Bank Art Displayed In Eugene

EUGENE — The art collection of the United States National Bank of Portland and its 31 branches throughout the state is a featured exhibition at the University of Oregon Museum of Art through December 31. Entitled "A Bank as Art Patron," the collection includes more than 150 items. Paintings, sculpture, ceramics, weaving, woodcuts, and murals have been purchased by the Bank and Branches under a program that not only supplements and enhances the bank structures but also supports the creative arts of the Pacific Northwest. E. J. Kolar, president of U.S. National, explains that art, in its various forms, goes with modern architecture. Art and landscaping complement the design of the buildings, he said. The bank's philosophy of supporting local products and building materials is extended, he added, to include art that is representative of the local community.

Shown in conjunction with "A Bank as Art Patron" is "A Private Collection of Regional Art," the works of Northwest artists being collected by Mrs. William A. Haseltine. It includes more than 100 pieces by Northwest painters and sculptors. Art items from the North Medford Branch of the U. S. National Bank include an oil "Substation No. 3" by Eugene Bennett, Jacksonville. Serve icy cold cranberry juice cocktail prettied with pineapple spears for a zippy before dinner cocktail.

'Carol' Scheduled By Actor

ASHLAND — Performances of the popular Christmas story, Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," will be given this month by Philip Hanson, Ashland actor, in such widely separated cities as New York and Ashland. The first will be December 14 for the Brooklyn Academy of Music in New York. It will follow a performance of his one-man show, "The Rebels" which is booked for December 12 at the Academy. December 16 Mr. Hanson is scheduled to give the Dickens' work at Humboldt State College, Eureka, and December 18 it will be presented at Churchill Hall of Southern Oregon College, Ashland. The Ashland performance will be sponsored by the Commuters Club of the college. This will be the second time Mr. Hanson has performed the Christmas story at the college as a holiday event. The actor expects to be in Ashland for a three-week rest period and in January and February is scheduled for a tour of the Pacific Northwest and Canada. In March he will be presented in several performances in the Southeastern United States and in April he will be in the Midwest states. April 18 Mr. Hanson, a widely known Shakespearean actor, will give a special performance of his show "Villians and Fools" at the University of California at LaJolla, Calif., in observance of the quatercentenary of the birth of Shakespeare. The program will be jointly sponsored by the University of California and the Globe Theater of San Diego. A year-long observance of the anniversary is planned by various colleges and theaters.

Chapter Hears Poem Reading

At the last meeting of Alpha Lambda Chapter, Epsilon Sigma Alpha International Sorority Nov. 25, Mrs. Dennis Lundgren, chaplain, read the poem "He is Not Dead" by James Whitcomb Riley. The meeting was on the national day of mourning observed in memory of President John F. Kennedy. Corsage making was the study topic for the evening. Mrs. Harold Edmonds and Mrs. Chester Peterson gave interesting points on various types and uses of corsages. They displayed corsages made from plastic foam, ribbon, silk, wood fibre, nylon and fresh flowers. Each member made a corsage of wood fibre for her own use. Miss Brenda Ballast, Spokane, Wash., sister of Mrs. Herbert Partridge, was a guest. Mrs. Jack Huston was hostess, with Mrs. Partridge and Mrs. Howard Phillips, co-hostesses.

December Brings Out Want Lists

By Gay Pauley

NEW YORK (UPI)—December officially kicks off the season of hinting — what one wants for Christmas. Children hint openly and repeatedly, rearranging their "I want" lists each day, usually adding to each at the same time. The man of the house hints he'd like someone to remember that the Christmas bills come due in January and somebody has to pay them. Mom hints that she'd like two weeks to re-do and recuperate at one of those fancy beauty and diet spas.

Come Christmas morning, the children find somehow they were remembered by parents or other relatives for most of their desires. Pop ties on the new necktie, takes a look at the mess under the tree to be translated into neat and tidy bills the first of the year, and sighs maybe he should use the tie to hang himself.

Dress or Fur Coat
Mom finds she didn't get that two weeks of living it up at a beauty center, but the family remembered her with what she really wanted anyway. A new dress or fur coat. At least, that's what one group of researchers has found to be the two most popular gifts for women this coming Christmas.

A new dress, number one. Fur coat, number two. Wrist watch, ring or lounge wear in third, fourth and fifth places. These were the conclusions reached by questionnaire sent to some 100 housewives in the Chicago area to bring up to date a continuing study of U. S. buying habits done by the Chicago Printed String Co., makers of gift wrappings and ribbons.

For four years, the company has done a pre-Christmas survey, the others national in scope and with hundreds of persons questioned. This year, it decided to forego a repeat questionnaire to women across the country because it figures by now it has a pretty strong idea of how the answers will shape up, a spokesman said. The Chicago women were considered representative of women anywhere else.

Furs Dropped Down
The fur coat showed up as number one wish for Christmas among women in the 1960 and

SOAKING HELPS
FLINT, Mich. (UPI)—Soaking burns with ice water laced with an antibacterial skin cleanser—phisoex — minimizes subsequent infection and speeds healing, it was reported in "Industrial Medicine and Surgery," a journal for doctors.

This novel combination of an age-old Icelandic remedy and the modern antibacterial detergent proved successful in 46 cases seen in Hurley Hospital in Flint, Mich. Ice water is used in Iceland not only to treat burns and scalds but also sprains.

Cranberry juice frozen in refrigerator trays make sparkling ruby red cubes to serve in your favorite fruit or gingerale drinks.

per cent of the women answered they'd welcome birds—talkative types such as parakeets, mynahs or parrots. Thirty-three per cent said they would welcome a pet of any kind, from puppies to guppies. There was one request for a horse. The researchers said they'd spotted one new trend: A new car appeared frequently on the "most wanted" list.

A few husbands may be started to learn that a wig, a tiara or "a little piece of quiet" would also be welcome this Christmas. And what do the men want? The company spokesman confessed they hadn't gotten around to surveying husbands this year.
