

COMING DOWN—Don and Jean Fulcher of Medford purchased the old T. Jones Hotel in Hornbrook recently and started tearing it down and selling the old bricks of which the structure was built. This photo shows the demolition as it was in progress.

SCENE IN 1912—This old photo is taken from a post card showing the railroad depot at Hornbrook in about 1912. The T. Jones Hotel, built in 1888, was a beehive of activity in earlier days, because Hornbrook was a division point in the railroad network. As many as 32 trains a day went through.

Eagle Point Girl Receives Dad Potter Award In 4-H Horsemanship

EAGLE POINT — Miss Regina Krambeal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Adams of Grants Pass, Oregon Horsemanship Association judge, and Dale Hoeker, Jackson County 4-H Extension Agent.

Miss Krambeal passed the test enabling her to qualify for the award at the D and K Ranch, Eagle Point. She was judged by Mrs. Paul Adams of Grants Pass, Oregon Horsemanship Association judge, and Dale Hoeker, Jackson County 4-H Extension Agent.

She took the test riding Bourbon's Wonder Queen, an American Saddle Bred Horse. Some of the things Miss Krambeal and "Queenie" demonstrated were side stepping in both directions, two tracking in both directions, pivot in complete circle on forefeet, pivot in complete circle on haunches, flying change while cantering, and many others.

Shown At Fairs — Miss Krambeal has shown "Queenie" at the Jackson County 4-H Fair, as well as the Oregon State Fair. She has used this horse as her 4-H project for the past three years. This year she also showed Talisman's Bourbon Rex, a four month colt which she has been training for the future.

At the present, Miss Krambeal is 13 years old and a freshman at Eagle Point High school. She recently received her five year membership pin in 4-H. She is a member of the Desert Pegasus Club, led by James Dunn, her grandfather, who has been teaching her horsemanship since she was about three years old.

For her test, Miss Krambeal chose to ride English style, although she rode Western this year in both the county and state fairs. The test is such that a rider may use either type of gear, since it is the rider and his ability to control his horse by cues that is judged.

First To Qualify — Miss Laura May Noble became the first 4-H member in Jackson County to qualify for the award, having taken her test at the county fair in August. There are approximately 25 young people in the state who have received the award to date.

It is presented by E. L. "Dad" Potter, professor emeritus in animal husbandry from Oregon State University, and is intended to encourage proper practices in the handling of horses.

Miss Krambeal has enrolled as a junior leader for her horse club for this coming year and hopes to raise American Saddle Bred Horses in the future.

Dissatisfaction With Street Work Is Expressed

CENTRAL POINT — Members of the street committee expressed dissatisfaction with the work done on newly paved and curbed streets in Central Point when the City Council met Tuesday night. Councilmen instructed the city administrator and street committee members to inspect the streets and mark the areas which they wanted the engineer to examine.

Councilmen discussed the contract between the City of Central Point and City Sanitary Service and instructed City Attorney Roy Bashaw to make minor changes in the contract before final approval.

Residents of the Central Valley subdivision appeared before the council and stated that house trailers are being used as residences in that area in violation of a city ordinance.

Approved liquor permits for the Pioneer Cafe, Corner Club, Van Wey's Thrift Market and Faber's Market.

Appointed Councilman Don Patterson as a member of the joint school playground - city park committee.

Approved a mutual fire aid agreement with Talent.

Set a policy for the transfer of business licenses when a business is sold.

Approved an ordinance making the city administrator the general supervisor of all non-elective city personnel. The only exception would be the city judge.

Old T. Jones Hornbrook Hotel Sees Final Days

By KATHERINE CHAPMAN
Mail Tribune Correspondent
HORN BROOK — A pile of dust is about all that remains now of the old T. Jones Hotel here.

Built by Thomas Jones in 1888 at the time the railroad went through Hornbrook and north in to Oregon, the old building in its day was a beehive of activity. Hornbrook was the division point of the railroad, and as many as 32 trains a day huffed and puffed their way back and forth over the Siskiyou mountains, six steam engines at a time being required to haul the longer trains.

The dwindling number of 'old timers' in this area recall when the old hotel was a popular and fashionable stop-over on the scenic route through northern California. But times change, the division point was moved to Dunsmuir, and the old hotel began its downgrade.

The building, which also houses the "T. Jones Emporium," was sold several years ago to Ed Smith who managed the store for many, even before he bought the building, and he and Mrs. Smith still run the store.

