'Noah' To Be Presented At SOC Opening Tonight

ASHLAND — "Noah" will be presented by the Southern Oregon College Players tonight at 8:15 o'clock and Saturday, December 14, at 2:15 p.m. and 8:15 p.m. in Churchill hall auditorium at Southern Oregon College.

Written by Andre Obey, the play is an adaptation of the Biblical story and not an attempt to depict literally the ancient tale of the flood. Obey tells of the patriarch Noah's simple expression of faith and the doubts and questions of his children. His treatment of the story is somewhat reminiscent of the guild plays of the 14th and 15th centuries in which characters were humanized and placed in settings and situations which would have meaning for the people who viewed them. Obey used the chorus, an ancient dramatic device, to comment upon the action. In keeping with the play, which is non-realistic, the costumes, settings, and masks are stylized.

Averell Harriman and Mrs. Harriman, where Mrs. Kennedy is now staying with her two children. The house is of mottled brick and was built around 1794. 'Yule Logs' Add Festive Touch to Holiday Board

In France, the yule log is an age-old tradition of the Christmas season. Long before the holiday the yule log is cut and carried home, to burn throughout Christmas Eve and Christmas Day.

For country folk, a yule log is easily accessible. But the people of Paris long ago found a symbolic replacement for it, one so delectable that it has become a part of the Christmas Eve feast.

This is the Buche de Noel, a luscious log-shaped cake, fashioned of light batter and frosted with mocha cream. When demitasse coffee is served at dessert time during Christmas reveillon, this traditional cake is there to accompany it.

In this country the U.S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries has "borrowed" this theme for Salmon Yule Log, a spread made with flakes of salmon rolled in chopped pecan nuts. Served with crackers Salmon Yule Log adds an interesting and hearty touch to the festive board.

BUCHE DE NOEL

One half teaspoon salt; four eggs; three-fourth cup sugar; two tablespoons dark cocoa, unsweetened; one teaspoon vanilla; three-fourth cup pancake mix; one cup whipping cream; one-half cup fine granulated sugar; Mocha Butter Cream.

Grease bottom and sides of jelly roll pan, 10 x 15 x 1-inch. Line with waxed paper. Grease again thoroughly. Add salt to eggs. Beat until thick and lemon colored. Combine sugar and cocoa. Add gradually to eggs, beating well after each addition. Stir in vanilla and pancake mix. Beat until smooth (batter is quite thin). Spread evenly in pan. Bake at 400 degrees for 12 minutes. Sprinkle a towel generously with confectioners sugar. Loosen edges of cake and turn out on towel. Peel off waxed paper and roll cake up in towel. Let stand 20 minutes.

Meanwhile whip cream with fine sugar. Unroll cake. Spread thinly with some of Mocha Butter Cream, then with whipped cream. Roll up, wrap firmly in aluminum foil and chill (or freeze until ready to use.) Frost with remaining Mocha Butter Cream. Mark with tip of knife or small spatula to resemble bark. Cut off a thin slice. Unroll slice, cut in half and re-roll halves to make two small "stumps." Place on top of roll.

Decorate with vine and leaves made with green icing. Sprinkle here and there with flaked coconut to resemble snow. Makes 12 servings.

Mocha Butter Cream
Three-fourth pound unsalted butter; three-fourth cup sugar; one and one-half tablespoons dark cocoa; one and one-half tablespoons instant coffee. Cream butter to soft consistency. Combine sugar, cocoa and instant coffee powder. Sift through fine sieve. Add tablespoons instant coffee. Add tablespoons instant coffee. Add tablespoons instant coffee.
