Eleven Guests Attend Dinner
PROSPECT—Eleven guests were entertained in the home of Mrs. Zella Tullis for Thanksgiving dinner. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kaiser Jr. and two children, who recently returned to Prospect from Jackson, Wyo., a daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Goode and son, Prospect; Stuart Weeks, William Thomas, Eagle Point, and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kaiser, Eagle Point.

Mrs. Kaiser, Jr., is a granddaughter of Mrs. Tullis.

Tall Christmas angels are made from tapered bottles, aluminum foil and items found in most kitchen cupboards. Designer Conny of Alcoa suggests these stately figures for table, buffet or mantle.

Angel Decorations Made From Items in Kitchen

Tall, stately, serene, and the very essence of the Christmas spirit are graceful angels for table, buffet or mantle. They are unusual and can be saved from year to year.

A little time, some aluminum foil, red yarn, foam balls, some scraps of felt, a tall, tapered bottle, a small drinking glass, and a cereal dish are required. Kitchen cupboards will yield most of the required parts.

The decoration was created by Conny of Alcoa, designer for Alcoa Wrap aluminum foil.

Conny's design starts with the tapered bottle. Cover it completely with foil, smoothing the foil against the sides of the bottle. Punch a hole in the foam ball and cover it with foil. Cut eye and mouth shapes from felt and glue to the foil-covered ball. This is the angel head.

Next, glue strands of yarn (Conny uses bright red) to the top of the head to make hair. A piece of foil about six inches long can be crushed into a circle for the halo. This can be pinned to the back of the head.

Place the head on the bottle top, pressing the bottle opening into the hole in the foam ball head.

Place the cereal bowl on top of the glass and cover both with foil. Set the bottle into the bowl. Place a number of real or artificial holly leaves around the base of the bottle for added color.

Candleholders can be regular holders covered with foil, or perhaps small plastic foam balls with bottom sliced off so they will stand. Place thin, dark green candles in the holders.

Three of these angels make an effective Christmas decoration. The colors say "happy holidays" and the foil adds a bright shine to the room.

League Selling Cards, Books To Raise Funds

The pre-holiday season is a prime time of the year for groups to raise funds for favorite projects. Their friends and neighbors are in a mood to open their purses for charity, and at the same time welcome suggestions for gifts.

Medford Junior Service League has on sale two Christmas items. One is the new League cookbook which will help answer the ever-present question of "What shall I cook for dinner tonight," and Christmas cards designed and printed locally.

The card design is by a former Medford High School student, Cynthia Barnett, who submitted the winning design in a competition. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Barnett, 425 Ardmore, and is now attending Southern Oregon College.

Mrs. Robert Kline, chairman of the project for the league, states that the cards are available at Jean Hart's store, The Gift House in the new Arcade, at Trowbridge Colonial House and at Town and Country Dress Shop, White City. They may also be purchased from League members.

The new cookbook contains such recipes as "Sweet Sour Moose" (or venison), Grasshopper Pie, Cicero Salad, an old German Supper Casserole, a Speedy Oatmeal Cake with a delicious topping, English Muffins and an interesting peach jam made with orange jello instead of the usual pectin.

The book is a compilation of favorite recipes submitted by League members. It is on sale at Swem's, the Highland Market, Jean Hart's, the Quality Market and The Gift House, Medford, and at Fortmiller's Department Store, Ashland.

Proceeds from the sale of the Christmas cards and the cookbooks will go toward maintaining the Junior Service League's kindergarten for hard of hearing children. League members are also giving the annual Christmas charity ball, and funds raised by this event will go to the School of Hope in Medford.

Della Robbia Wreath Tops Christmas Cake

Here's an extravagantly beautiful Christmas cake. Prepare a basic white or yellow cake, adding one teaspoon vanilla extract and one-fourth teaspoon black walnut flavoring to the batter. Bake in round pans.

Split the layers and fill with fluffy white frosting with raisins and chopped walnuts folded in. Swirl plain frosting over the sides and top.

Then ring the top of the cake with a Della Robbia wreath of marzipan candy fruits.

Slate Creek Ranch Is Scene of Dinner

WONDER—Thanksgiving guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Jacobs, Slate Creek Ranch, were Miss Kay Fielding, San Jose, Calif., Miss Tricia Fielding, Eureka, Calif., and Mrs. Michael Fielding Sr., also of Eureka.

Accompanying his grandmother on the trip from California was Michael Fielding III, Burlingame, Calif.

Cookies Treat for Feathered Friends

Europeans have a charming Christmas custom you may wish to adopt as a tradition in your family. Hang gaily decorated Christmas cookies out of doors on tree branches.

The cookies look so festive and provide a special holiday treat for all the birds in your neighborhood, to both you and your children's delight.

