Rocky Hits U.S. Foreign Policy, Scores Goldwater

Senator Said Not In GOP Main Stream

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York Saturday night in his first major speech since becoming a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination charged that the Kennedy administration is jeopardizing the peace and demoralizing our allies with a weak, indecisive foreign policy.

At a news conference earlier, Rockefeller said Sen. Barry Goldwater is "not in tune with the main stream of Republican thinking."

"The fog of soothing statements coming from Washington will not be able to hide indefinitely that all is not well within our position in the world," Rockefeller said in a speech prepared for delivery at an awards dinner of the Press Club of Metropolitan St. Louis.

"We must realistically face the fact that our world position has deteriorated under the present administration."

Rockefeller had a busy day, which included two news conferences and two television interviews.

At one conference he said Goldwater, considered by many Rockefeller's top rival for the nomination, will not be the 1964 Republican standard bearer if the senator does not make "some radical changes."

Rockefeller challenged the Arizona Senator to modify his stands on foreign and domestic affairs. "These positions are not in tune with the main stream of Republican thinking," he said.

However, Rockefeller pledged to support "whoever wins the (GOP) nomination."

He indicated he has not counted out former Vice President Richard M. Nixon as a contender for the presidential nomination.

"Nixon is in the wings and peeking around the curtains," he said.

Sen. Vote Kills Cigarette Tax Bill

SALEM (UPI) — A House-passed bill to ask the voters to tax cigarettes at four cents a package was killed by the Senate Saturday the minute it arrived.

The Senate voted 19-10 to table the bill on first reading. The vote to kill the measure without ever sending it a committee was a rare one.

A majority of the senators had promised earlier to kill any "new taxes."

Election Slated In South Talent Sanitation District

Oettinger, Jessen Seek Board Seats

TALENT—A. W. Oettinger and W. B. Jessen will be the candidates for a seat on the board of directors of the South Talent Sanitary District in a special election Monday, Dec. 2.

Petitions bearing sufficient signatures to nominate the two men were filed prior to the deadline last week. They are seeking the seat now held by Donald Grimes, who is not running for re-election.

Oettinger is the proprietor of the Resmore Motel on South Pacific Highway. Jessen resides at Route 1, Box 227, Talent.

A public hearing has been scheduled by the Jackson County Court for Nov. 27 concerning requests from several property owners who wish to withdraw from the sanitary district.

The owners involved are located in a part of the district which would not be served by the sewer system initially proposed.

District board members have assured owners in this area, however, that they would be served as soon as it is financially feasible for the district to do so.

One week after the director election on Dec. 9, voters in the district will go to the polls again to consider approval of a $135,000 bond issue to finance the major portion of the initially proposed sewer system.

Former M-T Staff Member Killed in Portland Crash

PORTLAND (UPI) — Robert Keith Walters, 29, entertainment editor and columnist for the Portland Oregonian, was killed in an early morning auto crash in Portland Saturday.

A passenger, Joan E. Fletcher, 29, of Portland, was listed in satisfactory condition at St. Vincent Hospital. She suffered a fractured right ankle, head injuries and a leg injury.

Portland police said Walters' car struck a power pole and veered into the side of a railroad boxcar. There were no witnesses to the crash. Walters was pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital.

He came to the Oregonian in 1960 from the Medford Mail Tribune, and before that had worked for the Humboldt Times at Eureka, Calif., and a Japanese news agency. He was a native of Jackson, Ohio, and attended Ohio State University.

Stassen May Toss Hat in GOP Ring

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — Harold E. Stassen said Saturday night he will announce "sometime in December" whether he will seek the Republican presidential nomination.

Stassen said at a news conference he does not feel Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., or Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York would win the Republican nomination. He was scheduled to address the Sedgwick County Republican Women's Club later Saturday night.

The former Minnesota governor, who served as President Eisenhower's disarmament advisor, said he was not interested in the vice presidency. Stassen said that as a candidate for president he would bring together Republican forces and enough independent votes to win election.

He said an "increasing but limited" number of persons have recently urged him to seek the Republican presidential nomination.

President Observes Underwater Shot Of Polaris Missile

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — President Kennedy watched the underwater firing of a Polaris missile for the first time Saturday in a spectacular windup of a whirlwind visit to America's No. 1 spaceport.

Clad in a Navy-blue windbreaker to ward off the ocean chill 25 miles out, the Chief Executive flashed a grin when the missile thundered from the ocean and sped away to a target 1,500 miles away.

