Closed Session Will Consider Appropriation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration forces pinned their hopes on the Senate Appropriations Committee today to restore at least part of deep House-voted cuts in foreign aid funds.

The Senate Committee scheduled a closed session this afternoon to consider the $2.8 billion foreign aid money bill approved by the House Monday, 249 to 135. The bill is $1.7 billion less than the late President Kennedy asked and $900 million below the authorization bill passed by Congress.

Senate Democratic Whip Hubert H. Humphrey, Minn., a committee member, voiced hope for a possible Senate figure of $3.2 billion. This would allow House and Senate negotiators to compromise on about $3 billion, about the best that President Johnson could expect.

Johnson issued a statement Monday night saying that any cuts beyond the $3.6 billion foreign aid program authorized by Congress would represent "a policy of weakness and retreat" that would endanger U.S. security.

The President made the statement as he signed the authorization bill for the current fiscal year that began July 1.

"We cannot oppose the spread of communism and promote the growth of freedom by giving speeches," he said. "A policy of weakness and retreat—which any further reduction at the appropriation stage would represent—cannot be justified by the needs of our security, the financial strength of our nation or the attitude of our citizens."

The President pledged to submit to Congress next year "a more effective, efficient aid program." He said he had directed aid Administrator David E. Bell to tighten U.S. operations abroad, insist on maximum effort by recipients and to weed out dead-weight personnel.

But, Johnson added, this did not reduce current needs. "The aid programs of Truman, Eisenhower and Kennedy are needed now more than ever," he said. "This is no time to fail."

Moratorium on Racial Demonstrations By Negroes Apparently Comes to End

Three Southern Cities Scene of Protest Marches

By United Press International

The unofficial moratorium on racial demonstrations prompted by the death of President Kennedy apparently has ended.

Negroes staged marches in three Southern cities Monday in the most active day of anti-segregation protests since Kennedy's assassination Nov. 22. There also was an increase in racially inspired court activity.

A long line of young Negro college students, some chanting "John F. Kennedy is my god" marched through the crowded downtown section of Columbia, S.C. The protesters fell to the ground when police ordered them dispersed and had to be carried to paddy wagons. Police arrested 126 persons.

Memorial Service

In New Orleans an interracial crowd of 400 turned out in 30-degree weather for a memorial service for President Kennedy in front of city hall. They marched to a nearby post office and mailed letters to Louisiana's congressional delegation urging passage of the civil rights bill.

An 80-year-old white retired Episcopal minister, the Rev. Clarence Parker, led nine persons in a sit-in at a restaurant in the university town of Chapel Hill, N.C. The demonstrators were carried bodily from the restaurant and charged with trespassing and resisting arrest.

Other developments:

Selma, Ala.: A federal court hearing on a government attempt to block an Alabama grand jury from requiring Justice Department attorneys to testify before it on the department's racial activities in Alabama was scheduled to resume today.

St. Augustine, Fla.: A grand jury report on this city's racial unrest blamed extremists on both sides for the turmoil. The report did not name names, but blamed the turmoil on two "militant Negro leaders and the Ku Klux Klan."

Montgomery, Ala.: Voter registrars in Sumter and Hale counties, Ala., and in Chickasaw and Okfuskeba counties, Miss., were charged in Justice Department suits Monday with discriminating against Negro applicants.

Milwaukee, Wis.: Leading business and industrial leaders formed the "Milwaukee Voluntary Employment Opportunities Council" Monday to help equalize job opportunities for Negroes.

Waterbury, Conn.: Ten pickets paraded at city hall Monday protesting failure of the city fire department to give a Negro a job.

Young Sinatra's Coolness Credited With Apprehension

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The cool role of detective played by Frank Sinatra Jr. while he was held by his kidnapers was credited today for the speedy capture of his abductors.

Although the FBI continued to remain silent concerning the clues that led to the arrests of three persons last Friday and Saturday, Frank Jr.'s role was learned by United Press International for the first time Monday.

Clues Provided

Blindfolded and nervous, the 19-year-old youth nevertheless was able to provide many clues to the FBI, including distances counted by footsteps, sounds heard at the hideout and—in a moment when his eyes were uncovered—the name of a hamburger stand on a wrapper.

The discovery of the hideaway where Sinatra Jr. was held in nearby Canoga Park from the time he was abducted a week ago Sunday night to his release on payment of $240,000 ransom early last Wednesday has been credited as the major break in cracking the case.

And young Frank Jr. was apparently able to provide the clues that led to its discovery.

To Transfer Suspect

The account of Frank Jr.'s role in the apprehension of the trio accused of kidnaping him came to light as the FBI made plans to transport John William Irwin, 42, suspected ringleader, from the jail in San Diego, Calif., to federal jail facilities here.

The two 23-year-old suspects, Barry Worthington Keenan, scion of a wealthy Los Angeles area family, and Joseph Clyde Anster, Playa Del Rey, were held on $50,000 bail each.

Multiple indictments against the trio were expected to be returned by a grand jury within three weeks.

This we change.

This we don't.

Now you can see for yourself where we make most of our changes. Way down deep.

Every part you can see and every part you can't see has been changed again and again and again.

But we never change the Volkswagen without a reason. And the only reason is to make it even better.

When we do make a change, we try to make the new part fit older models, too. So you'll find that many VW parts are interchangeable from one year to the next. Which is why it's actually easier to get parts for a VW than for many domestic cars.

And why VW service is as good as it is. The same principle holds good for the beetle shape.

We made the rear window bigger one year to you could see other people better. We made the tail lights bigger last year so other people could see you better.

But nothing drastic. Any Volkswagen hood still fits any VW ever made. So does any fender.

And, in case you hadn't noticed, every VW still looks like every other VW.

Which may turn out to be the nicest thing of all about the car. It doesn't go in one year and out the other.

BREAST SIZE AFTER CHILDBIRTH

Q. After my first child was born my breasts decreased in size and firmness. Is there any way to restore them to normal?

A. A reduction in breast size and firmness is not uncommon following childbirth. Why this occurs isn't known and there is no effective treatment. Although the breasts can not be appreciably altered, certain exercises do help. For example, the chest muscles can be developed by performing pushups, thus adding bulk to the chest. This, plus an adequate bra-size, is responsible for the "bosomy" appearance of some women athletes, such as circus performers, who actually may have very small breasts.