Swans Entertain On Thanksgiving

WILDERVILLE—Thanksgiving dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Swan were 21 members of the family. Included were Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Ganes, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ganes, and Mrs. Lida Campbell, mother of Mrs. Swan.

Combine cut cubes of chilled cranberry sauce with pineapple cubes for a handsome chicken or turkey garnish.

Tot Photos Sell Many Products

By Gay Pauley

NEW YORK (UPI)—A baby doesn't have to be pretty to be a good camera subject—but it helps, says a woman who has turned her camera on thousands of tots.

"We love characters . . . outgoing personalities," said Doris Pinney. "And of course it helps if the child is pretty."

Mrs. Pinney, a handsome blonde of Norwegian ancestry, said she can tell much about the personality of baby by the way mother walks into the studio with it. If mother slips in meekly, you can bet the child is the shy type who'll hide his face in his mother's shoulder, she said. If mom bounces in, you can bet the offspring will be outgoing too.

Mrs. Pinney, mother of three past the toddler stage, has been "shooting" babies mostly for commercial photography for 16 years. She's been the victim of leaky diapers, been splashed thoroughly by babies in bath, been smeared with baby food—"You just name it," she laughed.

"All in the line of duty," she said, "but I love 'em."

"Babies," she added, "are used to sell everything. Except liquor, I guess."

The day I talked with her she had just returned from shooting triplets belonging to a Wevittown, N.Y., couple for a food advertiser.

Did you ever see a year in which there are so many multiple births," she asked. "I'm doing twins for everything."

Part of her standard equipment for photographing babies in the bath is an apron covering her from the neck down, plus special shoes for protection because she is working with electrical equipment.

Short Sessions
A camera session with a baby rarely runs longer than an hour, she said, because a tot tires readily from all the attention.

"And I never tell the mother to get lost . . . just to get somewhere out of camera range," she said. "If the baby suddenly misses mother, that's the end of that camera session."

Mrs. Pinney was born in Brooklyn, the daughter of Arnt and Vera Bartelsen, originally from Norway. Her father is an engineer-inventor and holds several citations from the U.S. Navy. Her mother is an artist, and Mrs. Pinney studied at the Pratt Institute, Brooklyn.

Doris Pinney began taking pictures of babies because her husband, Roy, a photographer also, didn't like working with tots, she said. She figures that in the 16 years she's been photographing them, the total now is in the thousands.

Her subjects come from modeling agencies, from friends who spot likely candidates, and from her own scouting. "I'll stop a mother in a supermarket," she said, "and tell her I'd like to photograph her child. And don't pay me. I'll pay you."

"Helpful Neighbor
"My next door neighbor has 14 children, so there's a good supply of subjects right there," she laughed. The Pinneys, with their three children ages 12, 15 and 16, live at Larchmont, a New York suburb.

To parents who want to make albums of their own children, the professional photographer offered these suggestions:

Be set up and ready. That is, give the child a place where he or she is content to be . . . the den, the nursery for instance. Photograph the child when he's there on his own. Keep the background simple. Remember to get seasonal settings—"a child playing in a pile of leaves this fall, for instance."

Get action into the picture if you can. "I've photographed my own girl shampooing her hair," said Mrs. Pinney. "Not all pictures are meant to be hung, you know."

Roberta Peters To Give Concert In Portland

PORTLAND—Lovely Roberta Peters, the Metropolitan Opera's famed coloratura star, will appear in concert at the Portland Public Auditorium on Wednesday evening, December 4th. According to local management, this will be her first appearance in this area.

The success story of Roberta Peters begins like the tale of a real-life Cinderella. On Nov. 17, 1950, at 8:30 p. m., she stepped onto the stage of Manhattan's august Metropolitan Opera House, an unknown substitute for an ailing prima donna, to sing before a sold-out house.

Almost no one had heard of her when she walked on stage, but by the time the curtain fell, the musical world knew that a star had been born.

Miss Peters' program for Portland will use that delightful accompaniment to the coloratura recital—the flute obbligato. Samuel Pratt is Miss Peters' flutist and she will be accompanied by George Trovillo.

Tickets for the December 4th attraction are on sale now at Celebrity Attractions, 1018 S. W. Morrison in Portland, and at Stevens and Sons jewelers, Lloyd Center and Salem.

Adarel Chapter To Initiate

JACKSONVILLE—Candidates for Adarel Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, will be initiated at a chapter meeting Thursday, December 5 at 8 p. m., in Jacksonville Masonic Temple.

Mrs. Helen Buffington, worthy matron and Orval Shores, worthy patron, will preside.

Members whose birthdays are in October, November and December will be honored. Hostesses will be Mrs. Orval Shores, chairman; Mrs. Charles Young, Mrs. Omar Culy, Mrs. Ralph Lawrence and Mrs. H. C. Goldsmith.