"Wonderful," Kennedy said later. The President, combining business with relaxation on a trip to Florida, flew to Cape Canaveral Saturday on what was interpreted as a renewed pitch for support of U.S. plans to land men on the moon before the end of this decade.

Kennedy appeared particularly impressed by a giant Saturn "super-boost" rocket scheduled for an attempt next month to send a 16-ton satellite, the world's largest, into orbit around earth. The moonlet would dwarf a new "Cosmos" moonlet put into orbit early Saturday by the Soviet Union.

Stoje Show On this occasion, American and Russian space plans and space races had to take a back seat. The U.S. Navy stole the show in a day that Kennedy, a former Navy man himself, called "wonderful."

The Navy whisked the Chief Executive 25 miles out to sea aboard a helicopter, landed him on the deck of the Laboratory Ship U.S.S. Observation Island and gave a submerged nuclear submarine, the U.S.S. Andrew Jackson, "go-ahead" for the Polaris shot.

Kennedy flashed his famous grin when—at 11:55 a.m. EST—the bottle-shaped Polaris broke the Atlantic's surface 1,200 yards away in a towering geyser of salt spray after the sub rammed it from a tube atop a column of compressed air.

The President watched intently for a moment with a naked eye as the missile began its fiery climb. Then he lifted a pair of binoculars to catch a better view of the missile as its boosters stage separated one minute later.

Barghoorn Flies To England; Due In U.S. Today

Reds Decline to Drop Spy Charge

LONDON (UPI) — The Soviet Union unexpectedly freed Yale Prof. Frederick C. Barghoorn, 52, on spy charges Saturday because of President Kennedy's "personal concern" and expelled him from Russia. He flew to London where he said it was "sure good to be out."

Barghoorn, "tired and nervous," arrived in London aboard a British European Airways Comet jet a few hours after his release, apparently on personal orders of Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in an effort to prevent a freeze in U.S. - Soviet relations.

Few Details His first words relayed by embassy officials was that "I don't want to talk about" his arrest on spy charges 16 days ago and his time spent communicating in a Soviet prison. But after a short rest at the home of embassy friends he disclosed a few details of his release.

Embassy spokesman James Pettus said "the professor was very tired and nervous. He was told at 2:15 this afternoon he was to be released. He was taken under escort to the airport and put straight aboard the plane.

Despite his release the official Tass news agency still was informing the Russian people Barghoorn was guilty.

Barghoorn, apparently still a little frightened by the experience, told embassy representatives here he had spent 16 days in prison without any knowledge of what was going on in the world except what he read in the Communist party newspaper Pravda.

Pravda had reported detention of "tourist Barghoorn" and said an investigation was under way but Barghoorn said he had no idea of the international furor over his arrest or that Kennedy had personally demanded his release until fellow passengers told him on the plane.

To Leave London The embassy said Barghoorn would leave London at 11 a.m. (6 a.m. EST) today aboard Pan American flight 101 due at New York's International Airport at 1:40 p.m. EST and that he would go direct from there to New Haven, Conn.

One of Barghoorn's first actions was to telephone his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Barghoorn, 80, in New Haven, Conn.

(Mrs. Barghoorn said in New Haven that her son told her that he had also telephoned Yale University President Kingman Brewster Jr., who is vacationing in Italy. She said her son was hopeful that Brewster would be able to return to the United States with him.)

CAIRO (UPI) — A contract to salvage the 3,000-year-old Abu Simbel temples from the Aswan dam waters was signed Saturday night with an international consortium.

3 Former Oregon Convicts Confess Robbery-Shooting

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Three ex-convicts from Oregon Saturday described how they capped a two-state robbery spree by shooting and killing a California Highway Patrolman.

"I blasted him across the road," said Roger Mealman, 29, when investigating officers asked for details on the death of Patrolman Glenn Carlson.

Carlson, a 33-year-old father of four, had stopped Mealman and his two accomplices Friday night as they were fleeing California to Nevada after robbing a Sacramento bank of $44,628 about three hours before.

The officer had stopped their eastbound car for speeding on U. S. 40 near Donner Summit, where the transcontinental divide goes over the Sierra crest and descends toward Reno, Nev.

After issuing the citation, Carlson made a radio check on the car (a white Cadillac) and learned that the registration had been issued to another vehicle.

