

California Group Favors Ref Counting After Bell

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — "Saved by the bell!"—one of boxing's ageless cries—seemed destined to start getting the full count today from the California State Athletic Commission.

The group proposed Friday that the referee continue his count over a fighter even if the round had come to an end. And the group only would ring when the count was finished or the boxer had made it up from the canvas.

This was one of 13 rules changes which the commission recommended to increase safety measures in California's professional bouts. The entire list comes up for a public hearing at another commission meeting next month. Then it is scheduled to become law 30 days after that.

In another important proposal, gloves would be raised in weight by two pounds in all divisions, padding would be increased on the lower strand of the ring ropes and time out would be called until a boxer recovered his lost mouthpiece.

Harry W. Falk, Jr., chairman of the commission said that the rules were drawn up and forwarded to Gov. Edmund G. Brown and the state legislature after the governing body requested such a study.
