

Newest Kennedy Hideaway Near Hunt Club

By HELEN THOMAS
 United Press International
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — The peaceful hunt country village of Atoka, Va., is about to become an international dateline, thanks to President and Mrs. Kennedy.

On nearby Rattlesnake Ridge, the first family has opened the newest presidential hideaway — a seven-bedroom stucco, ranch-style house. It is 50 miles from the hubbub of Washington but only a hoot and holler from Atoka.

Although the house was completed last spring, the Kennedys did not occupy it until Oct. 26. In the meantime they rented it — first to Washington investment broker, A. Dana Hodgdon and his wife, then to Mr. and Mrs. Ogdon Armour, wealthy Californians whose daughter attends the fashionable Foxcroft school for girls near Middleburg, Va.

The house was built primarily as a week-end retreat. Atoka's horse set calls it "Jackie's House" because Mrs. Kennedy drew up the preliminary plans and did all the interior decorating herself. She also helped select the site, which provides a breath-taking view of Virginia's Blue Ridge Mountains.

Cost Figures Differ
 The White House originally pegged the cost at $45,000 but the best guess in hunt circles is $100,000. They justify this by pointing to its five bathrooms

Amount of Wages Depends on How Much Education

How much is an education worth, financially, to the average young man in Medford? ... Does it pay, in the long run, to get more schooling, or is it better to drop out and start working a few years earlier?

Answers to these questions are contained in studies and reports made by the Department of Labor and by other agencies, federal and private. They show that each added year in school results in more income for the average person throughout his working career.

Also, they find, the chances of getting a job and of holding it are much brighter for the high school graduate than for the drop-out.

Of Particular Interest
 The subject is of particular interest at this time because of American Education Week, Nov. 10 to 16.

In Medford, based on the amount of schooling the average young man is now receiving and based upon present income levels locally, he can expect to earn approximately $262,000 during his working years, the figures show.

This is considerably better than his prospects would have been 15 or 20 years ago, thanks to the rising educational level locally and the higher wage scales.

Compares Favorably
 The amount compares favorably, also, with lifetime earnings in the rest of the United States, $248,000, and with the $281,000 in the Pacific States.

At one time, reports the Department of Labor, older workers with little education earned more money than younger ones with more education.

But now, it finds, the four years needed to get a high school diploma add as much to income as do 20 years of experience without a high school education.

The Commerce Clearing House estimates that failure to complete high school costs the average man $46,360 during his working career.

Average Wages
 The high school graduate in the United States, it reports, averages $5,567 a year as against $4,618 for the drop-out.

Among residents of Medford, the educational level was shown by the last census to be relatively high and to be moving higher.

The average person locally has been getting 12.1 years of schooling, which is considerably more than was acquired 20 years ago.

It compares with 10.6 years in the United States and 12.0 years in the Pacific States.

Bend Radio Man Honored at Banquet

BEND (UPI) — About 120 persons attended a surprise testimonial banquet Wednesday night for Frank H. Loggan, owner and general manager of radio station KBND.

The station will observe its 25th birthday Dec. 19. Speakers at the dinner included Mayor Al Nielsen; Freeman Schultz, manager of Brooks-Scanlon Lumber Co.; Redmond businessman Maurice Roberts; Ray Johnson, manager of KMED in Medford, and State Rep. Kessler Cannon, R-Bend, a member of the KBND staff.

and other appurtenances, such as a private road, stables and a picturesque pond that will be stocked with fish.

Architect Keith Williams of Winchester, Va., and Paul Fout, the Kennedy's Middleburg friend and agent, evade any questions about the price tag.

The living room is the largest of all the rooms. There also is a library where the President can find seclusion to work on official papers. Next to the library is a dining room and a kitchenette breakfast nook.

Dominating the house are two back-to-back fireplaces facing the dining room and the library.

Mementos Dot House

Here and there are exotic mementos of Mrs. Kennedy's world travels, including chairs from India, carved elephants from Pakistan, and elaborate Persian prints.

The house stands on a 39-acre tract, steeped in Civil War history, that once was part of the vast Virginia estate of Herbert Phipps, millionaire newspaper publisher and cattle rancher.

The Kennedy land straddles two of the first lady's favorite hunts, the Piedmont and the Orange county, with which the accomplished horsewoman and fox hunting devotee has ridden before.

Mrs. Kennedy is not expected to be riding for some time, however, until she recuperates completely from the premature birth last August of a son who died two days later.

The new hideaway is surrounded by ample fields for easy landings by helicopter — the Kennedy's favorite means of travel for short trips. It is secluded from well-traveled roads and has been wired for instant communication with the White House.

The first family is expected to attend Sunday Mass at the St. Stephen's Roman Catholic Church at Middleburg, not far away.

Other Retreats

Besides the Kennedy family vacation quarters at Hyannis Port, Mass., the President has taken his family to two other country retreats in the past.

One was Glen Ora, the 40-acre estate near Middleburg that he rented during the first two years of his presidency. When the Glen Ora lease expired, the first family began traveling on weekends to Camp David, the Navy-operated camp in Maryland's Catoctin mountains that former Presidents Dwight Eisenhower and Franklin D. Roosevelt frequently enjoyed.

Mr. Kennedy grew especially fond of Camp David because of its strict privacy, its swimming pool and other recreational facilities, and because it is a quick helicopter hop from the White House.

As the family settles down in their new home-away-from-home, Mrs. Kennedy has let it be known she wants one thing understood from the start.

She prefers that their new hunt country rambler be known as "Atoka" and not — as some already are calling it — "Rattlesnake."

The area is sprinkled with "positively no trespassing" and "keep out" signs. The country road into the estate, linking with federal-state Highway No. 50, has a green wooden gate and a U.S. Secret Service sentry box.
