Football Values Must Be Applied To Something; Kreisman Tells Athletes

"These are the years when you are stockpiling for the future," Dr. Arthur Kreisman told Medford and St. Mary's High School football players here last night.

Dr. Kreisman, director of general studies and chairman of the humanities division at Southern Oregon College, addressed the Medford Lions Club dinner honoring the athletes and cheerleaders. The banquet was at Rogue Valley Country Club.

"I can't think of a better way of starting than playing good football," the ex-Brigham Young University griddler said. "But don't let it end there. . . . Make the most of yourself," he added.

Dr. Kreisman told the youths that, in football, they are getting values that will stand them in good stead if used properly. The values have to be applied to something he advised them.

Awards Made
"What good is an over-age athlete who has not learned to do something else?" Dr. Kreisman asked. He said the answer is "not much." And he declared, "You have to learn something if you want to get all you can out of your life and yourself."

Lions Club awards were presented to nine athletes by Lions President Rollin Watson, who was master of ceremonies for the evening.

St. Mary's recipients were Jeff Randolph and John Lucas, most valuable players; Randy Corliss, outstanding defensive lineman; Ron Roberts, outstanding defensive back; Randolph, outstanding offensive back, and Lucas, outstanding offensive lineman.

Medford players getting awards were Jeff Hardrath, most valuable player; Bob Methvin, outstanding offensive lineman; Mike Barnes, outstanding offensive back; Brian Petersen, outstanding defensive lineman; and Ron Edmonds, outstanding defensive back.

Selections were made by the Lions and coaches.

The college professor began his talk by stating that sports are exciting, and that the young people present are at an age when probably sports are most exciting. He pointed out that it is possible that sports can dominate their lives and that it is good to pause, take stock and put athletics in their proper perspective.

Kreisman then described football as an "extra benefit." He said, "You play football while you go to school. You do not go to school to play football."

Perseverance, learning to work hard, learning to drill and learning to be dissatisfied with anything less than top perfection were mentioned as values gained from football.

"One does not learn too much from winning," the speaker declared. "I have a hunch the most valuable lessons often come from losing." The biggest lesson from losing, he indicated, is discovering that, after all, the world doesn't end with the defeat. It is learned, Kreisman said, that a person can get knocked down and beaten and still get up and come back and fight.

He brought out that the next play, the next game and the next season each is a new start. "Every occasion is a fresh start," Dr. Kreisman stated. "If you can learn this, you have learned something."

The values learned in football apply in other fields of life, the college teacher said. "What you have to learn to do is to make the application."

Kreisman mentioned that often the athlete is not willing to give the effort to his studies that he is willing to give on the field. "You can do yourself a favor," he said, "if you apply the values in everything you do."

"If you keep coming back fighting, you get what you want," he declared.

Mrs. Walter (Bettie) Graff received an award of two gold and one silver footballs from Medford High school in recognition of having three sons play on Black Tornado grid teams. The presentation was by Tornado Head Football Coach Fred Spiegelberg. Mrs. Graff's sons are Gary, Jerry and Terry Wine-trout. Gary played on a state runnerup team and Jerry and Terry on state championship clubs.

PULLMAN (UPI) — University of Idaho freshmen overcame a 16-point halftime deficit to defeat the Washington State University freshmen 84-82 in basketball action here Tuesday night.
