This Week's Plan for Home Builders

The extremely handsome and distinctive exterior of this contemporary home has been especially designed for the young-in-heart. We recently featured this same exterior with a three bedroom floor plan. Many requests were received for the same exterior but with a four bedroom version. This design is the result of those requests. The home has been planned for a narrow lot and a limited budget. Only by careful planning can you offer a four bedroom home in less than 1400 square feet. This is especially true when the floor plan has as many features as are illustrated here. Storage Area Everyone knows a generous amount of storage area is necessary if one is to be completely satisfied with the livability of a new home. This design will satisfy any new builder's most exacting storage demands. There is a total of 34 feet of wardrobe closets, more than is usually offered in homes half again as large as this one. There is a row of drawers extending across the bottom of all the wardrobes. This extra storage could eliminate the need for a chest-of-drawers in each of the bedrooms. In addition to the wardrobes, there are two pullman lavatories in the baths with storage below, broom and linen closets opening to the hall and a floor to ceiling pantry in the kitchen. Besides ample kitchen cabinets, wall cabinets have been located above the laundry facilities. Especially notice the three huge storage closets off the carport. Economize on Plumbing To economize on the plumbing installation, both baths plus laundry facilities and the kitchen sink have all been centrally located. There is an unusual amount of wall space in each of the bedrooms for furniture arrangement. The two windows in the master bedroom provide for cross ventilation but have been located next to the wardrobe and the entrance to the bath so as not to interfere with the placement of furniture. One of the outstanding features of this home is the combination living room-dining ell which extends completely across the front of the plan. Complete working drawings for this plan can be purchased at a cost of $7.50 for the first set and $5 for each additional set when ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at those prices until March 24, 1964. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. The following home plan books are also available: Hammark Homes, $1; Homes by Hiawatha, $1; Town and Country Homes, $1; Homes For Living, $1; Distinctive Homes, $1; Ranch and Modern Homes, $2. All books, a $7 value, only $3. Send all orders for either plans or books to: Hiawatha Estes, P. O. Box 404-T, Northridge, Calif.

The Family Council

Editor's note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a physician, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a family disagreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems major and minor, encountered by guidance counselors and social workers. Edited by Mrs. Alma Denny. (Copyright by General Features Corp.) Henry T.—Making plans this early is just courting disappointment. Viola G.—Even if our trip doesn't materialize, it's fun to work it out. Henry T.—Whenever we visit my sister and her husband lately, they're sitting on the living room floor surrounded by maps, steamship charts, brochures and pamphlets from travel agencies. Bob is a teacher and expects a sabbatical leave in 1965. It seems ridiculous for them to be working on timetables and hiking plans for Switzerland. So much can happen to them and us and the world in the meantime. Viola G.—Our preparations are partly practical and partly dreams, I admit. But I'm not the Gloomy Gus that my brother is. He thinks planning ahead is tempting Fate—that's why he won't even buy next year's coat at this year's sales! Of course Bob and I realize disasters can happen, but that won't immobilize us. We'll still go ahead on the assumption that we will spend seven months abroad. We enjoy planning. The Council: We know a couple with a Nine-Year Plan for their summers. Poring over the travel sections of newspapers is their passion. It's a form of window-shopping, or rather window-wishing. And each summer part, at least, of a carefully-laid plan comes true. Certainly Viola isn't counting on catching the 10:56 train through Simpson Pass a year-and-a-half hence. But jotting it down as part of a tentative itinerary brings castles-in-the-air down to earth, gives form to dreams, and makes more sense than idle chatter. Just as kids start sending for college catalogs shortly after starting high school or newlyweds design their someday "mansion" while living in a furnished room, so Viola and her husband are hashing out details of an important and expensive adventure, in full realization that it's all far off and subject to change. Their attitude is healthier than Henry's. They know as well as he that "anything can happen." But to them that's no reason to cower neurotically in the corners of home. Medicine When You Need It! Grateful Nation Contributing To Policeman's Fund

