Humor Magazine in Russia Says U. S. Dials Revolutions

By NEIL A. MARTIN
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Dial "R" for revolution?

According to a Russian humor magazine, that is the thing to do these days among the Washington cloak and dagger set.

It seems, it said, that whenever Washington wants a military coup or civilian dictatorship in Latin America, it simply orders one by telephone.

These and other caustic comments on U. S. influence in Central and South American politics were published recently in Krokodil (Crocodile), a Soviet tri-monthly magazine.

In a two-page spread entitled, "in the region of the banana presidents," the publication accused Washington and "North American Companies" of keeping Latin American governments "bustling with war-like activities."

Bursting At Seams
"So much so," Krokodil continued, "that the entire area is bursting at the seams... (and) threatens to sweep revolutionary Cuba from the face of the earth."

"With shaking fists" the periodical added, Latin American dictators and "presidents" declare "that there is no democracy in Cuba."

"What they really mean," Krokodil concluded, "that there is no military junta in Cuba, similar to those ordered regularly from Washington by telephone."

The magazine took a journalistic jaunt through seven Central and South American countries to acquaint its readers with "Washington's small but highly dangerous provinces" and to "create a picture in our satirical journal of what's happening there."

Tour Latin Countries
The Soviet propagandists "toured" Honduras, Colombia, Ecuador, Venezuela, Haiti, Costa Rica and Nicaragua and said they found pretty much the same thing in each country.

The Latin American politicians, Krokodil added, are selling out their native countries to North American companies to "better their bank accounts."

And with Washington's protection, it said, the republics "change governments like one changes gloves."

It said that Latin American dictators and presidents contend "that democracy — real freedom — exists in their dictatorial patrimony. But in reality the president does whatever he wants to. If he wants to execute the democrats in his country he does so."

The Organization of American States (OAS), President Kennedy's Alliance for Progress program and the influence of U. S. capital in Latin America are frequent targets of Soviet satirists. Their attacks took on a harsher tone after the U. S. economic blockade of Cuba and anti-Cuban measures taken by the OAS and some central American countries.

Contributes Money
Even the John Birch Society, one Soviet Journal stated is contributing money "to recruit and pay mercenaries, buy arms and bribe central American civil servants to ensure their governments' participation in the projected invasion" of Cuba.

As the Soviet propagandists see it, Latin America is an area where the republics are really U. S. - Supported police states; where politicians and presidents are really Washington's hirelings; and where "economic concessions" to U. S. capitalists are mandatory if the regimes in office are to survive.

Motel Pools Said Business Getters

CHICAGO (UPI) — Most guests never go near the water at motel swimming pools, although one of every five motels in the nation now has a pool.

Manager Dan Pavis of O'Hare Inn said only 10 per cent of his guests used the pool last summer, although a survey showed 90 per cent of the guests were attracted by the pool.

"A pool brings business but doesn't do any," Pavis said.

Notices Mailed to Former Businesses Under New Program

What's in a name? Plenty, if the name is for a firm in business and identifies it for its customers. New living trends are reflected in many of the business names on file in the Jackson County Clerk's office.

Many of them came to light recently as 5,848 notices were mailed by the clerk's office to individuals named on certificates when business names are assumed.

This is the first step in a program under a new law passed by the 1963 Legislature which provides for the filing of the certificates with the Corporation Commissioner in Salem. County Clerk Marvin Madden first notifies all businesses no longer believed to be in business or no longer using the name, telling them to reregister within a 60-day period or the name will be cancelled.

Started In 1913
Business names are on file in Jackson County from June, 1913, and the office has numbers to 13,300, which includes certificates, amendments and retirements.

Certificate Number 1 was issued to Medford Sheet Metal Works and Number 4 to Hubbard Brothers. Other early filings are for livery stables, harness shops, and related businesses. World War II is marked by Number 1391 for Contractors Medford Cantonment, for construction of the U.S. Army Cantonment and facilities at Camp White.

Later Madden will notify all known operating businesses by certified mail that they must register their name with the Corporation Commissioner. Forms and instructions will accompany this notice, he said.

Done Without Fee
The county clerk explained that if reregistration is wished by any business, this may be done without fee and the name will be retained in the file of active businesses.

In the initial mailing, businesses known to be in operation were not notified. They will be notified by certified mail later.

The first mailing, by regular mail, is to save the county the cost of sending certified letters to those businesses no longer operating.

The entire program will cost several thousand dollars, Madden explained, but noted that part of this will be reimbursed by the Corporation Commissioner's office next year.

In the initial mailing last week notices were sent to Bal-four, Guthrie and Co., Liverpool and London, England; Jacksonville Post, Rogue River Valley Cigar Works, Oregon Central Cigar Factory, Sons of Italy Inn, Ice Arena Coffee Shop, and the Medford Military Tailors.

Early Certificates
A check of some of the early certificates issued in the county shows Oregon Hotel, Ashland, Number 22, and the Nash Hotel Barber Shop, Number 65.

Other names assumed by businesses and groups through the years include M & D Asthma Remedy Co., Phoenix Mercantile Co., Ashland Mills, Ashland Livery Stable, Talent Drug and Furniture Co., Medford Hike and Junk Co., New York Hair Dressing Parlors, Cascade Stage Line, Bend - Medford Stages, Eastern Supply Co., harness, shoe and bicycle; Medford Harness Co., False Friends' Club and the Fanny Fit Co.

The records also reflect business sales. High on this list is Woodland Heights Market which has 25 filings on record signifying sales.

PET TALK

By M. I. L.

TEACH THE CHILD

The wise teacher, experienced and enlightened by life's ways, omits nothing from his teaching that helps develop character and wholesome attitudes. So, it is most important to teach the child that God made all living creatures — not only man, that God gave intelligence, feeling and joy of life to the wild creature of plain and forest. He will teach the child that animals also are citizens of the world, and that man has no right to torture them in cruel steel traps, or to efface them from the surface of the earth. And, that the man, who cannot make friends with animals, who does not know the joy of companionship with a cat, dog or horse, or other furred and feathered creatures, misses some of the most precious gifts of life. However rich he may be in the things of this world, he is spiritually poor.

Teach the child not to kill needlessly, not to maim and destroy for amusement. And, that an imprisoned or chained-up animal suffers in much the same way as a human being suffers.

Teach the child that he who expects compassion and sympathy for himself must show compassion and sympathy to every living creature.

Man—The Most Dreaded Animal
The Bronx Zoo has an exhibit in its Great Apes House. Visitors are surprised to see themselves in a mirror, above which a sign reads: "You are looking at the most dangerous animal in the world. It alone of all the animals that ever lived can exterminate (and has) entire species of animals. Now it has achieved the power to wipe out all life on earth."

TALKS RESUMED
