South Bend Gets Retraining Plan Ready for Jobless

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—Federal and local officials met Saturday to put the finishing touches on a retraining program for about 1,000 of the 6,000 persons left jobless when Studebaker closed its automobile plant here.

The session took place as efforts continued to woo new industry to this northern Indiana community. Studebaker officials confirmed Friday night that they were negotiating to turn the firm's defense production contracts over to Litton Industries of Beverly Hills, Calif.

Officers of both firms refused to discuss details of the negotiations, but it was believed that Litton would operate here if it took over Studebaker's contracts to produce trucks for the Army and other defense agencies.

Local civic leaders Friday asked President Johnson to consider South Bend as a location for a major space research center which could mean another 2,000 jobs.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture also announced it had eased the income requirements for persons eligible to receive surplus government foodstuffs.

Although the change in income requirements was primarily aimed at the persons left jobless by the Studebaker shutdown, officials in Indianapolis said it probably would help a large number of needy or needy families around the state.

Rusk Says '64 to Be Period of Probing for East-West Peace

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk predicted in an interview released Saturday that "1964 will be a period of probing for the 'possibilities of peace' between East and West."

"My impression is that there is a certain soberness in the attitude of the principal governments of the world; that there is a recognition that crises such as the missile crisis in Cuba in October 1962 must be avoided if possible," Rusk said. He declared that one of the "more interesting aspects" of the recent NATO meeting in Paris "was the feeling that we ought to continue to explore possibilities of further agreement with the Soviet Union."

Rusk's remarks were made in the course of a lengthy interview with a Japanese broadcaster for release in that country today. The interview was recorded last Tuesday.

The secretary warned that Berlin, Germany, Cuba, South Viet Nam were "still explosive points that have to be dealt with and managed." He said, however, that he thought there was "a general feeling on the part of the peoples of the world that somehow a way to peace must be found and this is reflecting itself in the care with which governments are exploring these possibilities."

Rusk said this caused him to "enter 1964 with restrained optimism, with a modest optimism."

The danger of war in the world at present, Rusk said, stems from the Communist contention that the world "must be transformed by revolution into a Communist world. This is the underlying issue, and it is not going to be easy to make that issue disappear."

The secretary said the United States was continuing to discuss a number of questions with the Soviet Union, including disarmament and trade problems, but it would take "some time and some patience" to make any progress.

Declaring that there were "some very deep and some very dangerous differences between East and West," Rusk said it would take time, "further understanding and a mutual concession in an attempt to bring to formal agreement some of these common interests which we believe exist between us and the Soviet Union."
