

Darnell, Wyatt Pace Golf Field

GARDENA, Calif. (UPI)— Jerry Barber, Jim Ferrier, Charles Sifford, Jimmy Clark and amateur Gene Andrews—all past tourney winners here—teed off today in the second half of the bulging first round field of 318 for the $7,500 Gardena Open.

Amateur Bob Darnell, a policeman from neighboring Hawthorne, and Bruce Wyatt, an assistant pro at Bel-Air Country Club, shot 65 Thursday on the opening day of the tourney played over the Western Ave. golf course.

JUSTIN SMITH Golf Champion

Fall Golf Title Won By Smith

Justin Smith was winner in the fall handicap golf tourney at Rogue Valley Country club.

He had a 206 score to take the honors by seven strokes. Second place was taken by Ivan Harrington with 213. Other low scores included Jim Quincy and John Landers, each 214, and Ken Petersen 215. Landers was 1962 winner.

There were 44 entries. Smith's 66 net for one of the three 18-hole rounds was the lowest of the tourney. The one-handicapper had a 67 gross for the round.

The holiday handicap, a partnership event, is next on slate for men at RVCC. Thirty-five teams already are signed for the popular Dec. to March 1 event.

Wet Weather Could Hurt Oregon Ducks

By GOLFON RICE PORTLAND (UPI)— Northwest football teams usually consider the rain an ally when playing inter-sectional contests, but Oregon's clash with Indiana game is an exception.

The Weather Bureau's prediction of showers over the weekend is about as popular as an outbreak of measles in the Oregon camp, where hopes for a victory rest largely on Bob Berry, the nation's ninth leading passer.

Berry, despite a knee injury which caused him to miss parts of two games, has completed 70 of 125 passes for 1,212 yards and 11 touchdowns so far this season.

Two of Oregon's three losses came in the games in which Berry was hurt. He still won't be able to run well Saturday, but his arm is the important thing.

Adding to the Ducks' hopes for an aerial victory is the fact that 13 of the 18 touchdowns Indiana has given up this year have come through the air.

Renfro To Play A dry field also would help Oregon's speedy backs, including All-American Mel Renfro, another injury victim. He suffered a cracked rib against Washington three weeks ago, but showed rapid improvement in workouts this week.

Oregon also was cheered Thursday by the news that Larry Hill, the other regular halfback, will be available for limited offensive duty. He suffered a partial shoulder dislocation two weeks ago and was thought to be out for the season.

Indiana, rated a slight underdog by the oddsmakers, rests its hopes for a fourth consecutive victory on fullback Tom Nowatzke, a 220-pound blaster who demolished Oregon State 20-15 last week with a touchdown, two field goals and a pass interception.

Oregon has a 5-3 mark for the season, but has never beaten a Big 10 team in seven previous tries.

About 20,000 are expected at Multnomah Stadium, but good weather and the lure of Renfro, Berry and Nowatzke could raise that to 25,000. Game time is 2 p.m.

Small College Football Slate Will Conclude

By United Press International The small college football season ends in Oregon Saturday for everyone except possibly Lewis and Clark.

The Pioneers, champions of the Northwest Conference, have finished an 8-0 season and are awaiting a possible invitation to the NAIA playoffs.

In the meantime, Willamette and Linfield settle the battle for second place in the conference Saturday night at McMinnville. Each has a 3-1 league record going into the game.

Pacific and College of Idaho each 1-3, meet at Forest Grove in the game that will determine fourth place in the six-team league. Last place Whitman has completed its season.

Three Oregon Collegiate Conference teams close out their seasons with nonconference games. Southern Oregon appears to have the toughest job, a road game against Santa Clara. League champion Portland State is host to the semi-pro Seattle Ramblers and Oregon College of Education is host to Olympic Junior College in the only afternoon game.

Lewis and Clark's Mickey Hergert has clinched the Northwest Conference rushing and scoring titles.

The senior halfback has gained 872 yards in 159 carries for a 5.5 average. His nearest competitor is Whitman's Bill Hilger, who has also completed his season with 537 yards in 155 carries. Hergert's 17 touchdowns give him the scoring title with 102 points. Teammate Dave Quinlan is a distant second with 9 touchdowns and 54 points.

Hatcheries Will Have Busy Time

PORTLAND — The next two months will be a busy time at game commission fish hatcheries as October storms brought on intense activity of fall spawning eastern brook trout, rainbows, Atlantic salmon, chinooks and kokanee.

Chris Jensen, chief of hatchery production for the game commission, reported that more than 3,700,000 eastern brook trout eggs are already in the hatching trays at Fall River south of Bend, with another 300,000 to go to reach production quotas. Spawning activities are centered at the commission's egg-taking station at East Lake.

Fall spawning rainbows at Oak Springs hatchery on the Deschutes near Maupin are producing eggs in good numbers with 840,000 already on hand. Brood rainbows here are expected to produce about 2,000,000 eggs before the egg-take is complete.

Atlantic Salmon Of interest to anglers is the expected Atlantic salmon egg-take at the Wizard Falls hatchery on the Metolius. Although only 26 females out of 250 brood fish held matured to produce eggs, these fish may produce 80,000 eggs. About 21,000 eggs are already under incubation.

Spring chinook egg-take at the Rock Creek hatchery on the North Umpqua was completed by mid-October, with a quota of more than 238,000 eggs.

Disappointing to the commission was the failure of the egg-take from the large run of fish in tributaries of Detroit reservoir. Just as the egg-take got under way, Jensen reported, high and muddy water caused the fish to disperse, and only a few fish were able to be trapped. About 8,000 eggs were taken from this source, all of very high quality.

The egg-take at game commission hatcheries will continue through the fall and winter and well into the spring months.