He pursued and stopped them once more and walked into a barrage from Mealman's gun. Wounded Twice

Nevada County Coroner's deputies in Truckee, Calif., about five miles east of the shooting site, said that the officer was wounded twice in the chest, but that the wounds might have been caused by one bullet.

After dragging the officer's body from the road, the trio drove south to Tahoe City, on the northeast shore of Lake Tahoe, where Mealman and Robert L. Burns, 31, took a taxi to Reno. The third man, Raymond Toyen Jr., 29 (alias Raymond Patterson) got out of the car as it went back through Truckee.

Meanwhile, Highway Patrolmen had discovered Carlson's body and issued an alarm. An unidentified witness in Tahoe City had seen the trio abandon the car and told officers of the cab hiring.

Police intercepted the cab driver on his return from Reno and learned that Mealman and Burns had chartered a plane in Reno for Sacramento. They arrested the two as they arrived here Saturday and picked up Toyen in a Truckee hotel, all within five hours of the shooting.

State Senate Fight On Basic School Cuts Seen

SALEM (UPI) — In a surprise move Saturday, the Senate refused to suspend rules and vote on the measure which would give Gov. Mark Hatfield authority to cut basic school support.

SALEM (UPI) — The Boardman crisis, and an expected Senate fight over basic school cuts could dash leaders' hopes for a Tuesday adjournment of the special session of the legislature.

And a special bill being rushed through to set dollar amounts cuts in the capital construction program could open the whole allotment procedure to legislative review — a process which could take weeks.

Rep. Kessler Cannon, R-Bend, asked Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton for an opinion on the legality of the allotment procedure. A reply is expected shortly.

One Vote The emergency program asked by Gov. Mark Hatfield to deal with the fiscal crisis resulting from the Oct. 15 tax referendum was only one Senate vote away from approval.

Higher Education Probe Suggested

SALEM (UPI) — The Ways and Means Committee has recommended that the Legislative Fiscal Office hire another analyst and have the Interim Education Committee proceed as planned with a probe into higher education.

The decision was made after Sen. Walter Pearson, D-Portland, charged there was a "iron curtain" between the legislature and the State Board of Higher Education.

Pearson said "we have to find out what is going on in the system of higher education."

He wanted $35,000 set aside for such a study. The committee action, however, restores one staff analyst budgeted by the regular 1963 session. The position was not filled when it became apparent the tax increase would be referred.

But it was indicated Saturday a Senate fight may be brewing on the measure to allow the governor to make the cuts in state aid to local school districts.

In a surprise 15-14 vote Saturday, the upper house refused to suspend rules and vote on the basic school bill.

Sen. Walter Pearson, D-Portland, said action was delayed because "there's lots of opposition to the measure in the Senate."

Both the Senate and House have approved a speedup of tax collections to bring in an additional $12 million this biennium.

The basic school measure, and the tax collection bill were the only legislation asked by Hatfield when he called the special session.

But Friday it was learned the governor did not have the constitutional right to eliminate the capital construction program, so a special bill doing so was introduced.

Abdicating Authority It was a victory for the bloc of legislators who have charged the legislature was abdicating its authority to let Hatfield make the cuts.

While legislative leaders hoped the measure would zip through, there was the possibility that debate on the bill could spread to the entire allotment procedure.

Many Republicans and a few Democrats feel the legislature should make all the cuts, rather than have Hatfield do it.

The Boardman issue remained a question mark. House Speaker Clarence Barton seemed to feel it would not delay adjournment.

Both Barton and Senate President Ben Mousa have predicted a Tuesday adjournment.

But nobody was talking too much about adjournment — for fear the Boardman crisis would explode into a nightmare.

Mme. Nhu's Bills Not Being Paid

Washington (UPI) — An official of the Viet Namese embassy said today that Madame Nhu is getting bills run up by the embassy.

Madame Nhu during her recent tour of the United States — but is not paying them.

"It was purely personal trip," an embassy official said. "We advised that the bills be sent directly to Mrs. Nhu."

It was reported that the embassy has been getting bills for lodging, luggage and limousine service, allegedly resulting from Madame Nhu's trip. She had visited a number of U.S. cities in an effort to improve the image of the regime of her late brother-in-law, Ngo Dinh Diem.

The Diem government fell in a coup d'etat, however, and Diem and her husband were killed.

When Ambassador Do Van Li arrived here to replace Mme. Nhu's father, Tran Van Chung, as ambassador, he emphasized that Mme. Nhu, who was in the country at the time, was not visiting in an official capacity.
