3 Women Inmates Recaptured After Hitting Barricade

ALDERSON, W. Va. (UPI)—Three young, mentally disturbed women fled the Federal Women's Reformatory here with a hostage in a stolen car Saturday but were captured when they rammed into a police barricade several miles away.

Warden Gladys Bowman identified the escapees as Nona Mae Shelton, 19, of Indianapolis, Ind.; Betty Joe Hansen, 26, Portsmouth, N. H.; and Mary Katherin Dortch, 20, of Russellville, Ark.

Miss Shelton is serving concurrent four-year sentences for participation in a bank burglary; Miss Hansen, a five-year term for bank robbery; and Miss Dortch a six-months-to-two-year term for interstate transportation of a stolen car.

The warden said the young women took Guard Margaret Smith of nearby Lewisburg as a hostage inside one of the prison dormitories. Threatening her, they forced her to get into her car with them and speed away, ramming through the prison's main gate.

The Hansen woman was driving the car. When it reached a state police barricade on nearby U. S. 219 about three miles south of Ronceverte, W. Va., the car smashed into a police cruiser blocking the road and the girls were taken into custody.

Mrs. Bowman said Mrs. Smith and the girls suffered various injuries in the wreck and were being treated at hospitals. One was believed to have a broken hand and another a broken ankle.