OSU, Southern Cal Renew Grid Rivalry

UPI Sports Writer LOS ANGELES (UPI)— Coach Tommy Prothro's Oregon State team of "spillers" meets the University of Southern California tonight for the renewal of an old football rivalry.

The last time the Beavers and Trojans clashed was in the opening game of the 1960 season and John McKay's debut as head coach for Southern California fell flat under a 14-0 defeat.

Since that meeting, both teams reached success peaks. The Trojans last year emerged as the national champions while Oregon State with the sensational Terry Baker guiding it climaxed the successful season with a 6-0 victory over Villanova in the Liberty Bowl.

This year, going into tonight's clash at the Coliseum, the Beavers and Trojans own identical 5-3 records. It is the next to last game for both teams who clash with traditional rivals the following week and the success of the season hinges for both on their final two games.

Oregon State has been an independent team since the old Pacific Coast Conference folded and the Beavers would welcome rejoining their former league rivals in the Athletic Association of Western Universities if invited. The Beavers, as a result, are anxious to make a good showing tonight.

And despite Southern California being favored by two touchdowns, Oregon State has the material of which upsets are fashioned. Their chief weapon is one of the best passing attacks in the West.

Gordon Queen has been an able replacement for the graduated Terry Baker and in Vern Burke the Beavers have one of the great pass receivers in the nation who last year set numerous collegiate records as a receiver.

In addition, Prothro has a bevy of speedy backs that include LeRoy Whittle, Dan Espalin, Tim Osmer and Booker Washington.

Southern California has two outstanding running backs in Mike Garrett and Willie Brown who together were responsible for the win over Stanford.

WITH CLOWNS — Eural McKelvey, above, playing road manager of the Harlem Clowns, will bring the famous hoop magicians to Hedrick Junior High school gym Tuesday night to face the John Wheeler Loggers. McKelvey, who stands 6 feet, 7 inches tall and weighs 225 pounds, is the play-maker for the Harlemites.

Goose Tatum's Roadkings Will Perform at CP

CENTRAL POINT — A famous basketball personality, Reece (Goose) Tatum, ageless Clown Prince of the Court, is coming to town.

He's bringing his world-wide barnstorming team, the Harlem Roadkings to the Crater High gym on Wednesday, Nov. 27 when they go against another professional ginet, the Original New York Renaissance. Game time is 8 p. m.

Any time Goose Tatum goes on the floor, fans know they are in for a round of fun and laughter. He is the Emmett Kelly of basketball, the king of the cage clowns so to speak. But the Goose doesn't have to wear a clown's mask. He does his entertaining with basketball magic.

He's just as apt to shoot a goal for his opponents as he is to make one for his own team, provided the score isn't too close. And he's liable to be seated among the spectators at one time or another. The fans, down through the years, have never been surprised at anything the Golden Goose may do on the basketball floor.

25 Million Watch And like it. They like it so well that Goose Tatum's attendance record may never be surpassed by any other basketball player. In his more than 20-years of barnstorming, more than 25 million fans have paid to see him perform his antics. And he is still drawing crowds.

The six-foot, two-inch Tatum, a gangly fellow with the longest arm (84 inches) in basketball, joined the Harlem Globetrotters for one season just before the war. After entering service, he played with the great Lincoln, Neb. Air Force Base Team which won the national championship.

After the war, Tatum rejoined the Globetrotters and became known as the "Clown Prince of Basketball". Touring the world he became as famous in Tokyo as he was in Topeka. Five years ago Tatum formed his own team, the Harlem Roadkings. With him now is his former Globetrotter sidkick, Chuck Taylor, as well as Ramon Wilkinson, and others. And playing by his side, Tatum now has his own son, 22-year-old Reece Tatum, Jr., playing with his Harlem Roadkings. The youngster has picked up many of his dad's tricks and is a show in himself. The two together are a riot, fans agree.

Don't know how you answered the first question in today's quiz, but I'll bet there were a lot of people quickly looking back at last Friday's Medford-Grants Pass game. What a game! How about that safety? The Cavemen were really giving ducks for that screen pass play that Medford worked hard to set them up for. We'll see all you football fans at Roseburg this evening when the Tornados take on another top team in the state. Only three more games to the state title and let's really get out there and help this Tornado team along.

Peralta Choice Over Thornton

NEW YORK (UPI)—Gregorio Peralta of Argentina and Wayne Thornton of Fresno, Calif., fight tonight at Madison Square Garden for a possible shot at the world light heavyweight crown.

On the basis of their respective non-title showings against champion Willie Pastrano this year, Peralta is favored at 11-5 to beat Thornton in their nationally televised 10-rounder for his 26th straight victory.

Handsome, 1 1/2-haired Peralta, 28, is heavyweight champion of Argentina and ranked 17th among world heavyweight contenders; but both he and his handlers claim he can pare down to the light heavyweight, 175-pound limit with ease for a title shot.

Gregorio gave champion Pastrano perhaps his worst beating of his career on Sept. 20 in a non-title 10-rounder at Miami Beach, where the South American made his United States debut.

In Peralta's second United States fight tonight, he seeks his 40th victory and 12th knockout in 41 bouts. He says he lost only his first bout—on a knockout by Mauro Mina of Peru.

Thornton's 29-3-1 record includes 18 knockouts. He, too, was stopped on...

Deer Showing Up At Lower Elevations

PORTLAND (UPI)—The weekly hunting report issued by the Oregon State Game Commission:

Northwest: Elk and waterfowl hunting poor throughout the Willamette Valley-Lane County area. Prospects are fair this weekend for deer on lands adjacent to agricultural areas.

Southwest: Deer are beginning to appear at lower elevations but elk remain holed up at higher elevations. Pheasant hunting has been poor to fair.
