Shrinks Hemorrhoids New Way Without Surgery

STOPS ITCH — RELIEVES PAIN

For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H®. Ask for it at all drug counters.

Treetop Angel

By Erika

Here's how to make an elegant angel for the top of your Christmas tree.

1. Fold a shirt cardboard or a piece of heavy construction paper in half and sketch half an angel on it as shown here. Cut out the figure.

2. Glue the back of the figure (with the fold forward) to a piece of cardboard tubing of the kind that comes with paper towels.

3. Paint a face on the angel, add a pipe-cleaner halo if you like, and decorate her with silver stars, tinsel, or sparkles. You'll be proud to have an angel you made yourself looking down from your tree.

I was just thinking . . .®

THIS IS A strange Christmas story. It has neither a tree nor a wreath in it.

Only a miracle.

Jessie and Aulden Robinson lived in our town all their lives. They grew up and were married and had three children, two girls and a boy. Aulden worked in a factory, and they lived in a neighborhood which was neither the best nor the worst. Just average. That's about the way it was with everything for the Robinsons, just average.

But there was one difference.

They gave their spare time and their spare money to help those less fortunate, the crippled and the afflicted. They didn't make a big thing out of it. The Robinsons felt a sort of inner obligation to themselves and to God. Some people are that way, you know.

A few years ago, Aulden had a heart attack and then another and, finally, after he couldn't work any more at all, Jessie earned the living. Five years ago, Aulden died.

Jessie managed, mainly because she has a simple faith that somehow things will turn out all right. Maybe if Jessie's faith hadn't been that kind, she couldn't have taken what came next.

A few weeks ago, her son Jimmy fell under a train. His left arm and leg were severed, but he lived. There are times when living takes more courage than dying. Jimmy inherited courage from his mother.

He chose life.

A STRANGER who saw the story sent the newspaper a letter enclosing a dollar bill. It flowered into a great blossom of compassion. A trust fund had to be established to handle the thousands of dollars which poured in from friends and strangers throughout our town and the state and, finally, the nation. Collections were taken in factories, in stores, in churches, in schools. Children sent pennies for Jimmy; theaters and athletic groups sponsored benefits.

Jessie Robinson needn't worry now about the money for the hospital bills, the endless surgery, the artificial arm and leg.

And, though she is a proud woman, she finds nothing in her heart but humble gratitude that others cared enough about a fatherless child to help him walk again.

Twenty years ago, when the Robinsons gave what they had to others, too, they heard for the first time the motto of the shut-in club they served:

There is a destiny that makes us brothers;
None goes his way alone.
All that we send into the lives of others
Comes back into our own.

That's the story of Christmas in our town this year.

And the miracle?

We call it love.