Recently, Smith sold the hotel end of the building to Don and Jean Fulcher of Medford, who are tearing down the building and selling the old bricks of which it was built.

There is some disagreement around town as to where the bricks were made, some believing they were made in the old kiln at Henley where the bricks for the Oscar Barnum home were made, others holding they were made in Little Shasta and hauled over here by team.

Be that as it may, whoever had a hand in their manufacture knew his brick-making business, as all are in excellent condition, and have all the charm and historical interest so much sought after by "old brick" buffs.

Stamp On Sale At Rogue River

ROGUE RIVER — Rogue River Postmaster F. G. Petrie has announced the new Christmas stamp for 1963 is now on sale. Depicted in the design is the National Christmas tree near the White House. The color of the new stamp is blue, green and red on white paper.

Due to the wonderful acceptance of the special stamp for Christmas last year, the stamp for this year is being placed on sale around a month earlier for the convenience of the postal patrons. These stamps are the regular size of 100 stamps to the sheet and not to be confused with common or stamps that are larger, with 50 stamps to a sheet.

Ashland Council Asked For Option On Warehouse Land

ASHLAND — In addition to the Bellview annexation proposals presented to the Ashland City Council by City Superintendent Elmer Biegel at the Tuesday night session, several street paving projects were approved and liquor license renewals were granted to seven establishments.

Lloyd Selby, Ashland automobile dealer, offered a $1,000 check to the city for option on the warehouse property at Second street and Lithia Way. The federal government recently released its option after purchasing property across the street from Jim Busch, Mayor Richard Neill called a special session of the council to discuss the offer with Selby, who is presently out of town.

City Attorney Harry Skerry presented the listed properties upon which special benefit assessment is $85,204.89 which covers the period from Nov. 1, 1962 to Nov. 1, 1963. Publication was ordered.

A 90-day option was granted

Prospect Party Draws 40 Children

PROSPECT—About 40 youngsters attended a Halloween party last week at the Prospect Community Hall, given by the Cascade Gorge Christian Church and Pastor Dorian Woods.

Many of the children wore costumes, and prizes were given for those with the most unusual ones.

Games were played and refreshments were served by the Sunday School teachers and parents of the children. The hall was decorated in a Halloween theme with pumpkins and cornstalks.

MAYOR RETURNS — ROGUE RIVER — Mr. and Mrs. Leo Orvis, Gold Hill, and Mrs. John Leyen of Rogue River, went to the veterans hospital at Vancouver, Wash., recently to visit with Mayor John Leyen. Leyen was able to come home with them. He is now recuperating at his home, West Main Street, Rogue River.

'Big Kids' Take Over Halloween Night In Phoenix

PHOENIX — Chief of Police John Atchison of Phoenix this week expressed thanks to all who aided in patrolling the city during Halloween. The chief also had praise for the young people of the community on their good behavior.

Phoenix had an unexpected "fun night" Halloween evening, mostly for the older kids.

After the little goblins, witches and devils had had their fun at trick or treating, the older "kids" took over.

It reportedly began when one couple noticed a dim light out at the end of their driveway. Leaving their house lights on, they sneaked out and caught a couple of neighbors trying to block the driveway.

Soon the horseplay spread and many of the "big kids" were out tricking each other.

Phoenix Watermaster Irving Hascom, who was patrolling, stopped at his home for a cup of coffee at one point during the evening. When he came back out he found the back of his pickup piled high with street barricades and the like.

Hanscom was delighted, however. The barricades needed to be picked up anyway, he explained, and he hadn't had time to do it.

There were no reports of any damage.

Art On Display At CP Library

CENTRAL POINT — A new group of paintings were recently put on display at the Central Point Library. Now on exhibit are paintings by Mrs. Earl (Viola) Moore, Gold Hill.

The exhibit is sponsored by the Southern Oregon Society of Artists and is changed each month.

In conjunction with National Book Week the library has received a shipment of new books of interest to all age groups, according to Mrs. A. D. Van Horn, librarian.

Ray Family Moving to Trail

PROSPECT — The Rev. and Mrs. Lawrence Ray and family are in the process of moving to Trail. Mr. Ray is pastor of the Church of God in Prospect, but because of a shortage of houses here, combined with the recent sale of the property on which they were living, they have to move.

Mrs. Ray recently received word from Portland that her mother is seriously ill and in a hospital there.
