Johnson Errs In Introduction

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (UPI)—The Commander-in-Chief was informed Wednesday that the Navy had promoted one of its ensigns to a junior grade lieutenant.

President Johnson introduced his future son-in-law to newsmen as Bernard Rosebach, a Navy ensign.

"He's a J.G., Daddy," Lynda, the President's 19-year-old daughter exclaimed.

The President registered surprise.

"Can I tell where he's going?" Johnson said.

"It's a military secret," Lynda said.

But the tall officer from Comfort, Tex., who was graduated in 1962 from Annapolis, told his future father-in-law he could make the announcement.

"He's returning to his destroyer," the President said, "and then he's going to Cuba, to Guantanamo."

Lynda was asked if she had decided which school in Washington D.C. she would transfer to from the University of Texas. The college sophomore said she was not sure she would transfer.

Then a newsman told her the President indicated she would transfer.

"Well," she said, "sometimes he makes a lot of the decisions."

Russians Striving For Party Unity

MOSCOW (UPI)—Premier Nikita Khrushchev told Mao Tse Tung that the Soviet Communist Party is "tirelessly striving" for Communist unity in a birthday message to the Chinese leader published in Pravda today.

Publication of the three-paragraph message on the Soviet Party organ's frontpage was the latest example of Khrushchev's "turning the other cheek" to Peking's personal insults, according to western observers.

But these analysts said the wording of the 70th anniversary message was noticeably cool, and the reference to Soviet strivings for unity implicitly suggested that the Chinese party under Mao was the cause of the widening gap.

Also absent from the congratulations was a personal wish from Khrushchev.

The message, signed by the Soviet leader and dated Dec. 25, was sent in the name of the Soviet Party Central Committee.

Family Council

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor, and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Marcia P.—If they don't stop nagging, I'll move away.

Mr. F.P.—As her parents, we hope to see her married.

Marcia P.—Because I'm 25 and still unmarried, my parents annoy me constantly to go out with this one, be nice to that one, give still another fellow a second chance. All I hear is that it's their dearest wish to see me a Mrs. before they die. Since when is being a Mrs. a guarantee of happiness? If it's my happiness they want, can't they see that I love my work? Even if I married, this would be first.

Mr. F.P.—I don't believe the best job can take the place of a good husband and family. Yes, Marcia is sitting pretty now. She's a silk buyer, travels all over the world, meets interesting people. But she's also a young lady and shouldn't be neglecting the romantic side of life. She never goes out with a man twice, always finds fault. Even if they don't earn as much as she, they are usually very attractive.

The Council: The most potent rejoinder for Marcia, a girl in love with a job, is that of Margaret Fishback, poet and former career girl: "No job in the world can put its arms around you and comfort you when you get home after a bad day." Mr. P. is trying to get across to his "contented" daughter that right now she has her beloved job plus loving parents on tap to cushion life's blows; to exuberate over small personal triumphs. But what of the future? Marcia has never been without this emotional support and, like most parents, Mr. P. harps on marriage to insure its continuation. With her present attitude, however, Marcia appears unmarriageable. Putting job in the No. One position, she's sparing some innocent fellow from a hard life. Maybe reading "Women's Two Roles," a book by Alva Myrdal and Viola Klein, will convince her that, to feel "complete," a woman must be both wife (plus mother, if possible) and contributor to society in her own right. Either one alone may not fully satisfy.