DALLAS (UPI)—A grateful nation has come to the assistance of the family of J. D. Tippit, a policeman shot to death trying to arrest the man accused of assassinating President Kennedy. Nearly $50,000 had poured in for a heartbroken widow with three children. The gifts came from almost everyone on television personality Jack Paar to the police of the Caribbean island of Jamaica, and little children. The biggest donation came from Abraham Zapruder, a Dallas garment manufacturer. He turned over $25,000 he got for movies he took showing bullets actually striking Kennedy. "I give this in respectful memory of a man who literally gave his life for his country," Zapruder said. Paar sent a check for $1,000. The Jamaican police force sent $300 collected from its ranks. To Pay Off Mortgage Walter H. Annenberg, publisher of the Philadelphia Inquirer, said he would pay off the $12,217.04 mortgage on the Tippit home. "This is the hour for good deeds," Annenberg said. William R. Chabaha, vice president of T. J. Bettes Co., which holds the mortgage on the Tippit home, confirmed the amount of the mortgage. Chabaha said there would be a Federal Housing Administration (FHA) loan penalty of about $125.50 and interest of probably $75 to $100 "depending on when Mr. Annenberg sends us the check." "But we will pay both the interest and the penalty," Chabaha said. "We don't want Mrs. Tippit to be out a dime." "I just can't find words to express my appreciation," Mrs. Tippit said. "It's just wonderful." Ellis Campbell, district director of the Internal Revenue Service, assured contributors their gifts would be tax free.

Spencer also announced the resignation of Mrs. Gene Wiley as executive secretary of the state organization. Mrs. Wiley has accepted a position as administrative assistant to the director of the Parry Center for Children here. The action follows the national party policy. Small Worlds Around Us

By LYNN M. WATKINS (Register and Tribune Syndicate 1963) This Wise Weed Appears After Cultivating Is Over That's exactly what it does—the spurge surges all over the landscape in vacant fields, along country roads, in flower beds or gardens. By using its head, or what-ever takes the place of a head in a plant, it wisely waits until most of the hoeing and cultivating is over for the summer before it sticks its head above the grass and other weeds. That way it has a better chance of growing to adulthood and assuring the further scattering of its seeds. Wherever you find a weed growing, there you can find the spurge. Left alone, it will grow a foot or more in height and accomplish it in three or four days. In a couple of weeks it will flower and may reach a height of three feet with a single stem, along which are arranged the leaves. Rather difficult to believe, this common weed claims kinship to some pretty aristocratic relatives such as the poinsettia, the castor oil plant and several members of the genus euphorbia. The genus has many members, some much too beautiful and useful to be classed as weeds. Snow-on-the-mountain is one... a dry-area weed that readily will take over an entire field if given half a chance. These weeds, really so pretty as to be often used in ornamental garden, are green and white on the top, somewhat similar to the white and green strips extending down from a mountain slope. No Beauty Like all the genus euphorbia, the spurge contains a white, milky sap as does the poinsettia and the crotons. The farmer or landowner, whose pastures may be completely overrun by "snow-on-the-mountain," sees no beauty in this prolific weed with the poetic name. All the spurges, of which the "spotted" is probably the most common, is actually a poisonous plant to some degree. The common spurge, for some reason not satisfactorily explained, is never eaten by livestock except in cases when all other forage is absent. Perhaps the inadvertent eating of some of these plants by a starving or near-starved animal suggested the name by which some farmers know this plant: the "slobber-weed." The acid juice of the spurge certainly would cause such a condition. Survival Scheme Throughout nearly all of recorded time, this weed has adopted a scheme for survival and has been successful. It is endowed with certain powers, differing only in degree, but not in kind, from those of the animal creation. It serves no economic purpose, so we class it as a noxious weed, but we have to give it credit for trying, for it will grow in spite of adversity. But at least it does add something to the soil when it is uprooted and returned to the earth. The nitrogen it uses in making its leaves and stems is made available to other crops, some of which man can use. All weeds have soil building properties to some extent. Even today, we are often surprised to learn how many weed-bodies lend their juices to the betterment of human health in the form of various medicines. Even this persistent and often troublesome weed of the genus euphorbia derives its scientific name from an ancient Greek physician by the name of Euphorbus.
