Dr. Becken Reviews Need for Education

"One way or another you've got to be your brother's keeper," Dr. Elliott Becken, assistant superintendent of Medford schools declared yesterday.

Dr. Becken addressed the Medford Kiwanis club at its noon luncheon at Rogue Valley County club. His topic was "Today's Look at Education."

He discussed the need to increase the comprehensiveness of educational programs to meet the depth and speed of economic change and to maintain the standard of living in this country.

The school official brought out that jobs are becoming more specialized with less need for unskilled workers. He gave statistics forecasting that during the 1960's some 7.5 million persons will enter the labor market who have not finished high school. He described this as "a parasitic element that all of us are going to be concerned about."

Will Have To Pay
Becken said that some people don't realize that this country is going to have to pay for it one way or another—in either increased educational and training opportunities or in welfare.

The school man spoke of the effort to cut down dropouts from secondary schools by improving instruction and guidance programs and mentioned the need to expand college programs and adult and trade education "to keep our standards up where we want them."

Becken quoted statistics indicating that between 1965 and 1968 this country will have to have 38 per cent more technical personnel, 24 per cent more skilled craftsmen, 22 per cent more semi-skilled people, 20 per cent more qualified service

County Court To Decide on Request For Withdrawal

The Jackson County Court will decide Wednesday whether to approve withdrawal of the property of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Welburn from the South Talent Sanitary Sewer District. Joel Reeder, representing the Welburns and Mr. and Mrs. George Schuler at a public hearing yesterday said the Schulers had decided not to seek withdrawal from the district. The Medford lawyer said he would file a paper stating this.

The Welburns said they have a good septic tank, Welburn will retire soon and the sanitary district assessment would work a hardship on them.

Reeder noted that the district's board of directors have no objections to the withdrawals of Rose M. Thorpe, Joseph P. Dugan, Pat Dugan, Robert M. Mullin. An order will be drawn approving these withdrawals, it was decided.

Earlier this month the County Court decided against allowing Mr. and Mrs. Roy Edward James to withdraw their property from the district. They said a sewer service would benefit the property which has been platted already into subdivision lots. The law gave them no choice, the County Court members said.

On Nov. 27, the County Court approved withdrawal of 21 properties from the district. Monday residents within the sanitary district voted down a proposed $160,000 bond issue almost 2 to 1. The bonds would have financed the major portion of the sewer system.

School Integration Is Slow in Most Regions

United Press International reports that more than nine years ago, the Supreme Court outlawed "separate but equal" schools and ordered school doors everywhere opened to Negro children.

The court's 1954 decision had its origins in a case that began in Topeka, Kan., in 1952 when a Negro, Oliver Brown, attempted unsuccessfully to enroll his daughter in a white school 16 blocks closer to her home than the Negro school she attended.

The Supreme Court upheld Brown. But today, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) is leading a protest against the Topeka School Board allying de facto school segregation, a problem and charge often heard in areas where Negroes are concentrated in large numbers.

Scores of school suits have been filed based on the 1954 decision. At the present rate of school integration, the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. says it will take 70 years to integrate the nation's schools fully.

Overall progress is slowest in the South. No Negroes are enrolled in any white Mississippi schools. And Alabama's George C. Wallace stood in a doorway long enough to force the federal government to back up with troops the enrollment of two Negroes at the University of Alabama.

Some school doors have opened for the first time this year, virtually ignored, while much of the nation was caught up in other facets of the integration struggle. They included Eloy, Ariz., Charleston, S. C., Coatsville, Pa., Jacksonville, Fla., Mt. Vernon, Ill., Birmingham, Ala., Montclair, N. J., Brunswick, Ga., and Fort Worth, Tex.

The states of Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, North Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia had slightly more than 12,000 Negroes in formerly white schools last year. Alabama and South Carolina joined the list this fall, with the overall number increasing only slightly.

About 2 million Negroes remained in segregated schools in those 10 states and Mississippi.

Integrationists Win In Chicago

On Oct. 22, civil rights groups in Chicago staged the largest school boycott ever called in the nation.

A total of 224,700 pupils were reported absent by school officials out of a total enrollment of 469,733 in the 1st through 12th grades. It involved 47 per cent of all Chicago public school students.

The students who played hooky were protesting "de facto segregation" which Negroes contend exists in Chicago schools. They also opposed School Supt. Benjamin C. Willis. His ouster was demanded in repeated demonstrations all summer. Mass arrests were made.

One particular sore point with Chicago Negroes was the use of mobile classrooms so-called "Willys Wagons" in Negro neighborhoods to relieve overcrowded schools. Negroes saw this as an attempt to further "de facto segregation" by keeping Negroes hemmed into their own neighborhoods.

Cost of the boycott: An estimated $470,000 was lost in state aid school funds, based on average daily attendance in schools.

Integration leaders won a big victory last week when Willis invited parents of 16,000 children in overcrowded schools to make transfer applications to underused schools in other neighborhoods.

The overcrowded schools were split evenly about half predominantly white and about half mostly Negro. Most of the underused schools were predominantly white.
