ASHLAND—Fourteen Southern Oregon College undergraduate students have been selected to have their names included in the 1963-64 Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

Candidates were nominated by Southern Oregon College clubs, organizations and faculty. A final list of nominees was made by a faculty committee on student honors and awards before the names were submitted to the publication.

Nominations to the college Who's Who were based upon excellence and sincerity in scholarship, leadership and participation in extra-curricular activities, citizenship and service to the school and promise to future usefulness to society. To be eligible for nomination, students had to be fulltime, regularly enrolled students during the quarter in which they were nominated.

SAE Pledgemaster Returns to Campus After Kidnaping

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—David Garner, 22, Botell, Wash., was en route home today following one of the most bizarre fraternity "kidnapings."

Garner said he was "kidnaped" early last Friday morning from his bed in Tacoma, Wash., where he is vice pledgemaster of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity at Puget Sound University.

Fraternity pledges taped his legs and handcuffed the pajama-clad senior but freed his bonds and gave him clothing at University of Oregon. Garner was shuttled by car from pledge class to pledge class through three states for a distance of 1,500 miles, a 36-hour trip.

When he arrived at San Diego College last Saturday night he was whisked immediately to Tijuana, Mexico, to attend a party in his honor. Garner said his "captors" were respectful and pledges at Puget Sound University—who talked by telephone with each college along the coast where Garner happened to be at the moment—always asked him if he were having a good time. A fraternity brother is driving Garner home.

BIG SNARL — Cary Baldwin, director of Fleishacker Zoo in San Francisco, Calif., gets a big snarl from five-months-old black-maned Ethiopian lion, as Cary welcomed the cub last Friday. The cub was flown to San Francisco from Mexico City, via Western Airlines, after it was won as a prize at a travel agents convention. The new owner then found out how much it costs to feed a hungry lion, and promptly offered it to Baldwin at the zoo. (UPI)

Council Statement On Catholic-Jew Relations Lauded

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Ecclesiastical Council fathers gave warm and prolonged applause Tuesday to the presentation of historic statements on Catholic relations with Jews and on religious liberty.

The statements declare that Jews should not be made scapegoats for the crucifixion of Christ and proclaim the right of all men to the free exercise of religion according to the dictates of conscience.

Although the statement on religious liberty received the greatest applause, the council fathers gave close attention to the presentation on the statement of Jews made by Augustin Cardinal Bea, head of the secretariat for promoting Christian unity.

The German-born cardinal said the statement was a purely religious matter and that there was no question of the council getting mixed up in difficult questions of Arab-Israeli politics.

Oriental Fathers Object — Some Oriental council fathers had objected Monday that the special treatment of the Jews in a document on Christian unity could lead to the persecution of Christian minorities in the Arab world.

Cardinal Bea told council fathers that his secretariat has informed Arab states of the non-political nature of the proposed statement.

The document is intended to recall what the church of Christ has received through the Old Testament of the Hebrews and that the church in modern times is the continuation of the chosen people of Israel, Bea made clear in his presentation.

Despite the cardinal's speech, three more prelates Tuesday objected to the inclusion of the statement on the Jews in the overall document on Christian unity.

Emile Cardinal Leger of Montreal, Canada, said both the chapter on the Jews and that on religious liberty should be deleted as separate documents.

Gives Presentation — Bishop Emile De Smedt of Bruges, Belgium, gave the presentation of the chapter on religious liberty on behalf of Cardinal Bea's secretariat.

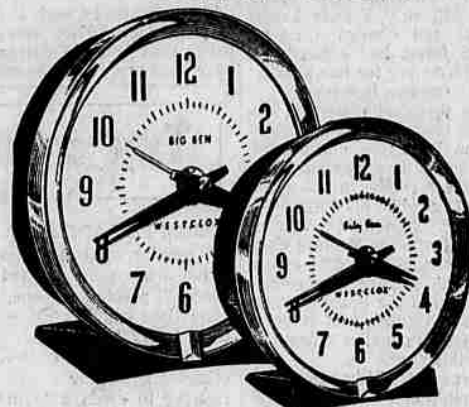

which reached its peak in Pope John's last encyclical "Pacem in Terris" (Peace on Earth).

The religious liberty chapter, prepared partly at the urging of the American church hierarchy, proclaims the right of individuals to follow their consciences in religious matters and to worship freely or refrain from worship without government interference.

If approved, this would be the first unequivocal Catholic statement of this view. The church has traditionally held that "error does not have the same rights as truth," a position which has sometimes been interpreted as a denial of religious liberty.

Small Worlds Around Us

Misplaced Some Organs

It may have been intentional in the beginning, when Nature was designing and creating living things, to misplace various body organs in odd or unusual locations in the bodies of her subjects. Possibly it was more-or-less an experiment, sort of toying around with ideas as to the best place to locate various organs.

The experiment, if that is what it was, seems to have been successful for although some organ placements seem rather ridiculous to us, it works out pretty well for the creatures that have to use them.

The katydid listens well with her "knee-ears"; the starfish sees all that is necessary with its "arm-eyes" and the sea-horse gets along swimmingly without a backbone, and the turtle without any ribs. The tree frog breathes comfortably by pores in its stomach or absorbs moisture the same way. All these things are commonplace with those creatures that are adjusted to their way of life. But just the same, organ placement, or body functions, in some animals are unusual.

Teeth Placement

An extraordinary and absurd location for teeth would be down in an animal's throat but that's just where the ocean drum, a coarse marine fish, carries his; they are called paving stone teeth, and they are strong enough to crush oyster shells. The great Manta ray, often called Devil-fish for no justifiable reason, has its teeth "knocked down its throat" too. Perhaps old Mother Nature was in a foul mood when she kicked the teeth down the throat of the Manta ray.

Something must have messed up some of the lines on creation's drawing board, when the antennae of the roach was extended out to abnormal lengths. The heart of the roach just didn't have the power to send the body fluids such a distance. So, what did Nature do? She didn't shorten the antennae but instead she built in a couple of auxiliary pumping stations in the insect's head. They take over the body fluids and give them an added push, forcing the blood up to the far tips of the long antennae.

Frog Lungs — Encouraged by the success of the "head-heart" Nature tried something else equally outlandish. She put lungs right in the stomach of the frogs, making it possible for them to bury themselves in deep mud, hold their breath, and live there.

Legislators Get Per Diem Expense

SALEM (UPI)—Legislators got their $20 per diem expense money Monday for the first week of the special session.

All but two legislators were sent expense checks. Secretary of State Howell Appling Jr. said Rep. John Dellenback, R-Medford, wrote a letter last week rejecting his expense money. Appling said Sen. Tom Monaghan, D - Milwaukie, a school teacher, turned down the money for three days during which he was teaching.

Meanwhile, the Full Ways and Means Committee Monday failed to approve a bill by Rep. Jake Bennett, D-Portland, to cut the pay of legislators and state employees.

The committee amended the bill more than a dozen times, but refused to pass it out. Proposals to cut the pay of state employees and legislators have been rebuffed all around the legislature.
