Rifle-Shot Damage Noted by Company

Extensive rifle-shot damage to ceramic insulators on high-voltage transmission lines of Pacific Power & Light Company in the local area since deer hunting season began has prompted the company to issue a warning to hunters.

"There is real danger to hunters, who might be under the high-voltage circuits if they drop to the ground due to the gunshot damage, or to other persons who might be injured if the lines break and drop to the ground unexpectedly sometime later," the company's district manager, F. A. Benesh, said.

The PP&L manager reported there has been a greater number of insulators broken this year than in past seasons. "One result of such gun-shot damage that should be remembered is the inconvenience caused to many people when outages occur as the result of short-circuiting due to insulators that have been broken or shattered by gunfire," he said.

It was explained that the short-circuiting can occur because of rain on the damaged equipment. When it occurs at night, the PP&L crews cannot patrol the isolated transmission lines by helicopter to visually spot the trouble. As a result the restoration of service is delayed, Benesh added.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Committee on Un-American Activities resumes hearings Monday

breakup of his marriage to Dinah Shore. Johnson: Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson poked fun at the GOP and defended the Kennedy administration in a series of appearances in the Los Angeles area. Johnson, at a $100-a-plate dinner, said the "opposition party" was "truly opposition in every sense—against the administration, against progress and against each other."

Nhu: Mme Ngo Dinh Nhu left Los Angeles for a Rome reunion with her three children vowing her dead husband was betrayed by Judas dollars of American aid. Twice previously she had held reservations for the trip but cancelled on the advice of her physician.

Ruel: Harold D. (Muddy) Ruel, one of Walter Johnson's favorite catchers and a gentleman lawyer in his own right, died of an apparent heart attack in Palo Alto. Ruel, who was 67, had lived in the San Francisco suburb for the past six years following his retirement from a baseball career that saw him just as active in the front office as he was on the diamond.

Tahoe: California Gov. Edmund G. Brown and Gov. Grant Sawyer of Nevada unveiled a long-range plan calling for transportation of treated sewage from the Lake Tahoe basin by the fall of 1965. The goal of the governors' seven-point program was to keep sewage from leaking into the crystal clear lake waters. The problem has become critical in recent years due to population growth at the mile-high Sierra resort which straddles the California-Nevada border. Brown and Sawyer held a conference at the lake to talk over Tahoe problems.

Plane: A single engine airplane returning from Texas crashed in thick fog near Keos in the San Joaquin Valley, killing three members of a Ripon family and another man. The victims were Henry Arnold Thoms, 44, his wife, Marian, 43, and their son, Gary, 20, and James E. Newsum, 42, Stockton. They were returning home from a trip to El Paso, Tex.

Bus: The ninth fatality was recorded in a tragic Greyhound bus accident on U.S. 40 near Truckee. Frank B. McGrath, 74, of Sacramento, died in a Reno hospital. Five persons died outright when the bus skidded in a storm and overturned Nov. 5. Four others died later from injuries.

Auto: A car carrying four teenagers plunged 1,800 feet down a cliff from the Angeles Crest highway near Azusa, killing two of the youths and seriously injuring the other two who were trapped inside the wreckage. Dead were Linda Imlay, 16, and Wayne Lightfoot, 16. All the youths were from West Covina.

Pris: Eight convicts were felled by ricocheting shotgun pellets during a race riot at the

Young, Round-Faced Man Is Sought in Missing Coed Case

By United Press International Police sought a young, round-faced man "who looks athletic" in the case of missing University of California coed Judy Williamson.

Police said the suspect drove a white 1960 Chevrolet convertible and was connected with an odd set of circumstances at San Pablo Avenue and Castro Street in Albany Oct. 29 when the pretty 18-year-old brunette vanished.

Albany Police Chief Ralph Jensen was inclined to the theory that the pre-med student was picked up by an acquaintance while walking from her home to a nearby bus station on the morning she disappeared.

Elsewhere, there were these developments: Montgomery: The enamored former maid of George Montgomery was found guilty in Los Angeles of simple assault against the actor. At the same time, Ruth Wenzel, 37, was acquitted of a charge of assault with intent to commit murder. She was accused of shooting at Montgomery in his home Aug. 27 after waiting three days for his return. The German-born former housekeeper indicated during the trial that he claimed intimacies with Montgomery contributed to the second and third floors when the power failed. The three were found inside unconscious. Mrs. Wells had been working on the store payroll.

Several firemen were overcome by the smoke while fighting the blaze. Flames on the third floor burned into plastic materials, sending the poisonous fumes throughout the building. Firemen finally got to the blaze through the roof and brought it under control about 11:30 p. m. after an hour and a half after it was discovered.

Flames were confined to the third floor and roof, but extensive smoke and water damage occurred throughout the building. Loss was estimated in the thousands of dollars.
