Mrs. Neuberger Faces Holidays Without Good Cheer of Seashore Bill

By A. ROBERT SMITH
Mail Tribune
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Sen. Maurine Neuberger faces the holidays without the good cheer from a Senate victory she had hoped to gain with her Oregon Dunes seashore park bill.

Sen. Wayne Morse, refusing to be a jolly Santa, denied his junior colleague the gift of cooperation in bringing the bill up for debate. After Morse threatened to talk at great length if Senate leaders dared to bring up her bill, the Oregon Dunes measure was sidetracked while the Senate took up and quickly passed a similar park bill on Lake Michigan called Sleeping Bear Dunes.

Mrs. Neuberger was not disheartened by the delay and remained confident that Senate approval of her bill is assured early next year, despite Morse's hostility to a key feature of the bill.

The Senate's expeditious handling of the Sleeping Bear bill tended to sustain this confident forecast. Morse and a number of Republican senators expressed opposition to the clause in the bill allowing federal condemnation of residential property, but the Senate approved the bill without change in less than an hour.

The original Sleeping Bear bill sponsored by Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich., provided for a 77,000-acre park including 1587 structures, many of them residences. The Senate Interior Committee trimmed it down to 42,000 acres covering 288 structures.

The committee had performed similar surgery on the Neuberger bill, trimming it from 42,000 to 30,000 acres, thereby reducing the number of residences in the park from 264 to 15.

The committee, however, felt the government should retain the right of eminent domain in creating new parks. In both bills, it provided that after homeowners sell to the government they can still live in their homes for 25 years.

Morse took the occasion of the Sleeping Bear bill's consideration to condemn this provision in both bills.

"My position of principle will be maintained by me regardless of whether only one landowner or 1,500 are affected," he said.

He predicted this issue "will result in a series of mass meetings in my state in the months ahead." He said it was "probably the hottest issue" in his 1962 re-election campaign and that "it has engendered a controversy that will rock its (Oregon) politics for some time to come."

Morse claimed that feeling against the Dunes bill is so high on the Oregon coast that when President Kennedy considered inspecting the dunes by auto on his conservation tour last fall, "it was said that if he did that, he would be picketed."

"In my opinion, when a state's delegation is not united in regard to such an issue, neither the Senate committee nor the Senate should seek to impose upon the state a proposed park which causes conflict of this kind within a state," he said.

(When Morse championed the Hells Canyon dam bill a decade ago over opposition from other members of the Oregon delegation, and got this same committee's approval, the prospect of imposing a federal project on the state with a divided delegation didn't dissuade him.)

Morse said he favors a park but that there are more Oregon dunes in public ownership "than the public park could ever use and not one square foot of additional sand dunes need be condemned."

The Sleeping Bear park would be created from 10,000 acres of public and 32,000 acres of private land on the Michigan coast. The same group of GOP senators who signed a dissenting report against the Oregon Dunes park's condemnation feature opposed the Sleeping Bear park entirely as unnecessary.

Morse said he favored the Sleeping Bear park but without the condemnation clause. But he made no attempt to delete the clause from the bill, presumably because it was obvious that he lacked support enough to win.

The Senate's approval of the Sleeping Bear Dunes park in this form fortifies Mrs. Neuberger's hand for the day the Senate takes up her bill; but Wayne Morse has pledged to make a hard fight against it.

Vegetable Oil Exporter on Bail; Awaiting Trial

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—Anthony (Tino) De Angelis, formerly the nation's biggest edible oils exporter, was free on bail today awaiting trial on an 18-count indictment charging him with transporting forged warehouse receipts across state lines.

A federal grand jury Monday indicted the 48-year-old president of the bankrupt Allied Crude Vegetable Oil Refining Corp., of Bayonne, N.J. The jury accused him of transporting forged warehouse receipts for $39.4 million worth of edible oils that apparently never existed.

De Angelis surrendered immediately, pleaded innocent and was released on $5,000 bail. Each count of the indictment carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and $10,000 fine.

De Angelis was granted bail after he agreed to surrender his passport and remain in the New York-New Jersey area, conditions insisted on by Assistant U.S. Atty. Sanford Jaffe.

The grand jury was continuing its investigation to determine if De Angelis also forged the warehouse receipts, Jaffe said.

Allied Crude went bankrupt Nov. 19 when it could not meet $18.6 million in margin calls. A multi-million dollar commodities scandal which had repercussions on Wall Street and abroad developed when creditors of Allied Crude began searching for the oil for which they held warehouse receipts.

The firm had obtained credit on the basis of receipts for millions of pounds of oil that was supposed to be in storage tanks at a huge tank farm in Bayonne.

Snider Lectures at St. Mary's School

John Snider, former Medford mayor, and organizer of the Sister City Committee, illustrated a lecture on Alba, Italy, to students of St. Mary's High School recently.

Snider emphasized the antiquity of the city in contrast with its bustling modern industries. Colored slides showed Roman relics (although Alba pre-dates Rome), medieval castles, and street markets co-existing with substantial business enterprises in chocolate candy, textiles, and newspaper publishing.

Points of common interest between the Sister Cities stressed by Snider were pear growing, the use of Oregon plants sent by Medford to Alba, and the naming of a dress design produced in Alba.

The place of young people in the home and in industry received special mention, and pictures of young Alba residents who lived in Medford for a time were shown.

Prayer for Peace, Unity in World To Be Offered

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul VI said today his pilgrimage to the Holy Land is no "tourist excursion" but rather an "historic voyage" to pray to God for peace and unity in the world.

