booster Night" at Phoenix Grange was well attended. A potluck dinner was held before the meeting.

Lecturer Mrs. Lester Carr introduced Melvin Lattie, legislative chairman, who was in charge of the program. He spoke on the purposes and accomplishments of the Grange. He introduced speakers for the evening, Sen. Lynn Newbry and Rep. John Dellenback.

Newbry gave his views concerning the past tax bill and explained why it was handled as it was. He favors a sales tax as a means of added revenue.

Dellenbeck encouraged writing letters to legislators to tell why they gave a no vote and to offer their suggestions on the tax problem. He explained what is meant by basic school support.

Both men said there will be economies practised at the special session in November. They answered questions asked from the audience.

Grange members are reminded that the next meeting will start at 8 p.m. Nov. 12.

Dressing Beyond Means Not Uncommon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The fact that an attractive young German woman was forced to return home because of her alleged friendship with unnamed officials here is of little interest to me.

What I find intriguing is the manner in which the matter came to light.

According to a report I have been reading with beady little eyes, the State Department became suspicious of her conduct because she was "dressing beyond her means."

Presumably, her clothing was more expensive than the wife of a German sergeant would ordinarily be able to buy.

This strikes me as being a rather slim reed upon which to base an investigation. My own wife, for instance, has been dressing beyond her means for years. Or at least beyond my means.

But as far as I know she has never caused an eyebrow-lifting at the State Department.

Who's In Charge?

If buying dresses that their husbands can't afford is a sign that women are less than virtuous, then there must be a terrific traffic jam along the path.

What I would like to know is this: Who at the State Department has charge of noticing that women are dressing beyond their means? And how do you go about getting a job like that?

Much of the social life in Washington revolves around the embassy circuit. The dress inspector therefore must be a pretty busy fellow.

Publicity that the Ellen Rometsch case has been getting, coming on top of the Christine Keeler case in London, undoubtedly will make his work a lot harder.

If I were a socialite, I would be sure I wore last year's dress the next time I attended a party on Embassy Row.

Would Be Suspect

Ladies attending these functions probably will find it more difficult from now on to maintain their composure when they spot some guy giving them the once-over.

It would well be, of course, that the State Department's dress inspector is a woman. That would permit the inspector to feel the quality of the dry goods without risking a punch in the nose.

Or it could be that the department uses a two-man inspection team, one being a fashion expert and the other an accountant.

As for us husbands, the case suggests a rule of thumb that we can follow. As long as our wives' clothing keeps us broke, we can be fairly certain they are being faithful.

CAKE — What happens when your birthday falls near Halloween? Bob Cahill, Savannah, Ga., got a monster cake. Not necessarily big cake, but one in the image of the Frankenstein monster, which his parents had a local bakery concert for the occasion. He looks here, first surprised, taking a bite of the cake, "but he's really very good."

HOW TO GET RICH SLOW (but sure)

Every dollar you invest in Series E Savings Bonds grows 33⅓% bigger in 7 years and nine months. You can count on it.

It's not as exciting as drilling a wildcat oil well, or diving for sunken gold. But it's mighty reliable. Especially when you use the Payroll Savings Plan to help you make sure you buy Bonds regularly.

This famous plan takes the backsliding out of saving money by making it automatic. You just tell your employer you want him to set aside a small amount from your check each payday.

($4.33 a week will add up to twelve $25 Bonds a year. But you can have more or less deducted as you choose.)

Then you forget all about it. Savings come easily and almost painlessly. You never see the small amount that's deducted so you hardly miss it.

There's a unique satisfaction to saving money this way, too. Everytime you slip another Bond into your pocket, you know you're helping your country as well as yourself. Uncle Sam uses the money to help America resist the forces that threaten our freedoms.

Another thing about getting rich slow with U. S. Savings Bonds is that almost anybody can do it. So why not sign up for Payroll Savings before next payday?

Quick facts about U. S. Savings Bonds

- You get $4 for every $3 at maturity
- You can get your money anytime
- Your Bonds are replaced free if lost, destroyed or stolen
- You can buy Bonds where you work or bank
