Mme. Galli-Curci Of Opera Fame Dies at Age 81

LA JOLLA, Calif. (UPI) — Amelita Galli-Curci, whose name symbolized the skill and temperament of opera glamour for decades, died Tuesday at the age of 81.

Private funeral services are to be conducted Thursday. Inurnment will be in the Great Hall of Cypress View Mausoleum in nearby San Diego.

The petite, still youthful appearing coloratura soprano had been afflicted during the past 10 years with a lung condition—pulmonary emphysema — and had been confined to bed for the past month.

With her when death came were her physician, Dr. Frederick De La Vega, and a nurse, Mrs. Catherine Gray.

There are no surviving relatives.

Born in Milan, Italy, Mme. Galli-Curci — who often criticized American opera as too stilted — reached the peak of her fame in the 1920s when she gave as many as 100 concerts a year.

At first rejected by the Metropolitan Opera, she was a diva for that famed group from 1926-1930 and frequently sang with the Chicago Opera where she had gained her first American success.

Of American opera, she had said: "They are afraid of being corny. They should be corny. Opera is much like that."

And of audiences, she said: "Audiences are alike, all people have heart."

In recent years, Mme. Galli-Curci had kept in seclusion at her home in this Southern California resort, devoting much of her time to painting and to studying philosophy.

Naming Director Will Be Discussed At Local Hearing

Appointment of a new director to the South Talent Sanitary District and consideration of petitions from withdrawal from the district will be discussed at a public hearing scheduled for 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The district's lawyer, Mrs. Jeannette Marshall, wrote the Jackson County Court that the recent death of Everett M. Schmelzer, Talent, in an industrial accident left a vacancy on the board.

The successor could not be appointed until after a director is elected in December, she said. The incumbent director, Donald Grimes, whose term expire in December, is not seeking reelection, she explained. This would mean the newly elected director, and Bill Kerns, the remaining director, would have to make the appointment.

During a special meeting Oct. 31, the district's board went on record not opposing withdrawal petitions from property owners not served under Plan 1A of the engineering report of Cornell, Howland, Hayes and Merrifield, Corvallis. This would cover 21 petitions to be submitted at the hearing.

It would oppose, however, withdrawal petitions from the two properties of Ray Edward and Elizabeth James and Ralph M. and Vica Ann Wellburn whose properties would front on mains in the first project.

Also, it is opposed to petitions to be heard at a later date from Rose M. Thorpe, Joseph P. and Yvonne Dugan, Pat Dugan, Robert A. Schuler and Alice A. Schuler whose properties would be served directly by one of the first mains, the attorney wrote.