In a speech to the cardinals and other members of the Roman curia gathered for their traditional Christmas Eve audience, the pontiff said his trip will be "rich in grace and peace for the church and the world."

"What is this trip?" he asked rhetorically. "A tourist excursion? A political expedient? An evasion of our duties which keep us here?"

Great Importance

Then, answering the questions he posed, the Pope added:

"We hope to encounter the Lord in our trip, which seems for its novelty, for its significance, for its resonance, to assume great importance, the significance of which we cannot yet calculate, but which we feel to be immense, at least as a symbol, at least as a portent."

Pope Paul's pilgrimage is scheduled for Jan. 4-6. In his Christmas message he recalled the Magi, the three Biblical Kings who brought gifts from the East to the new-born babe.

Paul said the coming Christmas filled his heart with desire for a world free from hunger, for a world of peace and for unity between men in Christ.

First of Several Events

The papal Christmas message was the first of several Vatican events in connection with Christmas celebrations. Tonight the pontiff will say midnight Mass in the Sistine Chapel for members of the diplomatic corps accredited to the Holy See.

The Pope's message, over Vatican Radio, began by extending "to all of you our best wishes for a blessed Christmas."

He said "people who possess so many objects of so-called exterior happiness often stand in need of interior happiness." This "genuine, personal, profound and sincere" inner happiness was his wish for all.

The Pope said that in viewing the "panorama of nations" the pressing need of mankind is peace.

News of Kennedy's Death Withheld by Johnson Because of Fear of 'Worldwide Conspiracy'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fear that President Kennedy's assassination might be part of a "worldwide conspiracy" to kill all officials in line for the presidency prompted President Johnson to order news of Kennedy's death withheld for a time.

Assistant White House Press Secretary Malcolm Kilduff said Monday that Johnson ordered word of Kennedy's death withheld at least until he could leave Dallas' Parkland Hospital Nov. 22.

Kilduff quoted Johnson as saying there was no way of telling whether the death of Kennedy was the beginning of a chain of assassination attempts aimed at himself and the next two men in line for the presidency, Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., and Senate President Pro Tempore Carl Hayden, R-Ariz.

As a security precaution against this threat, Johnson felt that he should get back to the presidential plane "Air Force One" at Dallas' Love Field before the news of Kennedy's death was released, Kilduff said.

He quoted Johnson as saying, "we don't know whether this is a worldwide conspiracy, whether they are after me as well as they were after President Kennedy, or whether they are after Speaker McCormack, or Sen. Hayden."

Kilduff said that when Johnson first learned of Kennedy's death, the new President's thoughts turned to the circumstances surrounding the assassination of Abraham Lincoln 98 years before.

On the night Lincoln was shot by John Wilkes Booth, other assassins broke into the home of Secretary of State William H. Seward and wounded him severely, but failed in an attempt to kill him. The conspirator assigned to kill Vice President Andrew Johnson lost his nerve and fled. At that time, Seward was next in line of succession to the presidency after Johnson.

Kilduff said that when Johnson was discussing the possibility of an assassination conspiracy he mentioned the attempt on Seward's life.

Kilduff said that, as the official White House spokesman on the trip to Dallas, he asked Johnson for permission to release the news that Kennedy was dead.

"No," Johnson told him, "I think we had better wait for a few minutes . . and I think I had better get out of here and get back to the plane before you announce it."

A Secret Service guard was assembled and Johnson was escorted to a waiting car for the trip to the airport. Before the car left, Kilduff said he told Johnson he was going to make the announcement as soon as the new President left.

Kilduff said that once Johnson's car pulled away he ran back into the hospital and told newsmen that Kennedy was was dead. In line with Johnson's security order, however, he said he refused to discuss the new President's "whereabouts or destination."

Kilduff said that Johnson did not need any time to consider his decision to withhold the news of Kennedy's death. He termed Johnson's answer "immediate."

Quotes From the News

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

WASHINGTON — President Johnson, expressing confidence that enough Democratic House members are back from week ends at home to assure passage of his foreign aid money bill:

"I am just sorry that some of them wanted to stay over an extra day."

LAJES, The Azores — U.S. Air Force Lt. Larry Dishon, after flying over the burning hulk of the Lakonia:

"It was like a bad dream. They (the survivors in the water) were helpless . . . we dropped all the rafts we had but there were not enough. I saw a little child about two or three years old in a lifejacket with nobody near him."

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Post Office safety officer M. E. Ackerman, explaining why he believes "canine neurosis" has caused increased ferociousness among dogs:

"The dog goes out in the morning. He's tied up. He can only move a few feet. Nowhere to use his energy. When the postman arrives, the dog is mighty bad tempered, aching to sink his teeth into someone."

"The Capitol Hill is my home, and perhaps one of the greatest mistakes I ever made was when I left there."

MINERAL BATHS AND ARTHRITIS

Q. I have arthritis and have had little success with doctors. Would warm mineral baths help?

A. Perhaps you have expected too much from doctors. There is no cure for arthritis. Warm baths are only a part of the total basic treatment of the condition. Such baths should always be prescribed by a physician familiar with the case. This is essential not only to obtain the most benefit but also to avoid harmful effects.

APPENDICITIS

Q. If a woman developed appendicitis during pregnancy, would the doctor operate? If so, would this damage the child?

A. The doctor would operate if the mother's life was in danger. The child would not necessarily be harmed.

Remember—the diagnosis and treatment of disease is the function of the patient's personal physician.
