

HEADLINES AROUND THE STATE — This group of Friday afternoon and Saturday morning newspapers from around Oregon depicts the various ways in which the grim news of President Kennedy's assassination was handled. The two large headlines at the top were in the Klamath Falls Herald and News and the Bend Bulletin. Below them and to the left are copies of the Albany Democrat-Herald and the Coos Bay

By United Press International
The newspapers of the free world joined in a single voice Saturday to mourn the death of President John F. Kennedy with black-bordered editorials calling him a champion of liberty.

The press in the Communist bloc nations also expressed sorrow over the assassination. One Communist newspaper, the London Daily Worker, mixed criticism with grief. It attacked Kennedy for "hatred of Cuba" and "inadequate" civil rights policies.

Editorial comment included: London Daily Herald: "The Stalins of the world mostly die in their beds. It is the Lincolns and the Kennedys who are shot down. Rest in peace, John Kennedy. You helped us much."

The Manchester Guardian: "A tragedy for the world."

The Times of London: "The assassination of President Kennedy is a shock great enough to shake the structure of the world."

Glasgow Herald: "An international disaster. He was the Captain Courageous of the Western Alliance... the true friend of Britain and the embodiment of all that is greatest in the tradition of the American presidency."

Paris Liberation: "One of the greatest catastrophes in the world."

Caio Al Gombouria: "... One of the greatest, if not the greatest, Presidents in America's modern history. The world has lost a bulwark of peace and lost an active soldier. The Negroes lost a true friend."

Frankfurter Allgemeine: "John F. Kennedy embodied the best hope of a modern and sound humanity."

Belgrade Daily Politika: "... A statesman deeply convinced that mankind need nothing more than a lasting peace. A brutal crime."

Warsaw Zycie Warszawy: "Kennedy was more far-sighted than his predecessors. He was better aware than they of the conditions and possibilities of the present international situation. He took account more than they of the necessities of the atomic era, of the new alignment of forces in the world."

Rome Il Messaggero: "... He was flying in the world flag of redemption, liberation, reconciliation, and was fighting the evil beast of racism, colonialism, anti-democracy, oppression and misery. All free men recognized him as their leader."

Rome Avanti: "... The man who wanted to address a cry of alarm to all mankind against the dangers of selfishness, individualism and nationalistic narrowness."

Philippines Herald: "... A giant towering above less worthy world leaders many years his senior."
