

Dinner Will Climax Christmas Observance at VA Domiciliary

WHITE CITY—Three months preparation for the Holiday Season at the Veterans Administration Domiciliary here will be climaxed by the "big family" dinner today.

New Director James A. Huron greeted the members and staff with a Christmas message printed on the annual menu—a gift from the American Legion, Department of Oregon, saying, in part:

"I would hope that as we celebrate Christmas we keep close in mind the true meaning of this great day. For on this day we pay homage to the Nativity of our Savior. The greatness of His philosophy and teachings shine as a beacon light of truth and knowledge to everyone on earth who will accept them. Therein lies the hope of worldly peace in our time. . . . In that spirit, all of the staff personnel and volunteers of this Domiciliary join with me in extending to all members, and their loved ones, our warmest personal wishes for great happiness throughout the year. May the New Year bring improved health and much contentment to you, and see a peaceful settlement of all international differences."

Nor was the Christmas confined to the Domiciliary. For three months, members of the Manual Arts Therapy department have been busy making gifts for the needy children in Southern Oregon.

With the cooperation of the Jackson County Welfare Department gifts and toys from the woodworkers, leatherworkers and textile experts were distributed to needy children. The results of this work, according to Lee Brown, chief therapist, drew many requests from members to join in future projects. Distributed gifts included stockings, caps, place mats, scarfs, stoles and hat holders from the weavers and knitters. Wheelbarrows, wagons, wooden tricycles, rocker docks, small "jeeps" and numerous other small gear and wooden toys came from the woodworkers.

Burglaries Being Probed by Police

Medford city police are investigating two burglaries which were reported since midnight.

Entered was Tom's Union Station, 1601 W. Main St. Nothing was reported taken, and officers believe that the burglar was frightened off before anything could be taken.

Shortly after 2:30 o'clock this morning when the entry was reported, police impounded an automobile which had been left in the middle of South Columbus Avenue. The vehicle had expired Manitoba, Canada license plates.

The second entry was reported shortly before 5 o'clock this morning at Hammill Laundry-mat, 827 West Jackson St., where approximately $10 in coins was taken from a vending machine. That machine and another were extensively damaged, police said.

Minor Accidents Reported in Area

State police this morning reported a series of minor accidents yesterday.

A car driven by Alfred Eugene Hackworth, 28, Gold Hill, and a car driven by Samuel Nelson, 41, Gold Hill, were involved in an accident on Table Rock road at Bybee bridge.

Ralph Fuget, 15, of 914 Lozier Lane, rode his bicycle out of a private driveway in front of a car driven by Donald Lee Pursel, 30, of 1275 Orchard Home Drive, yesterday afternoon on Lozier Lane, police reported. The car hit the rear wheel of the bicycle, but the boy was not seriously injured, state police said.

Cars driven by Roberta Jeanne Warnock, 22, of 2009 Orchard Home Drive, and Douglas Kent Smith, 16, of 839 E. Main St., Medford, collided on Orchard Home Drive at Orchard Home Court yesterday afternoon.

Other organizations of Southern Oregon and Northern California delivered individual Christmas packages to each Domiciliary member on the wards. Members of the Ashland band entertained and later entertained on the wards.

Sunday afternoon, the Apostolic church of Medford presented a choir and orchestra program of Christmas music and songs to an audience of disabled veterans in the domiciliary theater.

And the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary distributed baskets of food to each member at his bedside.

Man in Jesus' Time Had Fewer Chances To Learn Occupation

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—The scientific way of contrasting the world as it is now and what it was like when Jesus was born would have to be a statistical way.

Being a scientist, Dr. Carey P. McCord took that way. He had been astonished by the number of trades, professions and occupations available to people living in this year 1963 A.D.

A recent statistical compilation showed they totalled more than 50,000. The children who will be born on this day of Jesus' birthday will have that many to choose among, and probably there will be many thousands more by the time they grow up.

McCord got to wondering. The young Jesus learned the carpenter's trade. If he had wished to choose—or if he had been able to choose—how many trades, professions or occupations were there to choose among? That was McCord's question.

He combed the New Testament and the various concordances of holy writ which have been made over the centuries. The results were disappointing. "Although that portion of the Bible centers about the common people of the land, its sharp focus as to trades and professions more often is with references to public officials, civil servants, military personnel and ecclesiastics," he said.

"There are a few references to precise trades such as the carpenter, the fisherman, the tent maker and the tax collector, but more often only by implication does the New Testament indicate trades. For example, wines and wine presses are mentioned. From that it may be concluded that there were wine makers.

For help he turned to contemporary Roman and Greek literature.

Appointment Set By Engineer Corps

PORTLAND (UPI)—The appointment of Rudolf C. Arnold, 33, to be chief of special investigations in the engineering division of the Portland U. S. Army Engineer District has been announced by Col. Sterling K. Eisinger, Portland District Engineer.

Col. Eisinger said Arnold will work in the project planning branch and will concern himself with the flood plain information study now under way in the Lane County portion of the Willamette River Basin. He also will represent the Corps of Engineers on the State Mapping Advisory Committee.

Stock Exchange Passes Record

NEW YORK (UPI)—Total trading on the New York Stock Exchange thus far in 1963 has passed the all-time record for a single year.

Tuesday, at 18 minutes after noon (EST), the sale of 200 shares of Control Data Corp. stock brought the year-to-date total to 1,124,800,475. The old record was 1,124,800,410 shares for the entire year of 1929.

Average daily reported volume this year has been about 4.6 million shares, according to the exchange. The old record, also set in 1929, was 4.3 million.

Reported volume is the total number of transactions carried on the stock ticker. It does not include odd lot sales and a small number of other transactions not carried on the tape.
